A BRIDGE ACROSS THE BAY.

Oakland and San Francisco to Be Connected by a Number of High Steel Spans.

AN OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT OF THE PROJECT.

A REVOLUTION FOR TRAVEL.

Some Unexpected Developments at the Meeting Regarding the Estuary Issue.

At the meeting in San Francisco today, in the office of Col. Suter of the United States Engineering Department, of those interested in the changing of the estuary bridges, it was announced that a plan is being considered to construct a high bridge from Oakland to San Francisco. It will consist of several 150 foot draws, two 1000 foot spans and ten 500 foot spans. It was announced that the running time from Oakland to San Francisco will then be ten minutes.

(Special to the Tribune)

SAN FRANCISCO, Mar. 31.—This morning the hearing of testimony concerning the Oakland bridges was continued in the office of the United States Engineer Corps, 533 Kearney street, San Francisco.

The members of the Alameda County Board of Supervisors were not present. Mayor Davie, John R. Glascock, District Attorney Charles Snook, W. G. Curtis, Mr. McMullen, of the San Francisco Bridge Company and other interested persons were on hand.

The first testimony taken was in the form of a petition signed by eighty-six vessel owners and captains plying between Oakland and San Francisco. Their report was as follows:

"We, the undersigned sailing masters and captains doing business on San Francisco bay and the Oakland estuary respectfully recommend that the War Department of the United States have the draw openings widened to at least 150 feet and that one bridge be constructed in place of the two now in position.

"We beg to inform you that the openings of the draws of said bridges are too narrow and very dangerous to navigation, we knowing of many instances where great damage has been done to shipping on account of such draws.

"We have constantly been annoyed by being delayed on account of the bridge tenders not opening the bridges in time because of waiting for railroad trains and street cars to pass over, when in fact such trains are not within sight of the bridges, and also the method of opening said bridges is very slow, thereby causing delay and danger to our shipping.

"We petition to have one bridge in place of the two on account of the fact that between the bridges navigation is very dangerous on account of the width of the channel, and the close proximity of said bridges and the long time it takes to operate them.

"The bridges are controlled by the man stationed in the signal tower several blocks away from them and the bridge tender will some times partly open the draw for us and when we are approaching he will receive a contrary order from the tower man and close the bridge in the face of our fast approaching shipping, thereby causing delay and damage.

"We urgently request that the matter be attended to as soon as possible and thus remove the dangers and obstructions from the Oakland estuary so as to allow us free and unobstructed entrance to the many wharves of said estuary."

This petition is signed by about eighty-five ship owners and captains among whom are E. Pederson, Capt. S. N. Sanderson, J. P. Michelson, Albert Sims, Peter Jessen, P. C. Munemann, Charles Wallin, M. Meyers, H. Behrens, M. M. Jennings, Leopold Frederick, Capt. G. W. Freethy, Capt. P. H. Toni-

DAVIES VIEWS

Mayor Davie presented a typewritten document embodying the same ideas as submitted verbally at the last meeting. He advocates but one bridge, built as near the geographical centers of Alameda and Oakland as possible. Oak street he thinks would be a proper location as the land is desirable there, though in his opinion a brige even further east would be advisable. He suggested that the approach be constructed adjoining the property of the California Development Company near Oak street.

In the document the Mayor recounted his personal experiences while a shipping man showed that the two bridges had been a detriment not only to his shipping interest, but also to others.

Capt. Johnson stated that he had been plying between the two bridges for years and on three occasions he had need to get through the bridges but was unable, as the bridge-tenders refused to open them. On these occasions he was obliged to drop anchor, thereby causing much delay and once damaging his vessel materially by striking the bridge. He cited the case of several ship owners who had sustained damages amounting variously from $100 to $900.

Captain Peterson next said that he had been caused much inconvenience by the bridges. Recently he had signalled to open the bridge and had received the signal from the tenders to come on. The draw had been opened slightly and he was proceeding, when he was told to go back and the draw was closed. This was because the bridge failed to work properly. In consequence he was obliged to sheer his schooner and, in doing so, he not only collided with the "Nora M" and the "Dolphin," but also the bridge. This smashed things up generally and cost him much money.

THE RAILROAD'S OFFER.

A communication was received from the Southern Pacific Company, stating that the Alice-street bridge is owned by the Central Pacific Company and under lease to the Southern Pacific Company. It further stated that the company was willing to rebuild the Alice-street bridge and to consolidate its tracks there, changing the base of operations of the narrow gauge train to Alice street. The railroad, however, wanted until December 1, 1897, to complete the structure, and did not think it necessary to construct a 150-foot draw.

With regard to the Webster-street bridge the statement was made that the right-of-way is leased from the South Pacific Coast Company from the Southern Pacific Company. The railroad does not object to changing the method of operation of draws.

A BIG PROJECT

Ira man Bridges of the San Francisco Terminal Company spoke for it when he stated that a proposition was on foot to construct a series of suspension spans across the bay from Oakland to San Francisco. This would be located in Oakland at Peralta street and would accommodate all trains connected with the system. This it is contended would reduce the running time to San Francisco to ten minutes instead of the way it is at present.

They calculated to have several 150-foot draws and also two 1000-foot spans as well as ten 500-foot spans.

A communication was also presented by Edson Adams as president of the California Development Company, which stated that the company owns over 1600 feet of wharves and has filled in over forty acres of land adjacent to those bridges. It is the request of the company that the obstructions be removed at as early a date as possible and a single structure take their place.

Mr. Glascock requested the privilege of questioning Mr. Curtis.

"What rules are the company working under," he said, "with regard to the rights of way of the trains and vessels."

Curtis—"The vessels always are to have the right of way when practicable, but the bridge-tenders must use their judgment."

Glascock—"Don't you know it is a fact that vessels are frequently held when the train is over three-quarters of a mile away.

Curtis—"I don't know so, nor do I think such is a fact. If it has happened it has never been brought to the attention of the company."

Mayor Davie then referred to several incidents in the past concerning the operation of the bridges and Mr. Curtis replied.

"There has been a good many things that have not been entirely friendly between the Oakland people and the railroad in the past but I want it understood that the railroad company is acting entirely in good faith in this matter, statements on the street corners notwithstanding."

Colonel Suter asked if there was any concerted system of signals between the bridges and thought that the worst cause of complaint was when vessels became imprisoned between the two. Mr. Curtis replied that there was no system but he thought one could be easily arranged. He said the railroad was willing, and Attorney Snook stated that the county was also ready in that respect.

District Attorney Snook stated that before the Supervisors could take any action with regard to making permanent alterations they must wait for some action of the Legislature. As it now stands he contended the Board was powerless.

Col. Suter thought one bridge the only solution and Mr. Glascock suggested it be placed at Fallon street.

Mr. McMullen of the San Francisco Bridge Co. stated that he represented 1600 feet of land on the estuary and he thought the idea of waiting for the Legislature was absurd. He contended that the War Department should order the bridges removed.

After considerable discussion the meeting adjourned sine die, without having transacted any business whatever with the exception of taking testimony.

The evidence will now be sent to the Secretary of War with the recommendation from the San Francisco office that but one structure be placed in the stead of two.

THE DIVORCE IS ASKED.

Mrs. Crowley Brings Suit on Two Statutory Charges.

She Asks for the Two Children and $250 a Month Alimony.

This morning a petition for divorce from her husband, Dr. D. D. Crowley, the well known physician and surgeon, was filed in the Superior Court by Mrs. Alma E. Crowley.

The annulment of the marriage is sought on the dual grounds of adultery and cruelty. The petitioner asks for the custody of the two minor children and alimony at the rate of $250 a month. She had previously filed a homestead on the family residence 1161 Alice street. This filing took place on the morning of the 25th inst., two minutes after the office of the recorder opened that day. The document had been prepared on the preceding day.

In support of the charge of adultery Mrs. Crowley alleges that the co-respondent is Mrs. A. G. Ainsworth, wife of a clerk of the Southern Pacific Company who resides at 272 Twenty-third street in this city. Mrs. Ainsworth is the woman who, it is alleged was found in the doctor's office when Mrs. Crowley suddenly made her appearance there, one evening in the early part of last week.

In support of the charge of cruelty, Mrs. Crowley instances several cases in which she alleges she was subjected to unhusbandly treatment by the doctor.

Mrs. Crowley has declined every overture in the way of mediation on the part of mutual friends, as well as the kindly offices of counsel on both sides who had hoped that a separation or divorce might take place without bringing to the surface charges which, whether true or false, could not but have an unpleasant effect upon both parties. Mrs. Crowley was especially determined that no complaint should be filed in which the charges of infidelity did not appear.

The mention of the name of the alleged co-respondent has intensified the case and if the matter ever comes to trial, it will be signalized by two parties as respondents who will be called on to disprove the charges of Mrs. Crowley.

A. G. Ainsworth, the husband of the other woman in the case is greatly annoyed over the notoriety given to his wife in the premises. He says that the charges of Mrs. Crowley are groundless. His wife had made but a second call upon Dr. Crowley, and, for a long time, had been an invalid. The notoriety which, he says she has attained in this case, has occasioned a shock to her nervous system, from the effects of which she is now prostrated. Mr. Ainsworth says he is anxious to have the case advanced and disposed of as rapidly as possible, because he is satisfied that the charge incriminating his wife can be disposed of with dispatch.

W. R. Davis and Fred L. Button are counsel for Mrs. Crowley and W. W. Foote and R. M. Fitzgerald are attorneys for Dr. Crowley.

Mrs. Crowley got her tip about Mrs. Ainsworth by means of an anonymous letter.

A SOLEMN FAREWELL.

The remains were taken to the cemetery followed by the carriages containing the family, Mr. Albert Miller and family, Mrs. Charles Webb Howard, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Prather, Mr. and Mrs. Edson Adams, Mr. and Mrs. Wheaton, Rev. and Mrs. Robert Coyle and many others.

ALL WERE ASPHYXIATED.

It Was Done Because the Husband Went to Lodge.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

SAN FRANCISCO, Mar. 31.—The asphyxiated bodies of Mrs. Olga Deuss and her three little children were found this morning by her husband who is a prosperous jeweler.

Deuss said he had been out to lodge last night, returning about daylight today.

Mrs. Deuss left a note to her husband indicating her intention to commit suicide and that her children must die with her.

Mrs. Deuss, who murdered her three children and killed herself, because her husband went to lodge so often, was 40 years old.

She was undoubtedly jealous, but the neighbors say she had no cause to be, as Deuss never paid attention to other women.

Lately Deuss' business has not been prosperous and this fact worried his wife.

When he went out last night she dressed herself in her wedding gown, and wrote to her husband these words in German:

"As I loved you in life, so I will attend you step by step in death."

Then she turned on every gas jet in the house and gathered her three children about her bed and died.

"We will give the electorial vote of New Hampshire to any nominee who worthily represents the party; but we prefer one of these because either is in himself a platform."

The Wilmerding School in Great Demand on All Sides.

OAKLAND MUST GET IT.

A Delegation of Prominent Citizens Appeals to the Regents.

GOOD ARGUMENTS ADVANCED.

Special to The Tribune.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 31.—The Regents of the State University are in session this afternoon at the Hopkins Gallery of Art, to decide upon the site for the Wilmerding School.

The Regents present are Governor Budd, Lieutenant-Governor Jeter, John C. Lynch, F. K. Black, C. M. Chase, Earnest C. Denicke, John E. Budd, A. F. Hallidie, J. F. Houghton, J. West Martin, G. F. Marye, T. G. Fox, J. B. Reinstein, Arthur Rodgers, W. T. Wallace and J. E. Brown.

Robert M. Fitzgerald, W. R. Davis, P. E. Bowles, J. W. Laymance and J. B. McChesney are present in the interest of Oakland.

Those who are working for San Francisco are Albert Bouvier, Joseph D. Phelan and Professor Merrill of the Lick School.

At the call for order J. West Martin moved to lay all business aside and select the site at once.

The motion carried.

F. Standeford then offered a tract of land at Seventh and Adeline streets.

H. D. Irwin offered a tract at Lorin.

F. H. Dunn made an offer on the part of San Francisco.

Diamond and Vandercook's offer of a tract in Fruitvale was then made.

San Leandro, San Jose, Redwood City and other places made offers.

The matter was sent to the committee, who recommended accepting the five-acre tract, throwing out all together all offers except those of Oakland, Berkeley and San Francisco, as it considered the other cities to far from the State University and the affiliated colleges.

J. West Martin moved that the committee's recommendation be adopted, and discussion commenced.

San Francisco presented a memorial, stating that Oakland was too remote, as the majority of working people lived in San Francisco. They recommended that the Regents and the Trustees of the Lick School confer with a view of consolidating the two schools.

The Governor suggested that there was not room enough on the Lick school property to erect another building and the San Francisco delegation agreed to purchase more land.

The claims of Oakland were then advanced by W. R. Davis and R. M. Fitzgerald.

REGENT MARTIN'S VIEWS.

J. West Martin told a Tribune reporter previous to his departure to San Francisco to attend the meeting of the Regents that he was confident that Oakland would gain the Wilmerding School.

Mr. Martin said: "Of course, I do not know just what these San Francisco gentlemen intend to offer but I am sure they cannot present a more acceptable site than Ayala Park. I am confident that Oakland will have the school. It is only right and proper that it should be here, and I intend to make that fact clear to the board today. If the San Francisco gentlemen offer any sites.

"The Wilmerding School has nothing to do with the Lick School or any other school or college in San Francisco. It is under the supervision and administration of the University officers, and it should be near the University. The money was left in trust to the Board of Regents to see that a school was located near the University, and it should be placed there. It would be unfair and illegal to have it anywhere else.

"If necessary, I shall address the board and prove that what I say is true, but, of course, my remarks will depend upon what Mr. Phelan and the other gentlemen say.

"A number of the Regents will be absent from to-day's meeting. Mr. Albert Miller chairman of the Committee on Sites, and Judge Slack will not attend in all probability. I doubt if the question is settled to-day. I shall move for a postponement of the decision if I find that members of the board, who have the greatest interest of the University at heart, are not present. Some of the public men of San Francisco have become alarmed over the push and energy displayed by Oakland, and want the school in San Francisco, but I shall plainly tell these gentlemen that this school is a University adjunct, and must be placed convenient to the University. I expect it will be exciting meeting, but of this I am sure, the Wilmerding School will be located on this side."

GOLD IN THE RUINS.

$50 FOUND THIS MORNING.

Mrs. Du Bois Had All Her Savings in the House.

A Story of the Days When Oakland Was Very Young.

Among the ashes of the once famous Du Bois house, women have been looking for money. The great fire last night completely ruined one of the oldest land marks in Alameda. Thirty-six years ago Mr. and Mrs. Du Bois came to this coast and opened a saloon, bowling alley and boat house on the street that is now Broadway and the water front. In those days the house was directly on the water's edge and the boats were kept in a part of the house. The Du Bois place, with its grounds was in the very heart of Oakland and was the scene of many merry-makings. At that time it was considered dangerous to go beyond the old plaza where the present Hall of Records stands and Mrs. Du Bois says she can distinctly recall the terror the thought of going beyond that place inspired her. All along the water front were houses and saloons and all Oakland life and gayety was centered there.

The bay steamers and schooners stopped at the Du Bois landing, close to the old-fashioned two story house. Du Bois made money in those days, but money came and went too easily and when he died, fifteen years later, his wife was left penniless. The town had grown and spread until the plaza had become safe to all and the water front was no longer a fashionable avenue.

The landing at Du Bois' place was filled in and a wharf built, obliterating entirely all traces of the former boating landing. The Du Bois house and the old justice court house stood side by side and grew old and dilapidated together. Mrs. Du Bois continued to live in her home and it began to be filled with curios and keepsakes of early days. Sea captains coming from far off ports brought to their old friends presents from strange lands. Magnificent Oriental shawls, silks, quaint lamps and all manner of curios, filled the house. In every nook and corner was some article rich and rare.

When the fire came last night, Mrs. Du Bois was almost frantic in her efforts to save her treasures. She did not cease trying to collect them together until the flames surrounded her. Then she first realized her danger. She rushed to the porch on the second floor, and seizing the sign board swung herself far out into the street. Her keepsakes were nearly all destroyed in the flames together with about $200 in cash. All this morning, Mrs. Du Bois and her friends have been digging in the ruins hoping to recover something. Already over $50 has been recovered, blackened and disfigured by the fire. Mrs. Du Bois grieves over the loss of her old home with its many, many associations, more than anything else and dreads the future with its changes, she says, more than she can tell.

THE SHERIFF MAY ACT.

How the License Violators Are to Be Handled in Future.

This morning County Tax Collector Barber demanded and was given a number of blank county liquor licenses and will hereafter be prepared to furnish them.

He will also receive whatever money applicants may have to pay for such licenses. That, he claims, however, will be the limit of his work in that direction. As to the following up of delinquents, he will leave that to devolve upon some other person.

James W. Ballard, who has just been deprived of the work of collecting these saloon license tax fees turned over to Mr. Barber all the books, blanks and other articles belonging to the county which have come into his possession as a consequence of his incumbency with the now defunct position.

Sheriff White has been watching this change of affairs with an observant eye and, speaking on the subject today said:

"The fact that a man becomes delinquent in his liquor license tax makes him a violator of the law. That I suppose will cause more work to devolve upon me. I have not yet decided how I shall prepare for it. I will speak to the Supervisors and ascertain what they want to do in the matter."

M. C. Chapman Knocks Out the Restriction Ordinance.

Merchants Much Interested in a Decision Recorded Today.

M. C. Chapman succeeded this morning in knocking out another ordinance in the Superior Court, Judge Frick holding that the instrument was illegal, reversing the finding of the Police Court and dismissing the action.

The ordinance in question is No. 1298 and was designed with a view to regulating traffic and sales in the streets of Oakland, and preventing such traffic from endangering the public comfort and safety.

This ordinance has of late been given quite an amount of attention by the merchants of this city, and more recently impelled Chief of Police Lloyd to issue a special order to the department to enforce its provisions.

The third section reads as follows:

"Nothing herein contained shall be construed as preventing or making unlawful the prompt delivery in good faith of any of said personal property to or at any such fixed place of business so situated and conducted in such building or store within such territory in any case where such personal property so being delivered is actually, and in good faith, consigned goods, or has actually and in good faith been there before purchased at a place outside of such territory by such lawful occupant of such fixed place of business, actually doing business therein, and said property is in either such case there being delivered to him thereat."

As interpreted by Mr Chapman, this section prohibits the selling of goods of within that district to any person save the proprietor of a store abutting on the street, and, as he claims, the selling, for instance, of milk, because of the fact that there is no store in the district which deals in that commodity.

The action has been pending for some time and the legality of the ordinance was tested on the grounds that the subject is not clearly indicated in the title of the act; that it was not uniform in operation, and was of a local and special character that it was not a police or sanitary regulation; that it was a restriction of trade and violation of public policy; that it was unreasonable and that it tended to create a monopoly.

H. A. Melvin appeared for the people. He knew however, that the ordinance was defective. The Court sustained Mr. Chapman's contention, declared the ordinance illegal, reversed the finding in the Police Court and dismissed the case.

This action will lead to a further move on the part of the Merchants' Exchange to get an ordinance on this subject, which will stand the test of legal inquiry. The ordinance knocked out to-day was passed during Mr. Chapman's administration as Mayor.

Bungling Work Caused the Victims Agonizing Deaths.

SHRIEKS OF THE DYING.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

HAVANA, March 31.—Never in modern times has there been a more sickening spectacle than that which to-day attended the public execution of five Cubans, condemned to death by the garrote as "murderers, violators and incendiaries."

The troops were drawn up in a hollow square and in the middle were placed a chair and post.

Ruiz, the public executioner, had deputized an assistant to conduct the affair.

The condemned men were brought into the square to meet their fate.

One had confessed guilt and affirmed the innocence of all the others who also protested they were guiltless.

The first man took his seat in the chair calmly. The iron collar was fixed about his neck, and the cap drawn over his face.

The executioner undertook to apply the screw, but was so excited that his hand slipped repeatedly.

The victim died by slow strangulation, emitting the most distressing cries.

The second execution was accomplished with even more distressing awkwardness, the executioner being almost on the verge of collapse.

Protests of officers and priests forced Ruiz to undertake the third execution, but he did little better than his assistant had done.

NOT THE MEN.

Sheriff Cunningham Is Working on the Gold Brick Case.

Sheriff Cunningham of Stockton was with Chief Lloyd this morning trying to connect Root and Thompson with the Stockton gold brick job which netted its operators about $20,000, but after seeing them and their pictures declared they are not the men he wants.

A. Premore and Mr. Kahn, two arrivals from Tuscarora, Nev., also looked over the photographs and determined that the men were the ones who came very nearly unloading some of their wares on Mr. Premore. He became interested in the Mexican mine story and was taken to Sacramento where he saw the Indian with the bullion. They persuaded him to advance some money to develop the property and he left for home to get his bank book. While in Tuscarora he incidentally told Mr. Kahn of the speculation he was about to make. Kahn is a merchant and had heard of gold bricks before. He secured possession of his friend's bank book and refused to give it back to him. The operators became frightened by the delay and left the place suddenly.

UNION MEN GET IT.

Decision by the Y. M. I. About the Music for Their Council.

The members of the Y. M. I. have decided to employ union music for their grand council meeting to be held in Haywards, beginning May 18th, although to uphold unionism will cost something over $100 more than it would to have employed a non-union band.

Bids for contracts to furnish music were asked for and several responses made, the lowest being from the Mare Island band, a non-union organization. The matter was debated by the delegates and the committee of Haywards' citizens and it was finally decided to sustain the union. The contract was awarded to Richardson & Zander's Oakland Concert Band.

A Forger in the Toils.

H. N. Northoff, the alleged forger, was taken from the Oakland prison to San Francisco this morning by Detective Reynolds where a complaint has been sworn to by the Rambler Bicycle Company, from whom he bought a bicycle, giving therefor a forged check for $125 and receiving $15.50 change.

May Be Overruled

The ordinance appropriating $8000 for the repair of the Eighth street bridge may be passed over the veto of the Mayor. When the matter came up for final passage in the Council the vote stood ten ayes and one (Capell) absent.

His Creditors Mourn.

F. L. Hanson, a building contractor, residing at 515 Thirty-third street, has disappeared. His absence has created considerable consternation among lumber and material men, as it is estimated that his debts range from $10,000 to $14,000.

SLANDEROUS STATEMENTS.

The Truth of the Philadelphia Conference Is Set Forth.

A LULL AT WASHINGTON.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—A resolution was adopted by the House today, authorizing the expenditure of $20,000 of the unexpended balance of the appropriation for the Cascades, Columbia River, for the construction of protecting walls necessary to opening the canal to navigation.

The House disagreed to the Senate amendments to the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill and agreed to conference.

Bingham (Rep.) of Pennsylvania, McCall (Rep.) of Tennessee), and Dockery (Dm.) of Missouri were appointed conferees.

The consideration of the sundry civil bill was then resumed. During the consideration of items under the head of coast and geodetic survey Cannon took occasion to sharply criticise the administration for "freezing out" Professor T. C. Mendenhall, predecessor of General Duffield, the present superintendent.

He described Mendenhall as the most competent man whoever presided as superintendent, his scientific attainments being recognized all over the country. He referred to the present superintendent as a "new discovery," but said he did not desire to reflect in any way on his competency or ability.

Adams (Rep.) of Pennsylvania took advantage of the latitude allowed in the debate on the appropriation bill to arouse the ire of the silver Republicans from the West by bringing up the question of current reports about Washington of a conference between several silver Republicans and some Philadelphia manufacturers, which was the subject of a formal meeting of manufacturers of that city last night.

He referred to "misleading reports" in the papers of an alleged compact between free-silver Republicans and manufacturers, by which he said it was even proposed to yield the great doctrine of protection. He said one of the Western States (South Dakota) only a few days ago rebuked her Senator by declaring for protection and sound money.

Last night, he said the Philadelphia Manufacturers Club of Philadelphia responded by the passage of strong resolutions denouncing and repudiating this alleged compact.

He had the resolutions read.

Hartman said he was glad of an opportunity to say on the floor what should have been said several days ago.

Hartman agreed the reports scattered broadcast by the press regarding the so-called Washington conference had been false and misleading. But the silver men were nowise responsible for these false reports. The plain truth was some manufacturers of Philadelphia requested a conference. Their invitation had been accepted. Twenty-eight manufacturers had come over from Philadelphia, and a three-hour consultation was had. The report that that meeting had been prepared by Senators Mantle, Carter, Cannon and Dubois and himself was absolutely correct. There was no suggestion of any agreement. In fact, it was distinctly stated no conclusion had been reached.

"But," said Hartman, indignantly, "for the purpose of breaking down and vilifying Republicans who had the hardihood to stand up for silver, the gold press denounced us. No more wilful falsehood and slander was ever circulated in the public press. They coined a lie and attempted to force it down our throats."

THE SENATE.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

WASHINGTON, Mar. 31.—The Senate after brief attention to routine business proceeded to the consideration of the Dupont election case.

George (Miss.) was recognized for a speech in opposition to claims of Dupont for his seat in the Senate from Delaware. His speech was mainly a legal argument.

STILL LOSING.

The Expenses Run far Ahead the Treasury Receipts.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—The forthcoming monthly treasury statement will show the receipts during the month to be $26,041,149 as follows: Customs, $13,344,115; internal revenue, $11,536,264; miscellaneous, $1,160,668.

For the nine months of the fiscal year the receipts are substantially as follows: Customs, $126,986,239; internal revenue, $110,404,143; miscellaneous, $13,239,396; making a total of $250,609,840.

The deficit for the present month will be about $1,300,000 and for nine months $18,819,708.

MYSTIFIED THEM ALL.

Anna Eva Fay, who has been characterized, and justly so as the fair Fahatma, appeared at the Macdonough theatre last night before an audience which comprised hundreds of the best people of this city. It was the first time that she had been seen by many of those in attendance, although there were hundreds present who had in previous years marveled at the mystic power of the little woman. Miss Fay is now the most celebrated of all the artists who perform tricks upon the stage which seem to be the work of a supernatural agency. That these tricks are performed in that manner, Miss Fay does not assert, and yet that they are the work of simply human hands seems almost incredible. There was nothing done by Miss Fay last night which did not create wonderment and astonishment among her spectators and every act was received with applause.

The closing feature was the reading of a number of private questions written on separate pieces of paper by people in various parts of the house. Miss Fay not only gave the names of the writers, but, at the same time, the substance of the questions and answers, in a way that satisfied all those who propounded them.

She will give three more night performances at the Macdonough, and is sure of liberal patronage.

COMING EVENTS.

Next week amusement patrons will enjoy two of the greatest attractions of the season. For Monday and Tuesday evenings Hoyt's latest success, "A Milk White Flag," is announced, and the latter part of the week "Sinbad" will be seen. The sale of seats for "A Milk White Flag" opens next Thursday, and a big rush is expected at the boxoffice.

"Sinbad" is now crowding the Columbia. The reputation of this gorgeous extravaganza is so familiar to the public as to require slight announcement. Its production here will pack the Macdonough each performance.

THE OAKLAND.

The pretty English comedy-drama, "The Golden Polugh," attracted a large audience at the Oakland Theatre last evening. The play deals with various phases of English life, and the more serious portions of the drama are brightened up with clever bits of comedy. The production last night was a finished one, while the new scenery was particularly pleasing.

Norval McGregor made his re-appearance in the leading male part of Sir Charles Gordan. He was received with old-time favor, and interpreted the part with force. Miss Virginia Jackson as Mrs. Oakley, the deserted wife, gave her usual careful rendition of the role, while Frank Bacon, George Hermance, William Burress, May Waring and Jennie Weideman, all sustained the characters alloted to them very ably.

Next week a big production of "Michael Strogoff" will be given.

THE BALDWIN.

James O'Neill and his company opened their season at the Baldwin Theatre last night with "Monte Cristo." The popular play was staged in a very elaborate manner and the company was strong throughout. O'Neill was as dashing as ever in the title role. He carried the burden of the play in a most able manner, and the support was good in all details. "Virginius" on an elaborate scale will be seen this evening.

THE CALIFORNIA.

"Friends," that bright sparkling play with which Edwin Milton Royle made a reputation, was presented at the California Theatre last night. It was given with almost the identical cast that marked its production here on its last visit to the coast. It was much enjoyed by a good house and should get its share of theatrical patronage during the week.

THE COLUMBIA.

"Sinbad" is too good an attraction to be gainsaid even in Lent. It is packing the Columbia Theatre nightly, and its merriment and bright special features meet thorough appreciation.

THE TIVOLI.

"Said Pasha" is continuing its uninterrupted course of success at the Tivoli. It is tuneful, funny and full of action. The Tivoli always has a good show.

THE ORPHEUM

Nothing can affect the popularity of the Orpheum. It runs along with overflow houses night in and night out, no matter whether Lent is here or not. It is easy though to account for this, as the programme is so varied that there is always something to appeal to pleasure seekers. Segomme the ventriloquist, the three Marvelles, the Masons, and Gertie Carlisle are among this week's attractions.

MOROSCO'S.

"The Red Pocket Book," with Darrell Vinton, Charles Lothlan, Essie Tittell and Julia Blanc in the cast, is the attraction at the Grand Opera House this week. It is one of the best-known melo-dramas.

THE ALCAZAR.

Leonard Grover Jr. has returned to regular lines at the Alcazar, and this week is producing a double bill. It consists of a comedy, "My Wife's Husband," and a drama, "The Homestead."

INTERSTATE COMMERCE.

Alleged Discrimination by Many Leading Western Lines.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

DENVER, March 31.—Suit has been filed in the United States Circuit Court by the InterState Commerce Commission, invoking the aid of the law to enforce its orders against ten Western railroads and compel them to desist from discriminations between long and short hauls.

An order setting January 16th as the time when the schedules of rates should be amended was made, but the roads refuse to comply.

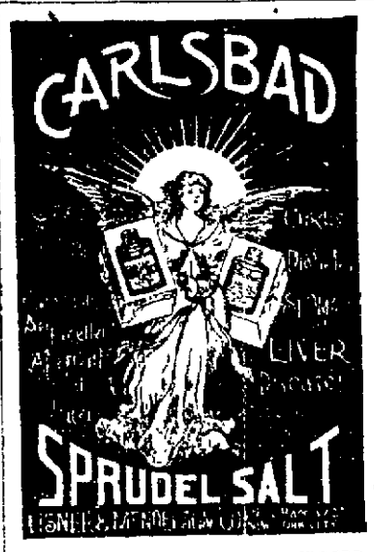

An injunction is asked restraining the companies from proceeding with the existing schedules, and Judge Hallet is asked to impose a penalty upon each company not exceeding $500 a day as long as the law is disregarded.

The Court has ordered the defendant companies to file answers on or before May 4th.

The Southern Pacific, Santa Fe, Colorado Midland, Denver & Rio Grande, Rio Grande Western, Union Pacific, Union Pacific, Denver & Gulf, Atlantic and Pacific, and Pacific, St. Louis & San Francisco and Southern California are defendants.

HE STOPPED THE SHOW.

An Insane Printer Surprises Some Chicago Theater Goers.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

CHICAGO, March 31.—Robert Rothman, a printer, supposed to be insane, interrupted the grand opera of Romeo and Juliet at the Auditorium last night. The curtain had been rung up on the balcony scene but a few minutes and Jean de Reszke had started his lines. "O, night spread out thy pinions above me and——"

"Stop, stop," shouted Rothman, as he climbed up the stairs which lead to the stage from the front and advanced toward de Reszke. "Stop, I say, and touch me not or you'll be sorry for it."

The man removed his coat and vest and cast them on the floor. De Reszke took his advice and stopped in amazement. At the same instant William Perry, of the opera company, management, stepped on the stage and walked toward Rothman.

Mr. Perry also stopped, but as he did so he gave a signal and the curtain was rung down.

Rothman was between it and the footlights and Max Dasold and Charles Gilbekson, stage hands, were sent out to remove him.

Each seized one of his arms and the man was led into the wings, loudly protesting that his captors were making the mistake of their lives in so handling him.

Rothman was taken by the police to Harrison street station where he talked in an incoherent manner, claiming to be the son of God and to be possessed of divine powers.

IT COMES SUDDENLY.

A Note of Warning to Careful Minded People.

Scarcely a day passes that one does not hear of men and women who were in perfect health being suddenly stricken down by that terrible disease, pneumonia.

At no time of the year is this dangerous complaint so extremely prevalent as during the present season. There are constant changes; one day is as mild as summer, the next is bitterly cold. The very air is filled with disease and the slightest exposure often results in pneumonia. It is a disease that comes suddenly and it is all the more dangerous because it comes unannounced. A tickling in the throat, a tightness in the chest, a difficulty in breathing, a feeling of weakness, all may mean the beginning of pneumonia. It is above all things a disease that requires prompt treatment, for if a reaction is brought about, the danger may soon be over, if not, the end may be near. Any physician who is called in a case of pneumonia prescribes a stimulant instantly; but it is always some reliable stimulant such as pure whiskey—all else is useless.

It is precisely for this reason that so many physicians prescribe that standard and reliable whiskey known as Duffy's pure malt. It has saved the lives of thousands who were on the high road to pneumonia in its worst form and it has both prevented and cured the most dangerous forms of pulmonary complaints. As a great strengthening, vitalizing remedy it has never been equaled. Be sure that you get Duffy's pure malt, no matter how much you may be urged to try something cheaper.

BLIND-EYED BIGOTRY.

That Is the Way J. P. Edoff Sums Up O. G. May's Utterances.

The California State Protective Work Explained by Its President.

J. P. Edoff, President of the California State Protective Association, has made the following answer to the criticism of O. G. May of Berkeley, regarding the work done by the liquor men:

"It has not been my habit to notice the vaporings of obscure assailants who are always rushing into public prints, when they can secure the consent of the editor, to hurl venom at an imaginary foe, and I see no substantial reason why Mr. May should be made an exception to my general policy in this respect.

"The subject matter of his communication is the old threadbare sermon which has been preached and sung by the Prohibitionist for a century, and its teachings are regarded as so impracticable by modern civilization as to scarcely merit consideration.

"In this State the prohibition party has been in active existence and operation for more than a quarter of a century, and yet at the last election their vote was so insignificant as to scarcely entitle it to be dignified by the term scattering. I mention this simply for the purpose of calling attention to the fact that the prohibitionist, as represented by Mr. May, is narrow, contracted, intolerant, bigoted, selfish and opinionated, and hence it is that they make such little headway in their attempt to persuade the body politic into the adoption of their views.

"That they as a whole mean well may be admitted, but to differ with them upon the subject is to invite a cyclone of vituperation and abuse, which is always the ready weapon of a narrow intellect.

"A fair sample of this intolerance and bigotry is conspicuously apparnet in the communication of Mr. May. Without any knowledge or acquaintance with myself, or, as far as I am aware, with any other member of our organization, he proceeds to launch a tirade of billingsgate and falsehood against us.

"His reference to other matters and the interests they represent shows the flippant and reckless use of a dagger in the hands of a fool.

"Now, with regards to his opinions as to the objects of our association I have no desire to make any comment or to enter into any discussion with Mr. May through the press or elsewhere. Bliss gross perversion of the facts is so marked that anything like a fair basis of argument with men of his mentality is utterly impossible, and therefore such a discussion would prove not only unprofitable, but absurd. He is either ignorant of the truth respecting the present status of the liquor traffic in California, or does not possess sufficient moral courage to admit what is common knowledge, and that is that our association has accomplished greater results in the two years of its existence in the line it is following than all of the Prohibitionists since the organization of the State government.

"Neither is his statement true that it was or is our purpose to wrest from the local authorities the right to regulate or suppress the traffic. Upon the contrary, at the last session of the Legislature we attempted the enactment of a local option statute, submitting to a vote of the people of each county the question of license or no license, which cannot now be done by any valid enactment. This measure was defeated by the efforts of people fashioned after the caliber of Mr. May, and for no other or more substantial reason than that the measure proceeded from the liquor dealers themselves.

"We also attempted to increase the license revenue by more than $2,000,000 in the State, with a view of thereby lessening the number of retail saloons, and by so doing very greatly diminishing the opportunities for low or disorderly places, and yet this action upon our part is construed by the man from Berkeley as an attempt to plant a saloon at every man's door. In other words, he seems to consider that to double or treble the tax upon the traffic will have the effect of multiplying instead of diminishing the number of establishments, which is quite in keeping with the logic of his position throughout his whole vicious tirade.

"And finally, he says that our avowed purpose to eschew politics is a mere pretense and a sham. I wish only to add in this connection that the example, as well as the results accomplished by the political efforts of the Prohibitionists, is well calculated to persuade sensible people to enter some other field than the political arena if they desire to be a factor in public affairs."

TUESDAY..... MARCH 31, 1896

A London critic calls attention to the fact that the Englishman has to depend for dictionaries of his own native speech mainly on the labors of American scholars." Several home-made dictionaries have a certain vogue in England, but they are circumscribed and unsatisfactory, and hence the leading American works of that kind, being more comprehensive and including the established speech of the masses as well as the classes, are widely used and relied upon over there.

Senator Sherman thinks ex-Governor Campbell is the most available candidate for President that the Democrats could name. But Campbell would not have the backing of his own state. The Ohio man is generally lucky, but his luck turns when he only has the backing of a minority. Carlisle is ahead just now. But what kind of a backing would he have from old Kentucky with a Republican Governor and a Legislature that refused to elect a Democratic Senator?

Senator White, from the Committee on Territories, recently made this report on the bill for the admission of Arizona as a State in the Union:

The report says that the Territory contains 113,000 square miles, or a greater area than is contained in the ten states of Rhode Island, Delaware, Connecticut, New Jersey, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Vermont, Maryland, West Virginia and South Carolina combined. Its resources are represented as unlimited, comprising much rich agricultural land, 40,000,000 acres of grazing land and the largest unbroken forest area in the United States, as well as rich deposits of gold, silver, copper, lead, onyx, marble and precious stones. The population is placed at 80,000 and is represented as rapidly increasing.

Bad for Menelik.

The report that King Menelik has ordered the massacre of prisoners and sick persons, who have fallen into his hands may be true or it may not. The ruler of Abyssinia has won a degree of respect from the civilized world for his bravery, and his stout defence of his own land. Whatever sympathy he may have gained would disappear as soon as such a report should turn out to be true. The whole civilized world would be horrified. Menelik is in constant communication with the outside world. He knows the drift of public opinion by having read to him almost daily some account of what is going on in the world.

The killing of prisoners and the sick who have fallen into his hands, as a convenient way of getting rid of them, is the diabolism of the brute and the savage. The ruler of Abyssinia is a sort of religious savage. He is lifted above the condition of an ordinary one by traditions and by a degree of intelligence that generally counts for better things. The great forces of the world are now set against barbarism and all its forms of cruelty. The ruler of Abyssinia would be the outlaw of the world were he to murder his prisoners as they do in Darkest Africa.

Hammond at Capetown.

A few weeks ago there was great concern for the safety of John Hayes Hammond, on whom the Dutch had laid hands at Johannesburg. Hammond was sent to jail to await his trial. His friends in San Francisco were very active in getting him out of his trouble. It was not likely that such a competent mining engineer had conspired against the Dutch. Jameson has gone home to England on a picnic excursion. Hammond did not like his quarters in the Pretoria jail, and in time got an enlargement.

Hammond has since gone to Capetown, having secured that liberty by giving bail in a hundred thousand dollars. Whether he will ever go back to the Transvaal will probably depend upon his chances for acquittal. The fact that he was required to give so heavy a bond is pretty good evidence that his offense is not considered a light one. The other prisoners are held at Pretoria. The British Government has given notice that it will hold President Kruger responsible for their safety. The latter will not be troubled by notices of that kind. Hammond could not go to Capetown for his health without putting up a hundred thousand dollars. As the others could not give the required bail they will have to cultivate their health in Pretoria.

How the Champions of Free Trade Have Fared.

It is a suggestive fact that nearly all the men who have been conspicuous champions of free trade instead of moving forward gaining in strength and favor with the public, have gone backward in influence. There is Morrison of Illinois, conspicuous once as the author of a horizontal tariff which was his wedge driven for free trade. Morrison's bill was defeated and he was afterward beaten in his race for Congress. The man had nearly dropped out of sight until the other day one or two Eastern journals informed the public that he was alive, and that he would be greatly pleased with any stray votes for a Presidential nomination.

Then there is Mills of Texas, another champion of free trade. Mills has not quite disappeared over the political grade but he is going over fast enough. He is no longer a power. He was on the top wave for a time and is now somewhere else. Then there is Crisp, who drove the double team of soft money and free trade. The latter has been too much for him. When Crisp was Speaker of the House he had his eye on a Presidential nomination. But his name is not even mentioned now in any such connection. Crisp and Mills are slowly retreating toward the political vanishing point.

Another memorable instance is that of Wilson of West Virginia. The present Administration committed to him the work of making a tariff that should have all the essential elements of free trade. Wilson went to work to achieve the greatest victory of his life. His bill was mutilated until he hardly knew whether the ground was under him or over him. Wilson was defeated for Congress in his own district when he had been a favorite. The President took him into his Cabinet. But he has made no figure there. He is slowly going over the grade with the other free trade leaders. It is an instructive bit of history. The champions of free trade have fared ill. They have gone into political decline which since it has begun, has never been arrested.

What Public Libraries Have Done.

The Boston Herald dwells on the fact that there are but few towns in Massachusetts where there is not a public library of some sort, and that Boston contains the largest and best appointed public library in the United States. The other fact of chief interest is that fifty years ago Horace Mann persuaded the Legislature to place a small public library in every school district in that State. These school district libraries contained from 100 to 150 books. But they were all standard works. That measure made all the rural districts reading communities. The books went into the hands of bright boys and girls. They read them. They became lovers of books.

More library buildings and foundations for libraries have been given by individuals in that State or who are natives, than have been provided in that way in proportion to population in any other State. Nearly every considerable town has a handsome library edifice. Rich men who read as boys the books in those small libraries, never forgot the town where those comparatively small advantages were enjoyed. It seemed a small thing that the State should furnish a few books for every school district. But it was a great thing for the young people. Today the old commonwealth is probably at the head of all the states in the Union as a reading community. Its public libraries in town and country tell the story.

Now this occurred in Boston, the cradle of liberty. The Herald of that city is responsible for the statement.

"The State House of Representatives has summarily disposed of the woman suffrage amendment to the constitution. It defeated it without giving it the grace of the call of the yeas and nays. There were probably several members favoring the change who participated in this action. They would be willing the change should be made, but, as practical people, they realized the uselessness of attempting to bring it about now. This being the fact, and it being recognized as such by the more moderate of the advocates of woman suffrage, it is a pertinent inquiry. Why trouble the Legislature with the subject now? It wastes the time that is given to it, and it ends in making the movement seem even weaker than it is. Here is clearly a case of mistaken zeal; its result is the most mortifying defeat that the woman suffragists have had for many years. The agitators have had the fun of agitating, but it has been at the expense of the cause in which they have enlisted—a rather heavy price to pay for such amusement."

The work on the Hearst school building in Washington is now under way in connection with the cathedral. Mrs. Phoebe Hearst of San Francisco gave $175,000 for the erection of the building. It will be a cathedral school and the structure will be a very imposing one. The cathedral as planned will be the largest occupied in this country by that denomination.

NOTES AND EXCERPTS.

Despite all the discouraging things that have been said and written about Congressman Cannon and his wheel, he has, with a persistence born of heroic courage, stuck to his machine and answered sympathetic inquiries by his interested friends with the meekness of a martyr. "How are you getting along with your bicycle?" asked a member the other day. "Oh," said Cannon, "I'm making progress." "Is that so?" said his friend appearing interested, as Cannon made ready to define his advancement in the art of cycling. "Yes," resumed the Illinoisan, gravely, "I can spit, now, and pretty soon I expect to be able to raise my hat."

In New York the small shops that were opened two years ago for the sale of aluminum articles have grown into big stores and the trade is increasing every day. It is interesting to learn that novelties are being added all the time to their stock. When aluminum can be soldered, and when prices drop a few notches, cooks will be handling lighter kitchen utensils, and those people who now carry bags filled with all sorts of flasks and toilet articles will carry lighter loads.

In New York even dogs are pawned. In a place on Twenty-eighth street a lonely pug, separated from his fellows gazed wistfully at customers. "How much for that one?" asked a stranger as he pointed the pug. "Can't sell him until Monday night," replied the bird and dog dealer. The man wanted to know why, and he was informed that the pug was in pawn and if he wasn't redeemed prior to the time mentioned he would be sold. "That pug's been hocked three times and has always been redeemed. How much do I loan on him? A dollar's the limit, sir, as pugs are no longer popular, you know. When a woman puts her pet dog in pawn it is quite safe to conclude that the wolf has entered her apartment."

Of the three colleges for women at Oxford, England, Somerville is the only one that is strictly undenominational. There are about sixty-five students in the college. They are in charge of a principal and seven tutors. The cost of board, tuition and other expenses amounts to about $460 a year for those who occupy the best rooms.

Li Hung Chang is making arrangements to impress the western world with his wealth and power. He will travel with a suite and in a style that will testify to the grandeur of Oriental luxury. Li Hung Chang is an abstemious and simple man in his tastes, but he long ago learned the value of magnificence for impressing the crowd.

Dr Jameson is not attracting as much attention in England as he was a week ago, but he is still an object of great interest. He spends considerable time refusing proposals of marriage reaching him by mail. Publishers' agents are on his track at all times, eager to compel him to write a book. To cap the climax, he was offered a few days ago a large sum if he would exhibit himself for a week in a high-class museum.

At the Pasteur Institute in Paris 150 persons were treated last year, of whom but two died, the smallest proportion yet attained. In ten years 17,337 persons have been inoculated, 85 of whom died. Nearly a third of the patients last year came from Paris and its neighborhood.

Lord Rosebery is in great demand in England for after dinner speeches. It is seldom that Rosebery delivers an oration of much seriousness. He is playful, witty, sarcastic, but even in his political speeches the note of earnestness is not often struck. Rosebery, however, can be very effective when he does wax serious.

During the interchange of compliments at Cannes between Mr. Gladstone and President Faure of France, the latter asked the great Englishman if he found time hanging heavily upon his hands. "No," answered the Grand Old Man. "I follow very closely the affairs of my country. The man who has nothing to do is the most miserable being in existence—the most to be pitied."

In the researches he made while gathering statistics for his book on colonial furniture, the late Dr. Lyon came across a curious legend about the introduction of mahogany into England. It seems that a Dr. Gibbon, who was a London physician early in the seventeenth century, had some mahogany planks imported from the West Indies with the idea of grinding them up for use as a substitute for Peruvian bark, which was just gaining vogue as a medicine. Finding the wood unserviceable as medicine, he had a cabinet-maker construct a box of one of the planks, and the beautiful grain of the wood pleased him so that he had a bureau made of the same material. All London flocked to see it, and the wood came into immediate use among furniture makers.

Senator Proctor, of Vermont, is considered the most solemn looking man in the United States Senate. In this connection it may be remarked that he made his fortune in the manufacture of gravestones.

M. Faure, President of France, is taking great interest in the welfare of the French soldiers. A few days ago he visited the barracks of some of the regiments in Paris, went to the kitchens and ate some of the food which is furnished to the soldiers. He summoned at once the General and told him the food was not good enough. The President intends to see that it is better. M. Faure is exceedingly popular in the army.

The German Emperor wishes it distinctly understood that he takes music seriously. When recently serenaded by a band of the Uhlan regiment during the dinner he rose from the table and put the musicians right about. Then tenor, which he declared to be too slow. Since that occasion he has announced his intention of writing a pamphlet on "How to Conduct an Orchestra." Even the al fresco bands of music that play about Berlin are not safe from their Kaiser's critical ear, as he repeatedly sends the imperial servants out to them with requests that they tune their instruments and play in time.

When Count Herbert Bismarck telegraphed to his father, Prince Bismarck, that his latest baby was a girl, the Prince telegraphed back, "Have patience." Marie was only a girl." The Prince's first born, and then came two sons.

The committee which is to decide upon the monument to the memory of Pasteur, to be erected at Alais, has chosen the model furnished by M. Tony Noel. It is to be finished in July. The pedestal is to be about nine feet high, and the statue about eight. It will be unveiled with appropriate ceremonies in August.

There is considerable excitement at Butte, Montana, over the discovery that work has been begun on an oft-proposed and largely opposed project for driving mining tunnels in all directions under the city in order to take out the rich copper and silver ores known to exist there. It is said that the richest copper and silver ores in the Rocky Mountain country lie under the city. The principal vein discovered, known as the smokehouse lode, runs under the heart of the city from southeast to northwest, and over it are the City Hall, the County Court House, a big hotel, and several of the largest office buildings in the city. The purchasers of surveyed land in Butte have no title to the mineral underneath, the surface title only extending to a depth of forty feet. When the vein under the city was first discovered a wealthy mining man of Butte located almost the whole city as mining claims and fought his case in the courts to a successful conclusion. Now he has formed a company, and already a shaft is being sunk near the heart of the city, from which tunnels will be driven in every direction. Residents of Butte are greatly concerned about the probable effect of the mining operations on the big buildings situated over the proposed workings. The ore body is said to be larger and richer than that of the famous Anaconda mines.

Benjamin Hathaway, who was known in Michigan as the Cass county poet, died last week at Marcellus and was buried in a coffin made from a tree which he planted many years ago for that purpose. Two weeks ago he ordered the tree—a fine chestnut—cut down, and a portion of it made into a casket, according to his desires.

In New York the other day a dudish-looking Chinaman entered a Broadway car, heavily laden with packages. When seated his arms and lap were monopolized. The conductor came and held out hand, and the Chinaman grinned and wiggled his head as if to put it in the outstretched hand. "Fare, John," said the conductor. Then John thrust his head out further and further. "Hurry up fare," said the conductor, impatiently. At that the Chinaman let go the bundles with one hand, and, while they slid down, and rattled over the floor, he put his hand up to the side of his head and took a nickel out of his ear. That was where he had stored it, expecting the conductor to reach in and pry it out. But the conductor wasn't from Frisco.

At the Transvaal gold fields whisky brings $17.50 a bottle, champagne $12.50, and beer $1 a bottle.

In St Petersburg every bicyclist is obliged to have affixed to the bark of the machine a metal plate, on which the registered number is displayed in figures large enough to be eligible from a considerable distance.

It is said that the dowager empress of Germany contemplates residing permanently in England. As far as the German emperor is concerned the arrangement is said to be perfectly satisfactory—even more so. But the German chancellor has yet to give his consent, which is unlikely, unless the Empress Frederick consents to give up part of her German allowances. Queen Victoria with her proverbial thriftiness, refuses to consent to such an arrangement; and so the matter remains in statu quo. From England the Empress Frederick receives an allowance of $40,000 a year. But from Germany she receives "all told" a larger allowance than comes into the coffers of Queen Victoria as reigning soverign of England.

The law fixes the unity of value, but cannot fix the value of the unit, is the dictum of Congressman Galusha Grow, who illustrates his point by the story of a woodchopper on the banks of the Mississippi river, near the close of the rebellion. Hailed by a steamboat captain, who asked whether his wood was for sale, he answered: "Yes." The captain inquired: "How much a cord?" "How do you propose to pay?" "In Confederate money." "Then cord for cord."

He has never been in the habit of punishing his children leaving that disagreeable duty to his wife, but the other day one of his numerous progeny became very unruly and he was obliged to say: "Flora, if you don't keep quiet I shall have to whip you." "Pooh" retorted the little 3-year-old, with a contemptuous toss of her dainty head, "you isn't the mother."

REPUBLICANS ARE BUSY.

PRESIDENTIAL CAMPAIGNERS.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

ST. LOUIS, Mar 31.—The situation in a nutshell is this: Nobody will enter the convention with votes enough by about 100 or 150 to nominate him on the first, second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh, eighth, ninth, or tenth ballot. The nominee therefore will be a second choice man. McKinley leads today in the matter of instructions and will hold this lead. Allison is the strongest second choice and will gain in strength right along. I therefore predict Allison's nomination.

The speaker was Hon. James S. Clarkson of Iowa, member of the Republican National Committee, who is here with other members of the subcommittee looking after convention matters. Referring again to McKinley, Mr. Clarkson said:

"His campaign has been so conducted as to alienate all the second choice states, and for that reason he is today the weakest man in the race, conceding that he can not be nominated on the first ballot. I don't know a single delegation that will go to him when its candidate is dropped. On the other hand, Senator Allison is the second choice of nearly every state or district that has elected its delegates. Mr. Reed will have as much strength in the South as McKinley.

"I have just returned from a trip through the West," continued Mr. Clarkson. "In all the region west of Nebraska the sentiment is not unformed as to men. The people of the Pacific coast and mountain states are discussing a great issue—that of money and not men. They will send to St. Louis in June 80 or 100 delegates instructed solidly for silver, without reference to the views of any man on this great question. That a vote so massed will have to be reckoned with, and that seriously, nobody with pretensions to political foresight and acumen can doubt.

"It may be that Idaho, Montana, Nevada and Utah will send delegations to the Convention instructed for some pronounced free silver advocate, such as Teller or Cameron. In fact, I have been assured that that is what these states will do."

Secretary J. H. Manley was more reticent. When his attention was called to the latest estimate of McKinley's strength made at Washington by Gen. Grosvenor and published in a morning paper, in which the Ohioan was given 355 votes on the first ballot out of the total of 372 delegates elected up to Saturday night, he studied the figures closely for a long while and then said:

"This only shows that they are still claiming. They can claim all they want. What we want and what we are going to have are votes."

Senator Thomas Carter, chairman of the Republican National Committee, was asked:

"Is it true that you have discerned the premonitory rumbling of a boom for Don Cameron in the Northwest?"

"It's more than a premonitory rumbling. It's roaring. I believe we will get the votes not only of Montana and other Northwest states, but that the votes of the West generally will come to him naturally."

"Then you apprehend some trouble over the silver question at the St. Louis Convention?"

"Now that is an entirely different matter and one about which I will say nothing."

Col. William H. Hahn of Ohio professed to be unable to see how the opposition is to head off McKinley.

A meeting of this grand old Republican Club is called for Wednesday evening, April 1, 1896, at the old quarters in Elite Hall, corner Twelfth and Webster streets, Oakland, at 7:30 P. M. sharp. Every old member is expected to be present. The coming campaign will be one of the most important in the history of our country. An early organization means a grand victory. Come without fail and bring with you any citizens of your ward who believe in Republican principles and who will support Republican nominees.

By order of the Committee.

ED. L. JOHNSTON,
Secretary.

The call is making the members of the other clubs in the ward do some hard guessing. The rival organization was started about two weeks ago by J. M. Havens, Clarence Crowell and other prominent Republicans who prefixed to the name of the club "Regular." This is the title of the old ward club and its members do not relish having the honors taken from them. However, there is no hard feeling in the matter, as it is understood that there is plenty of room for two such organizations in the ward.

"The other club has no right to the title 'Regular Fifth Ward Republican Club,'" says Mr. Alexander, chairman of the original club. "The old Fifth Ward Club adjourned to the call of the chair and I have just issued that call as chairman.

"We have our records and our secretary, and the others have nothing to show for their existence except the call that was issued by several Republicans as private individuals. Our club will be reorganized for the campaign on Wednesday night."

Members of the other club feel that it is in the interests of the party to work together harmoniously and there is no probability of a clash.

In speaking of the matter Clarence Crowell says:

"We thought the other club had adjourned sine die, and as they were taking no steps to reorganize, Mr. Havens and about fifteen of the most prominent and staunch Republicans of the Fifth Ward issued the call and formed the new club which now has 200 members. It being the first club organized in the district we believe it can rightly claim the title of 'Regular' club."

On Thursday evening at Milton Hall is to be held an adjourned meeting of the Second Ward Republican Club. F. R. Porter, president. Orators and refreshments are to be features of the occasion. Among the speakers are to be F. A. Campbell, president of the Solid for 1894 club, and P. M. Fisher, president of the "Regular" club. It is intended to interest all the Republicans of the ward in a single club. Last Saturday evening a committee was appointed at a Milton Hall mass meeting, its province being to learn if the "old" club adjourned sine die at its last meeting many months ago. This committee, composed of F. R. Porter of the Executive Committee of the "old" club Maxime Smith, secretary of the P. M. Fisher club William Hart, J. S. Wixon and J. A. Colquhoun, will report at Thursday evening's meeting.

The First Ward Regular Republican Club has procured permanent headquarters at Hansen's Hall, corner Wood and Goss streets, where the next meeting will be held Wednesday evening, April 1st, when business of great importance will be transacted and reports of committees received.

The Republicans of the First Ward have come to the conclusion that there are numerous enough to have two clubs in that ward and, in accordance with that idea, those of them who reside in the eastern part of the ward will hold a meeting tonight in Kohler's Hall, corner of Seventh and Chester streets, to organize a club for that section. All Republicans in that section are requested to attend.

Claus Spreckels is going to Europe next month.

The members of the Political Equality Club have elected the following vice presidents: Mrs. J. C. Campbell, Mrs. G. W. Tripp, Mrs. E. S. Howard and Mrs. H. Vrooman. A treasurer will be chosen next Monday, when the organization will be completed. A number of new members were enrolled at the meeting yesterday. A meeting of the county society followed, at which it was announced that the ladies of East Oakland felt slighted that at least one of the parlor meetings announced for the coming week had not been appointed to their district. They were promised a meeting when Miss Anthony returns to this city in May.

Preparations are being pushed in San Francisco for the local Republican primary for the election of delegates to the State Convention.

"The County Committee will call the primary this week, and everything promises a quiet election," said Chairman Manwaring last evening. "No one who has not made special efforts to canvass the situation can realize, after the recent talk that has been going on, how loyally the people are standing together in support of John D. Spreckels and the policy he is carrying out. I have been about a great deal all over the city, and everywhere the people interested in party affairs realize that the coming primary will be one in which their votes will be honestly counted, that it will not be dominated by corrupt bosses, and that the party is on the high road to success in the National State and City. The party is going to pull together, and the campaign will be carried out without scandals and corrupt jobbery on the part of those in control."

The Auditing Committees have been named for the coming local elections at San Leandro.

The San Francisco Post last night published a statement that the railroad was going to support John D. Spreckels and his friends and the rumor set the politicians talking and wondering. So far the tracks of Steve Gage have not been discovered in the San Francisco political field, and while in the Second, Third and other Congressional districts the railroad hand and its victories have been plainly evident the relations of the railroad to the politics of the Fourth and Fifth districts have been mysteries about which people have been able to only guess and wonder. There has not yet been a move on the local checkerboard that has been ascribed to the railroad with the exception of the desperate and futile attempts of Kelly and Mahoney to get hold of something. Many have supposed that the railroad was quietly backing these two politicians.

What the railroad proposes to do in San Francisco remains as much of a mystery as ever. That it should decide to have nothing to do with Kelly and Mahoney is not strange, for the railroad's power could not now put vitality into that disreputable combination. John D. Spreckels said last evening that the report was all news to him.

"If the railroad is going to support the Republican organization I don't know it," he said, "but I will be glad to have all Republicans support the ticket, whether they are railroad men or not. I have had no conferences with railroad people and there is no agreement or understanding looking to their support. If the railroad wants to come in and support the Republican party without controlling it I suppose there will be no objection. That is all I know about the story."

James S. Clarkson, the great Republican political leader, in an interview says it is his opinion that the Pacific states should have a representation in the President's Cabinet. Mr. Clarkson's opinion is shared by every man on the coast.

A correspondent says: "The resolution adopted by a Democratic convention in Missouri on Saturday congratulating Cleveland on his ability as a duck shooter and expressing regret that he had not devoted more time to killing teal and less in issuing bonds have just enough of jest and earnest in them to be fully representative of the American humor of the day."

The Convention sub-committee of the Republican National Committee met in St. Louis yesterday. J. S. Clarkson of Iowa, Joseph H. Manley of Maine, Colonel William Hahn of Ohio, ex-Governor Joseph W. Fifer of Illinois, Senator Thomas Carter of Montana, General Powell Clayton of Arkansas, John M. Ewing of Wisconsin, proxy for Senator Payne, and Colonel R. C. Kerens of Missouri were present.

Each delegate will have three tickets, including his own, and the people from each State and Territory desiring admission to the convention will have to apply to the delegates to the convention from their respective states for tickets. The tickets for members of the Grand Army of the Republic will be given to the National Council of Administration and distributed by their directions. All tickets to the convention will be issued on Monday, June 15th, by the sergeant-at-arms at the convention building.

The Republican State Convention of New Hampshire meets today. The feeling at present is that the convention will instruct its St. Louis delegation for Reed. It is predicted by a few, however, that the delegation will not be instructed.

The Democratic State Central Committee yesterday decided to call the State and Congressional Conventions of Colorado for the selection of National delegates to meet in Denver April 15th. Senator Tillman of South Carolina is expected to be here at that time.

Dennis T. Flynn, who is serving his second term as delegate from Oklahoma to the House of Representatives, was renominated by acclamation by the Republican Territorial Convention held in Kingfisher yesterday.

Cyrus Leland, Jr. will be candidate for chairman of the Republican National Committee and it is claimed by his friends in Kansas that he has consented to stand for the position at the request of William McKinley, who wishes him to manage the campaign in case of his nomination for the Presidency. Leland has been a member of the National Committee from Kansas for twelve years and the State Convention instructed the delegation to St. Louis Convention to elect him for another term. He was chairman of the Republican State Central Committee and redeemed the State two years ago from Populist rule.

Ex-Governor of Ohio Campbell would like the compliment of the solid vote of Ohio's delegation in the National Democratic Convention for President. Yesterday he said: "I am not a candidate for President this year, for I do not believe that any Democrat can be elected in November. It is unjust, but nevertheless true, that the people blame the Democratic party for the hard times and that will beat us. However, it would be pleasant, and a great honor besides, to receive the complimentary vote of the Ohio delegation, and if the boys want to give it to me I shall not object."

AN APPEAL FOR AID.

Thousands in the Throes of Tobacco Torture.

Only Prompt, Decisive Action Can Save Them—Some Already Saved Prove That There Is a Way.

Is everybody out of bondage?

Would that we could answer, "Yes! Everybody's free!"

But in fact at the end of this enlightened century, there are hundreds of thousands, yes millions of men in the clutches of a tyrant worse than any in history, unable to fight their way to liberty, impotent to break their fetters.

When once the tobacco habit gets its grip on a man, it destroys his nerve and will power, and robs him of his only means of defense. His life is sapped out of him, his manhood destroyed, his brain deadened until he becomes a sallow, skinny, listless wreck of a man, his existence a living death, and himself an object of disgust instead of love and affection to those who are dear to him.

Every day the hold grows stronger and demands more victims. Many are in the last stages of tobacco poisoning, others are only beginning to get into the first.

All need help, at once, without delay.

Is there no hope?

There is. Only one—No-To-Bac—the wonderful guaranteed medicine. Even after years of slavery, No-To-Bac cures without fail. Nobody's case could be worse than the following.

WAS A BIG BONFIRE.

The Pioneer Planing Mills and the Adjoining Structures Burned.

A STIFF WIND BLOWING.

MANY LANDMARKS DESTROYED.

The Losses in the Thousands and the Insurance Light.

A fire broke out shortly before 7o clock last evening in the engine room of the old Pioneer planing mill at Broadway and First streets and before the flames could be checked the mill building and all of the little rookeries south of it were burned to the ground. Next to the last burned shanty is Taylor's lumber yard and only by vigorous work were the firemen able to save this from destruction.

The alarm came in from box 2 and the department quickly responded. A second alarm was sent in a few minutes later and soon every engine in the city had a stream playing on the fire. But the odds were against the department. The north wind was high and the buildings little more than tinder boxes, so that the firemen could do nothing beyond saving the adjacent property. Several times the buildings across Broadway and First street threatened to break into flames, but a stream promptly turned on them saved a spreading of the conflagration.

The first building to go was the old mill. It was one of the first structures in Oakland, having been erected in 1852 by George Barnes and later was conducted by ex-Mayor Blethen and Terry. T. L. Hierlihy of Alameda was their successor. He could not make the business pay and turned it over to Judson McCully, its last proprietor. McCully had sub-let a portion of the building to the Oakland Sash & Door Co., of which D. C. Bridgeman is president. The building was owned by the Kramm estate.

In the line came the Twin Brothers mush establishment, the American Boiler Works, a restaurant kept by Mrs. E. Dubolce, the Cottage saloon and restaurant, H. Cupper's saloon and a news and tobacco stand kept by Henry Brantes, all of which were left a smouldering pile.

The total loss by the fire is about $30,000, with insurance very low. The mill company was the heaviest losers, their property being probably worth $25,000. Taylor & Co.'s lumber was damaged to the extent of about $1,000, fully insured. The Sash and Door factory lost about $1,000, among other things being a valuable team of horses.

The frame shanties were worth perhaps $3,000 and were owned mostly by the Adams estate.

All of the buildings were landmarks. In one of them met the first city council which ever convened in Oakland, and at one of their meetings a matter of business was transacted that has the city now in litigation. It was the deeding to Horace Carpentier of the water front.

Though there were fully 10,000 people at the fire the crowd was very orderly and the police had little trouble in keeping them behind the fire ropes.

Accidents to firemen were very few. F. J. Sheehan of truck No. 3 was struck by a stream of water and thrown from a lumber pile sustaining a sprained hand and other slight injuries.

A. T. York, extraman of engine No. 3, had his ankle cut by a falling telegraph pole.

Walter Williams, a spectator, got tangled up in some barbed wire and was slightly cut about the feet.

An unknown woman fainted from excitement and was escorted to her home by Officer Phillips, while the rest of the unfortunates had their wounds dressed at the Receiving Hospital.

The crew of the steamer Newark saved the boat from a possible scorching by running it out into the stream.

PRAISE FOR THE FIREMEN.

In connection with the fire the following letter was handed to the Tribune this morning by an admirer of the department.

"I wish to bestow great credit on the Oakland Fire Department and especially on their young chief for the work accomplished by them last night.

"When one considers what a windy night it was and taking everything in consideration, he cannot help but give the boys credit for getting the flames under their control in so short a time.

"I have served my time as a fireman in New York, San Francisco and Alameda. Respectfully yours,

CHARLES STURM,

A Berry Train.

A special train is to be put on between Watsonville and Oakland during the berry season. It will leave Santa Cruz daily about 4 P. M., reaching Watsonville about 5 or 5:30 P. M., San Jose about 9 or 10 P. M., and then over the coast division to San Francisco, arriving about 1 A. M. The freight will then be brought over here on ferry-boats.

JURGENS MAKES REPLY.

He Gives a Statement of the Facts in the Mrs. Jones Case.

She Has Been a Bad Tenant and He Helped Her All He Could.

Charles Jurgens objects strongly to a publication in a morning paper that he has adopted hard-handed methods regarding Mrs. Matilda J. Jones of 216 San Pablo avenue. He has attached her store and that is the point at issue. In connection with the matter he makes the following statement:

"She has always been behind in the payment of her rent, and Mr. Jurgens was lenient with her and delayed the payment as long as he could.

"In May, 1895, she was behind six months, and he took her note for $120, the rent due, and allowed her to remain. She is now behind over four months, making ten months in all, and it became necessary for him to do something to settle the matter in some way.

"He called on her repeatedly and tried to get a settlement but could not. He offered to give her a store around the corner not a hundred feet from where she now is for one-half her rent, but she refused to go, and she refused to give her a store and living-room at Temescal for $6 per month, and took her out and showed her the place. But she refused to go, and she refused to move out, or settle, or do anything. On top of all this she deeded her property consisting of several pieces of land to a third person, so he, to protect himself, called upon S. B. McKee, the attorney, and commenced a suit for $171, the amount due him.

"Mr. Jurgens says he has done everything in his power to help this woman. He has been patient, lenient and kind, and was only forced to take this measure by his inability to settle the matter in any other way."

A Mysterious Stranger.

A New Year's morning in the little mountain hamlet of A—— The town church was filled with worshipers. The rector had just ascended the pulpit to deliver his sermon and to remind his parishioners of the importance of the day, when suddenly his sharp eye made the discovery that a stranger was seated among his audience a man, whom—he was sure of that—he had never seen there before.

Whether from design or accident, the stranger had seated himself on the bench reserved for the town officers and men of rank, and was curiously gazed at by his neighbors. Nobody had taken a seat close beside him as though fearing to molest so distinguished appearing a man, in spite of the fact that the little edifice was crowded.

A strange face among his parishioners was a very rare thing for the good rector, who had baptized and confirmed the majority of them and while not in the habit of judging people by their looks he could not help noticing from his vantage ground on the pulpit that the man was very becomingly and richly attired.

However the rector did not allow the stranger's presence to interfere with his duties. He delivered his sermon, admonishing his hearers not to be forgetful of the teachings of Christ, the lesson of his coming and sufferings, and the joys and miseries which are our portion in each succeeding year.

By the time he had reached his house the rector had almost forgotten the existence of the stranger. But the man had also been noticed by his wife who did not fail to point on the circumstance to him. They exchanged a few casual remarks about the probable cause that had brought the stranger to their out-of-the-way little mountain town on New Year's day of all days. Surely it was not the architectural value of their little church, for it possessed none; therefore the rector's wife formed the pleasing conclusion that he had somehow heard of the oratorical talent of her husband, and had come to hear him preach the New Year's sermon. He may have been, so she argued (the wish is ever the father of the thought), sent by the synod to satisfy himself from personal observation of the rector's abilities and so forth, all of which her husband modestly refuted.

Pretty soon New Year's callers began to put in their appearance and once more the rector discarded all thoughts of the fascinating stranger. Later the sexton arrived, having some commissions to execute and business matters to talk over.

This done, he remained at the door, twisting his hat in his fingers, making sundry unsuccessful attempts to say something. He cleared his throat, and finally summed up sufficient courage to ask: 'Pastor have you noticed that we had an incognito living and in the flesh in our church to-day?'

'Certainly, I have,' responded the rector. 'I dare say you mean a stranger, clad in a silver-gray coat?'

'Yes, yes—something truly noble.'

'Both.'

'Do you mean to insinuate that the stranger is traveling under an assumed name?'

'That is just it. An assumed name that nobody knows.'

'You mean a name that you do not know?'

'Well, I dare say. But our count is apt to know it.'

'Timid?' you feel, 'intimate,' not timid. But I hardly think so. He was not in the count's pew.'

'What of it, rector.' There is a secret connected with his appearance here, I tell you. They did not come to church together it is true. First came Mr. Incognito, and three minutes later the count. When he beheld the stranger he looked somewhat surprised and taken aback as though he meant to say 'Keep it dark.' He then smiled very pleasantly and passed by to his pew. Mr. Incognito smiles also, no doubt meaning, 'All right, count, we understand each other.' After the service the count smiles again when passing the stranger, who in return, made a polite obeisance, looking knowingly at the pulpit and vestry, as if to say, 'Your judgment agrees, count.' * * * Well, you are aware that the count thinks a great deal of your reverence.'

'Not so fast, you sly fox. Tell me first how you have discovered that our count knows more of this mysterious stranger. A mutual exchange of greetings alone may be purely accidental, you know.'

'It was no difficult matter to ferret that out, rector. The mysterious stranger remained behind after the congregation had dispersed and asked me to show him the few things worth seeing. He had nothing to say and merely glanced at everything in a superficial manner, with the exception of the covers of our pulpit and baptismal font, which he inspected very closely. Finally I summoned up courage to tell him that while there was not much to be seen in the church, the count's castle contained many gems of art; whereupon he answered that he had had a consequence with the count an hour ago.'

'"Conference," you idiot; not "consequence."'

'Well, then, "conference." He gave me a bountiful coucur and asked the way to the station.'

'All right. I understand now.'

The sexton left. Hardly had he disappeared when the station master was announced. The rector was surprised that the busy officer should have found time to pay him a New Year's call, but he received him affably.

After an exchange of the usual commonplaces the railroad man remarked in an offhand manner: 'Are you aware rector, that a princely personage has honored our humble place with a short visit this morning, returning to the capital after a hasty consultation with the count and a visit to the church.'

'The prince' answered the station master 'arrived on the morning train and proceeded on foot to the castle. There he and the count had been in consultation. Later, he had been to church, returning to the city on the 11:29 o'clock train. I heard these details from one of the count's servants, who took the same train for a visit to his sister. This servant, be it understood, has the aristocratic habit of traveling second-class for short distances, which, I must confess, was an impertinence, considering the august presence of the prince. But what could I do? Pacing up and down near the ticket office, the prince could not help hearing what was going on. He stepped up to the window and asked me to exchange his second-class ticket for one of the first-class, offering the money for the difference. This I was not in a condition to do, as the train in question does not carry first-class compartments. The prince was greatly annoyed, and, though I am innocent, I know he will make me suffer for his inconvenience. All I could do was to order the conductor to place his highness in a reserved compartment by himself.'

At the dinner table he communicated ed the observations of the latter and of the sexton to his astonished wife. The more both compared notes the more grew the importance of the mysterious stranger, and his wife insisted that the prince had come to convey momentous news to the count from the court where the latter was greatly liked. Even the usually calm and collected rector finally agreed that this unexpected journey on a New Year's morning must have been of consequence. He brought to mind again the contents of his sermon, but his conscience was clear, and he could detect no sentence, nor word, that might be construed against the court or the reigning house. One thing only troubled him. Had the prince in the silver-gray coat been a messenger of peace or war for their little borough?

When his official duties of the day had been discharged the rector, accompanied by his wife, paid the usual New Year's call at the castle to offer the compliments of the season.

Though they tried hard to appear unconcerned, the count and his countess were preoccupied. In spite of all efforts, dedicated by their innate delicacy of feeling, both would now and then show an unusual absent mindedness, nor were they always able to hide their suppressed excitement. The count would look through the window toward the road leading to the station, as though anxiously expecting something, and the countess would now and then stop in the middle of a sentence or lose the thread of her conversation and then try hard to collect herself. Hosts and callers felt the awkward situation. It was as though the spirit of the mysterious stranger was present with them clad in the ominous silver-gray great coat putting to flight their usual conviviality.

At length the rector's wife could stand this unnatural state of affairs no longer. As unconcernedly as possible, she asked, 'Is it true, countess, that you have had a visitor from the capital early this morning?'

The countess exchanged a questioning look with her husband before she replied: 'No, not I, at least the visit was paid to the count, but then——I don t——'

'Why your caller, to be sure.'

The count smiled his stereotyped smile. 'A prince, my dear rector, if you please, a prince and one who serves an all-powerful autocratic mistress'"

'In fact,' resumed the count, 'his serene highness has done you more honor than myself, rector, for he spent an entire hour listening to your sermon, while to me he gave but fifteen minutes.'

'Then I suppose I owe it to you, count, that the prince visited our little church during his short stay?'

'If you like, yes rector. He ascertained accidentally from one of my servants that I would go to church, and, I dare say, he also meant to set a good example. But, what is of more importance, your prince brought me good news and I would gladly satisfy your curiosity.'

'Not at all, not at all, gracious sir; do not misinterpret my query.'

'It is not that, rector. We would not keep you waiting were we not ourselves still on the anxious seat as it were.'

Just then a servant appeared, presenting a telegram to his master, who opened and read it, handing it to the countess.

At last'" she exclaimed, after glancing at its contents. "But it is strange that this gentleman—the prince, I beg his pardon—should have heard of it before your father knew anything about it.'

'The rector and his wife were preparing to leave. They had no indelicate desire to impose their presence upon the noble couple, perceiving that there was a secret. Undoubtedly the stranger, having in the meantime reached the capital had sent that message.

'No, indeed,' remonstrated the count, 'you stay right here. There is no more necessity for secrecy if ever there was. My father's telegram merely confirms the glad tidings which I had received early this morning unofficially. I have been made a court chamberlain.'

'Permit us to offer our heartiest congratulations,' quickly exclaimed the rector. 'The new year begins auspiciously for you, count.'

'I am highly honored,' responded the latter, 'and greatly pleased.'

'No doubt your new dignity has worries and troubles of its own that will keep you from home a great deal?'

'I dare say and the first among them is the important question where to get the required uniform for my immediate appearance at court, whither I have been ordered for an audience.'

'I understand perfectly that such official dignities are not without their inconvenient formalities that one has to put up with; but the prince——'

'Has called on me just on account of this very chamberlain's uniform. He must have left home in the middle of the night to be in time.'

'Did he really come for the sole purpose of instructing you in the new ceremonies to be observed by you? How very considerate of him.'

'He came solely on account of my new uniforms I tell you. His aim was not to be outdone by anybody else. Yes very kind of him.'

'Was he a messenger from court?'

'No, not exactly that, my dear rector. He came on his own responsibility.'

'But, count, if I may make so bold to ask, who in the name of all that is mysterious was this prince of yours?'

'I will not keep you in suspense,' replied the host. 'The mysterious stranger has left his card behind. Here it is.'

The pastor took the elegant piece of pasteboard and read aloud: 'Fridolin, Tailor to the Court of ——.'—From the German.

She probably read all the trash the San Francisco papers published about the scandal, and the good Lord knows that was enough to drive anybody crazy.—Napa Journal.

The fool-killer missed his aim in Oakland last Wednesday night and a man named Casey survives in consequence. The fool-killer is a saloon keeper named Cotti and Casey thought he'd have fun with him. He put on false whiskers, took a big revolver in each hand and slipping into the saloon, demanded Cotti's money, while half a dozen of Casey's friends were present to see the fun. Cotti yelled "I will!" and bent down behind the counter as if to get his cash, but got a revolver instead and fired. The bullet whizzed so close to Casey's ear that it knocked him down and he, too, yelled: "Don't shoot any more, Cotti," and he pulled off the false beard. "Don't shoot for the Lord's sake. I was only joking. I'm Casey." Cotti put away his gun and, with the aid of Casey's friends, helped the joker to bed, where he is suffering from nervous prostration. The joke was quite as good as if it had been carried out as planned, but Casey's friends failed to laugh at it. They are of the class of fools who want their jokes to go as scheduled, but other people enjoy it almost as well as if the aim of the fool-killer had been true.—Stockton Independent.

HOW HE BEATS PULLMAN.

This Crafty Drummer Travels as the Guest of Some Fellow-Passenger.

"Train No. 1 on the Northern Pacific railroad was approaching the Bad lands from the east, the rear door of one of the standard Pullman cars was opened by a man who seemed to be in a hurry. He approached a passenger, who was gazing out of the window, according to a story in the New York Press.

"I'm a New York drummer," said the man to the fat passenger, "and I want to sit down here with you for a few minutes."

"Will it cost me anything?" inquired the passenger.

"Not a cent."

"All right, sit down then."

"Have you a sleeping car ticket?" he demanded of the man who said he was a drummer.

"I am the guest of my friend here," the drummer answered quickly.

The conductor passed on, after looking at the man in an incredulous way for fully half a minute.

"What's your scheme?" asked the fat passenger.

"I'll tell you all about it," began the drummer, confidentially. "You see I sell goods for a New York house and travel across the country several times in the course of the year. If I ride in a Pullman car it costs me about $4 a day. I am a financier in a humble way, and so I go to bed at night and pay the regular fare of $2. In the day I slip into a Pullman car and become the guest of some good fellow like yourself. By this method of financiering I make $2 every day for I change up the whole $8 to the house. At the end of the year I have made $[illegible]."

"Do I get any of this $2," asked the fat man, to pay for being a guest. "My company is worth something. By the way do you see that steep bank on the side of the hill where it looks like marble cake? Well, that is the dividing line between central and mountain time. Here is where you turn your watch back just one hour. Since I am your guest I will extend the courtesies of my diversified knowledge."—Chicago Record.

GOOD ADVICE SOMETIMES.

But in This Particular Case It Turned Out Disastrously.

"I'd like to speak to you a minute," he said as he met a patrolman at the corner of Michigan avenue and Wayne street the other evening, says the Detroit Free Press.

"All right. What is it?"

"About six months ago I met you down by the City Hall one afternoon."

"Well?"

"Yes."

"When you found I was going to be married you laid your hand on my shoulder in a fatherly way, and said: 'Young man, pause and reflect.' Do you remember?"

"Yes, I think I do."

"Well, your words struck home. I paused and reflected. I did not get a license."

"No."

"And I didn't get married."

"You didn't, eh! Well, I am glad if advice of mine prevented you from taking a step which you might ever thereafter regret. Did you want any more advice?"

"Well, yes. The girl sued me for breach of promise and got a verdict of $2,000, and cleaned me out of my last cent and all I can earn for the next five years to come. Maybe you want to lay your fatherly hand on my shoulder and give me some more wisdom."

"Young man," said the officer as he slid his fingers along up his coat sleeve until they rested on his collar, "you move on."

Was affected last night by experienced men.

It occurred in the mammoth furniture and carpet stores of J. L. Lyon & Son 1250-52 Broadway, corner Fifteenth street. The combination on prices was first price off and then the prices were blown clean out of the question. Don't buy anything before calling on them.

FLOWER FESTIVALS FIESTAS, ROSE CARNIVALS,

and the like, will be the delight of California for the next two or three months.

Santa Barbara Flower Festival, the fame of which is world-wide, and the glory of which, like that of Solomon, is not half told, opens April 15th. Queen Flora will reign 3 days an arbitrary and absolute despot.

La Fiesta de Los Angeles, now fixed in the chronology of California feasts, and not less illustrious than older prototypes, commences April 22nd, and the riot of fun will spread over 4 days.

The Carnival of Roses, to take place in San Jose, May 6th to 9th, inclusive, though a more recent candidate for favors of the fun-loving world, yet because of the limitless possibilities of the Garden City for anything that is made of roses, is quite as full of promise.

Many years ago Barney Barnato rented a little house in one of the frontier towns of South Africa. Barney spent considerable in improving the house, but he quarreled with his landlord and decided to move. By inserting the following advertisement in the local paper the prospective millionaire in some measure got even with his landlord: "Wanted by a gentleman who agreed to leave the dwelling occupied by him in the condition in which he found it, 100,000 lively black beetles." Then followed Barney's name and address.

ROAD MATTERS COME UP.

District Changes Are Handled by the Board of Supervisors.

The Ballard License Affair is Finally Disposed of by Resolution.

After the Tribune went to press yesterday the Board of Supervisors unanimously passed the resolution rescinding their action in appointing J. W. Ballard license collector. It took some time to properly frame the resolution and when it was read Supervisor Church moved its adoption, saying:

"It is rather an unpleasant duty, but I suppose, according to law, it must be done."

Supervisor Pelouze wanted to know if the county could allow the Tax Collector a commission on collections, but Deputy District Attorney Church informed him it could not be done.

Acting on the suggestion of Attorney Church a motion prevailed to draft a suitable ordinance governing the Tax Collector and providing for his collection of the money due. The matter was referred to the District Attorney to prepare the ordinance.

The Dumbarton Land and Improvement company wanted a certificate from the Board stating that the company had shown to the Board's satisfaction that the necessary amount of money required by law had been expended in the reclamation of its land. The Supervisors not wanting to act blindly, laid the matter over for one week so that they could personally inspect the premises.

The residents about Decoto petitioned for the formation of a new road district to be known as the Decoto Road District. The petition was signed by J. C. Whipple et al., and after brief consideration was granted.

Supervisor Church then stated that as there was now a new district there should also be a new road master. After obtaining permission from Supervisor Bailey, who has charge of that district, Mr. Church proposed the name of Edwin Whipple for the position. He was unanimously elected, after Mr. Bailey had expressed it as his wish that the appointment be made.

The representation for a new publication, descriptive of Alameda county, asked the Supervisors for their photographs in order to publish cuts of the officials. His request will be complied with.

The Board then adjourned until 10 o'clock next Monday.

THE GOSPEL OF HATE.

Hate England? Hate our kith and kin
That speak our common mother-tongue,
The speech that Hampden thundered in,
The tones that Burns and Milton sung?

Hate England? Hate our ancient home,
Whose every acre knows a story,
From Caithness' crags to Cornwall's foam,
Of Keltic pluck and Saxon glory?

Hate England? Hate land of Vane
Of Cromwell, Chatham, Wellington,
Of Wesley, Howard, Mill, and Bain,
Of Dickens, Scott, and Tennyson?

But who is this that preaches Hate?—
I think we know the accents well—
The fallen archangel of our state,
The scoffing civic infidel.

Who built a great renown of spite
Who called the Christian statesman fool,
And cast away the Golden Rule.

So while the bells of Christendom
Tell earthly homes and empyrean,
That Christ, the Prince of Peace, is come,
The lowly, loving Galilean,

A new Messiah clears his throat,
Bad tidings of great woe to tell,
And utters wild discordant note,
The Gospel of the reign of Hell.

While thoughtless followers mid the murk
Of promised war, revise the strain,
Peace e'en to the unspeakable Turk,
Good will to all but Englishmen.

Hate bullying? Aye hate greed? Amen.
Hate tyranny and wrong? Forever,
In Briton or American—
But hate all England? Shame! No, never!

Hate lust for land, and hate no less
The greed that seeks its gain in gore;
Stand fast, as England's taught us, yes,

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed There is comfort in the knowledge that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative Syrup of Figs promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the organs on which it acts It is the first all important, in order to get its beneficial effects to note when you purchase that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co only and sold by all reputable druggists

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular laxatives or other remedies are then not needed If afflicted with any actual disease one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative one should have the best, and with the well informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction

HOW TO MAKE SALAD.

Always Serve as Quickly as Possible After the Mixing Is Done

From the Philadelphia Public Ledger In no part of his dinner does a chef show his skill more clearly than in his salads and in nothing is the change, in dining ideas more marked than in our appreciation of his chef d'oeuvres. The story is told of a French marquis who during troublous times in France made his escape to London and earned there a handsome income as a salad [illegible] He actually had a bill filled up with cries of condiments and olive from my Lord This to my Lord that daily arriving just in time to make the salad The best salad from my dinner is a French bean and its native land people [illegible] to eat it at home must be made by [illegible] We have not realized fully that it is a dish for [illegible] as well as [illegible] [illegible] Nothing [illegible] [illegible] cold meat but the [illegible] mutton or veal can be [illegible] than a good salad with a good dressing, and it may be asserted that no vegetable grows that may not be used for this purpose There are however one or two points about it might be well to explain to the amateur cook

To begin with except in the case of the Russian or Italian salad (practically variantes of the same original [illegible]) the number of vegetables in the salad should be limited Now this is a rule that cannot be too strongly enforced in our kitchens where mistress and maid alike appear unable to realize that a dish called by a certain name and prepared with certain ingredients must taste of those ingredients and not have what should be the preponderating flavor spoiled by a mixture of many This error is however especially noticeable in salad where for instance in what is often called a French salad one composed of lettuce and cress little needs indeed but smothering by the strong taste of [illegible] chives mustard and cress etc Moreover there is right as well as a wrong of preparing the dressing of oil vinegar salt and pepper Here is a method pursued by a well known French chef and recommended by him Beat up a good dust of freshly ground black pepper and salt to taste in two tablespoonfuls of vinegar (either plain or perfumed with any flavor such as celery tarragon schalot etc you please) and when these have been well amalgamated turn into the mixture four tablespoonfuls of salad oil beating it all well together Now lay in the material for the salad lettuce, etc and with a fork and spoon lift and toss it well together working it till each piece is thoroughly impregnated with the dressing then with the salad servers lift the vegetable into the salad dish You will find at the bottom of the first bowl—especially if the salad is of lettuce—a quantity of watery liquid which must be thrown away It mixed at first in the salad bowl this liquid would have been at the bottom and would have given the wishy washy odder taste so often mentioned in crossly made salads For winter use if economy has to be studied our salads must depend with the exception of celery and tomatoes on cooked vegetables and of these all kinds may be utilized whether fresh or canned Amongst the latter may be mentioned asparagus artichoke bottoms string beans Indian corn and the ever useful macedoine Remember when using canned goods always to drain them in the dressing Also have ready the finely minced herbs known in France as the fourniture consisting of chives parsley or chervil tarragon etc to sprinkle on just at the last as a finish Salad should be served as soon after it is mixed as possible

A BRIDGE ACROSS THE BAY.

Oakland and San Francisco to Be Connected by a Number of High Steel Spans.

AN OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT OF THE PROJECT.

Instead of a Tedious Ferry Ride the Trip Will Be Made in Ten Minutes.

ROOM FOR ALL TRAINS.

Some Unexpected Developments at the Meeting Regarding the Estuary Issue.

At the meeting in San Francisco today, in the office of Col. Suter of the United States Engineering Department, of those interested in the changing of the estuary bridges, it was announced that a plan is being considered to construct a high bridge from Oakland to San Francisco. It will consist of several 150 foot draws, two 1000 foot spans and ten 500 foot spans. It was announced that the running time from Oakland to San Francisco will then be ten minutes.

(Special to the Tribune.)

SAN FRANCISCO, Mar. 31.—This morning the hearing of testimony concerning the Oakland bridges was continued in the office of the United States Engineer Corps, 533 Kearney street, San Francisco.

Colonel Suter this time presided, assisted by Lieut. J. E. Kuhn.

The members of the Alameda County Board of Supervisors were not present. Mayor Davie, John R. Glascock, District Attorney Charles Snook, W. G. Curtis, Mr. McMullen, of the San Francisco Bridge Company and other interested persons were on hand.

The first testimony taken was in the form of a petition signed by eighty-six vessel owners and captains plying between Oakland and San Francisco. Their report was as follows:

"We, the undersigned sailing masters and captains doing business on San Francisco bay and the Oakland estuary respectfully recommend that the War Department of the United States have the draw openings widened to at least 150 feet and that one bridge be constructed in place of the two now in position.

"We beg to inform you that the openings of the draws of said bridges are too narrow and very dangerous to navigation, we knowing of many instances where great damage has been done to shipping on account of such draws.

"We have constantly been annoyed by being delayed on account of the bridge tenders not opening the bridges in time because of waiting for railroad trains and street cars to pass over, when in fact such trains are not within sight of the bridges, and also the method of opening said bridges is very slow, thereby causing delay and danger to our shipping.

"We petition to have one bridge in place of the two on account of the fact that between the bridges navigation is very dangerous on account of the width of the channel, and the close proximity of said bridges and the long time it takes to operate them.

"The bridges are controlled by the man stationed in the signal tower several blocks away from them and the bridge tender will some times partly open the draw for us and when we are approaching he will receive a contrary order from the tower man and close the bridge in the face of our fast approaching shipping, thereby causing delay and damage.

"We urgently request that the matter be attended to as soon as possible and thus remove the dangers and obstructions from the Oakland estuary so as to allow us free and unobstructed entrance to the many wharves of said estuary."

This petition is signed by about eighty-five ship owners and captains among whom are E. Pederson, Capt. S. N. Sanderson, J. P. Michelson, Albert Sims, Peter Jessen, P. C. Munemann, Charles Wallin, M. Meyers, H. Behrens, M. M. Jennings, Leopold Frederick, Capt. G. W. Freethy, Capt. P. H. Tonner, John Lavin, George Hoffner, P. A. Johnson, John Hanna, Daniel Short, J. C. Beck, George Graham, Capt. Wilman, R. Wheeler, E. D. Wheelan, L. Foard, D. H. Haskell, C. Randall, C. D. Cook, and many others.

DAVIE'S VIEWS.

Mayor Davie presented a typewritten document embodying the same ideas as submitted verbally at the last meeting. He advocates but one bridge, built as near the geographical centers of Alameda and Oakland as possible. Oak street he thinks would be a proper location, as the land is desirable there, though in his opinion a brige even further east would be advisable. He suggested that the approach be constructed adjoining the property of the California Development Company near Oak street.

In the document the Mayor recounted his personal experiences while a shipping man showed that the two bridges had been a detriment not only to his shipping interest, but also to others.

Capt. Johnson stated that he had been plying between the two bridges for years and on three occasions he had tried to get through the bridges but was unable, as the bridge-tenders refused to open them. On these occasions he was obliged to drop anchor thereby causing much delay and once damaging his vessel materially by striking the bridge. He cited the case of several ship owners who had sustained damages amounting variously from $100 to $200.

Captain Peterson next said that he had been caused much inconvenience by the bridges. Recently he had signalled to open the bridge and had received the signal from the tenders to come on. The draw had been opened slightly and he was proceeding, when he was told to go back and the draw was closed. This was because the bridge failed to work properly. In consequence he was obliged to sheer his schooner and, in doing so, he not only collided with the "Nora M." and the "Dolphin," but also the bridge. This smashed things up generally and cost him much money.

THE RAILROAD'S OFFER.

A communication was received from the Southern Pacific Company, stating that the Alice-street bridge is owned by the Central Pacific Company and under lease to the Southern Pacific Company. It further stated that the company was willing to rebuild the Alice-street bridge and to consolidate its tracks there, changing the base of operations of the narrow-gauge train to Alice street. The railroad, however, wanted until December 1, 1897, to complete the structure, and did not think it necessary to construct a 150-foot draw.

With regard to the Webster-street bridge the statement was made that the right-of-way is leased from the South Pacific Coast Company from the Southern Pacific Company. The railroad does not object to changing the method of operation of draws.

A BIG PROJECT.

Lyman Bridges of the San Francisco Terminal Company spoke for it when he stated that a proposition was on foot to construct a series of suspension spans across the bay from Oakland to San Francisco. This would be located in Oakland at Peralta street and would accommodate all trains connected with the system. This it is contended would reduce the running time to San Francisco to ten minutes instead of the way it is at present.

They calculated to have several 150-foot draws and also two 1000-foot spans as well as ten 500-foot spans.

A communication was also presented by Edson Adams as president of the California Development Company, which stated that the company owns over 1000 feet of wharves and has filled in over forty acres of land adjacent to these bridges. It is the request of the company that the obstructions be removed at as early a date as possible and a single structure take their place.

Mr. Glascock requested the privilege of questioning Mr. Curtis.

"What rules are the company working under," he said, "with regard to the rights of way of the trains and vessels?"

Curtis—"The vessels always are to have the right of way when practicable, but the bridge-tenders must use their judgment."

Glascock—"Don't you know it is a fact that vessels are frequently held when the train is over three-quarters of a mile away.

Curtis—"I don't know so, nor do I think such is a fact. If it has happened it has never been brought to the attention of the company."

Mayor Davie then referred to several incidents in the past concerning the operation of the bridges and Mr. Curtis replied:

"There has been a good many things that have not been entirely friendly between the Oakland people and the railroad in the past, but I want it understood that the railroad company is acting entirely in good faith in this matter, statements on the street corners notwithstanding."

Colonel Suter asked if there was any concerted system of signals between the bridges and thought that the worst cause of complaint was when vessels became imprisoned between the two. Mr. Curtis replied that there was no system but he thought one could be easily arranged. He said the railroad was willing, and Attorney Snook stated that the county was also ready in that respect.

District Attorney Snook stated that before the Supervisors could take any action with regard to making permanent alterations they must wait for some action of the Legislature. As it now stands he contended the Board was powerless.

Col. Suter thought one bridge the only solution and Mr Glascock suggested it be placed at Fallon street.

Mr. McMullen of the San Francisco Bridge Co., stated that he represented 1000 feet of land on the estuary and he thought the idea of waiting for the Legislature was absurd. He contended that the War Department should order the bridges removed.

After considerable discussion the meeting adjourned sine die, without having transacted any business whatever with the exception of taking testimony.

The evidence will now be sent to the Secretary of War with the recommendation from the San Francisco office that but one structure be placed in the stead of two.

THE DIVORCE IS ASKED.

Mrs. Crowley Brings Suit on Two Statutory Charges.

She Asks for the Two Children and $250 a Month Alimony.

This morning a petition for divorce from her husband, Dr D. D. Crowley, the well known physician and surgeon, was filed in the Superior Court by Mrs. Alma E. Crowley.

The annulment of the marriage is sought on the dual grounds of adultery and cruelty. The petitioner asks for the custody of the two minor children and alimony at the rate of $250 a month. She had previously filed a homestead on the family residence 1261 Alice street. This filing took place on the morning of the 25th inst., two minutes after the office of the recorder opened that day. The document had been prepared on the preceding day.

In support of the charge of adultery, Mrs. Crowley alleges that the co-respondent is Mrs. A. G. Ainsworth, wife of a clerk of the Southern Pacific Company, who resides at 272 Twenty-third street in this city. Mrs Ainsworth is the woman who, it is alleged was found in the doctor's office when Mrs. Crowley suddenly made her appearance there, one evening in the early part of last week.

In support of the charge of cruelty, Mrs. Crowley instances several cases in which she alleges she was subjected to unhusbandly treatment by the doctor.

Mrs. Crowley has declined every overture in the way of mediation on the part of mutual friends, as well as the kindly offices of counsel on both sides who had hoped that a separation or divorce might take place without bringing to the surface charges which, whether true or false, could not but have an unpleasant effect upon both parties. Mrs. Crowley was especially determined that no complaint should be filed in which the charges of infidelity did not appear.

The mention of the name of the alleged co-respondent has intensified the case and if the matter ever comes to trial, it will be signalized by two parties as respondents who will be called on to disprove the charges of Mrs. Crowley.

A. G. Ainsworth, the husband of the other woman in the case is greatly annoyed over the notoriety given to his wife in the premises. He says that the charges of Mrs. Crowley are groundless. His wife had made but a second call upon Dr. Crowley, and, for a long time, had been an invalid. The notoriety which, he says she has attained in this case, has occasioned a shock to her nervous system, from the effects of which she is now prostrated. Mr. Ainsworth says he is anxious to have the case advanced and disposed of as rapidly as possible, because he is satisfied that the charge incriminating his wife can be disposed of with dispatch.

W. R. Davis and Fred L. Button are counsel for Mrs. Crowley and W. W. Foote and R. M. Fitzgerald are attorneys for Dr. Crowley.

Mrs. Crowley got her tip about Mrs. Ainsworth by means of an anonymous letter.

ALL WERE ASPHYXIATED.

It Was Done Because the Husband Went to Lodge.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

SAN FRANCISCO, Mar. 31.—The asphyxiated bodies of Mrs. Olga Deuss and her three little children were found this morning by her husband who is a prosperous jeweler.

Deuss said he had been out to lodge last night, returning about daylight today.

Mrs. Deuss left a note to her husband indicating her intention to commit suicide and that her children must die with her.

Mrs. Deuss, who murdered her three children and killed herself, because her husband went to lodge so often, was 40 years old.

She was undoubtedly jealous, but the neighbors say she had no cause to be, as Deuss never paid attention to other women.

Lately Deuss' business has not been prosperous and this fact worried his wife.

When he went out last night she dressed herself in her wedding gown, and wrote to her husband these words in German:

"As I loved you in life, so I will attend you step by step in death."

Then she turned on every gas jet in the house and gathered her three children about her bed and died.

The Wilmerding School in Great Demand on All Sides.

OAKLAND MUST GET IT.

A Delegation of Prominent Citizens Appeals to the Regents.

GOOD ARGUMENTS ADVANCED.

Special to The Tribune.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 31.—The Regents of the State University are in session this afternoon at the Hopkins Gallery of Art, to decide upon the site for the Wilmerding School.

The Regents present are Governor Budd, Lieutenant-Governor Jeter, John C. Lynch, F. K. Black, C. M. Chase, Earnest C. Denicke, John E. Budd, A. F. Hallidie, J. F. Houghton, J. West Martin, G. F. Marye, T. G. Fox, J. B. Reinstein, Arthur Rodgers, W. T. Wallace and J. E. Brown.

Those who are working for San Francisco care Albert Bouvier, Joseph D. Phelan and Professor Merrill of the Lick School.

At the call for order J. West Martin moved to lay all business aside and select the site at once.

The motion carried.

F. Standeford then offered a tract of land at Seventh and Adeline streets.

H. D. Irwin offered a tract at Lorin.

F. H. Dunn made an offer on the part of San Francisco.

Diamond and Vandercook's offer of a tract in Fruitvale was then made.

San Leandro, San Jose, Redwood City and other places made offers.

The matter was sent to the committee, who recommended accepting the five-acre tract, throwing out all together all offers except those of Oakland, Berkeley and San Francisco, as it considered the other cities to far from the State University and the affiliated colleges.

J. West Martin moved that the committee's recommendation be adopted, and discussion commenced.

San Francisco presented a memorial, stating that Oakland was too remote, as the majority of working people lived in San Francisco. They recommended that the Regents and the Trustees of the Lick School confer with a view of consolidating the two schools.

The Governor suggested that there was not room enough on the Lick school property to erect another building and the San Francisco delegation agreed to purchase more land.

The claims of Oakland were then advanced by W. R. Davis and R. M. Fitzgerald.

REGENT MARTIN'S VIEWS.

J. West Martin told a Tribune reporter previous to his departure to San Francisco to attend the meeting of the Regents that he was confident that Oakland would gain the Wilmerding School.

Mr. Martin said: "Of course, I do not know just what these San Francisco gentlemen intend to offer but I am sure they cannot present a more acceptable site than Ayala Park. I am confident that Oakland will have the school. It is only right and proper that it should be here, and I intend to make that fact clear to the board today, if the San Francisco gentlemen offer any sites.

"The Wilmerding School has nothing to do with the Lick School or any other school or college in San Francisco. It is under the supervision and administration of the University officers, and it should be near the University. The money was left in trust to the Board of Regents to see that a school was located near the University, and it should be placed there. It would be unfair and illegal to have it anywhere else.

"If necessary, I shall address the board and prove that what I say is true, but, of course, my remarks will depend upon what Mr. Phelan and the other gentlemen say.

"A number of the Regents will be absent from to-day's meeting. Mr. Albert Miller chairman of the Committee on Sites, and Judge Slack will not attend in all probability. I doubt if the question is settled to-day. I shall move for a postponement of the decision if I find that members of the board, who have the greatest interest of the University at heart, are not present. Some of the public men of San Francisco have become alarmed over the push and energy displayed by Oakland, and want the school in San Francisco, but I shall plainly tell these gentlemen that this school is a University adjunct, and must be placed convenient to the University. I expect it will be exciting meeting, but of this I am sure, the Wilmerding School will be located on this side."

GOLD IN THE RUINS.

$50 FOUND THIS MORNING.

Mrs. Du Bois Had All Her Savings in the House.

A Story of the Days When Oakland Was Very Young.

Among the ashes of the once famous Du Bois house, women have been looking for money. The great fire last night completely ruined one of the oldest land marks in Alameda. Thirty-six years ago Mr. and Mrs. Du Bois came to this coast and opened a saloon, bowling alley and boat house on the street that is now Broadway and the water front. In those days the house was directly on the water's edge and the boats were kept in a part of the house. The Du Bois place, with its grounds was in the very heart of Oakland and was the scene of many merry-makings. At that time it was considered dangerous to go beyond the old plaza where the present Hall of Records stands and Mrs. Du Bois says she can distinctly recall the terror the thought of going beyond that place inspired her. All along the water front were houses and saloons and all Oakland life and gayety was centered there.

The bay steamers and schooners stopped at the Du Bois landing, close to the old-fashioned two story house. Du Bois, made money in those days, but money came and went too easily and when he died, fifteen years later, his wife was left penniless. The town had grown and spread until the plaza had become safe to all and the water front was no longer a fashionable avenue.

The landing at Du Bois' place was filled in and a wharf built, obliterating entirely all traces of the former boating landing. The Du Bois house and the old justice court house stood side by side and grew old and dilapidated together. Mrs. Du Bois continued to live in her home and it began to be filled with curios and keepsakes of early days. Sea captains coming from far off ports brought to their old friends presents from strange lands. Magnificent Oriental shawls, silks, quaint lamps and all manner of curios, filled the house. In every nook and corner was some article rich and rare.

When the fire came last night, Mrs. Du ois was almost frantic in her efforts to save her treasures. She did not cease trying to collect them together until the flames surrounded her. Then she first realized her danger. She rushed to the porch on the second floor, and seizing the sign board swung herself far out into the street. Her keepsakes were nearly all destroyed in the flames together with about $200 in cash. All this morning, Mrs. Du Bois and her friends have been digging in the ruins hoping to recover something. Already over $50 has been recovered, blackened and disfigured by the fire. Mrs. Du Bois grieves over the loss of her old home with its many, many associations, more than anything else and dreads the future with its changes, she says, more than she can tell.

THE SHERIFF MAY ACT.

How the License Violators Are to Be Handled in Future.

This morning County Tax Collector Barber demanded and was given a number of blank county liquor licenses and will hereafter be prepared to furnish them.

He will also receive whatever money applicants may have to pay for such licenses. That, he claims, however, will be the limit of his work in that direction. As to the following up of delinquents, he will leave that to devolve upon some other person.

James W. Ballard, who has just been deprived of the work of collecting these saloon license tax fees turned over to Mr. Barber all the books, blanks and other articles belonging to the county which have come into his possession as a consequence of his incumbency with the now defunct position.

Sheriff White has been watching this change of affairs with an observant eye and, speaking on the subject today said:

"The fact that a man becomes delinquent in his liquor license tax makes him a violator of the law. That I suppose will cause more work to devolve upon me. I have not yet decided how I shall prepare for it. I will speak to the Supervisors and ascertain what they want to do in the matter."

PEDDLERS MADE HAPPY.

M. C. Chapman Knocks Out the Restriction Ordinance.

Merchants Much Interested in a Decision Recorded Today.

M. C. Chapman succeeded this morning in knocking out another ordinance in the Superior Court, Judge Frick holding that the instrument was illegal, reversing the finding of the Police Court and dismissing the action.

The ordinance in question is No. 1298 and was designed with a view to regulating traffic and sales in the streets of Oakland, and preventing such traffic from endangering the public comfort and safety.

This ordinance has of late been given quite an amount of attention by the merchants of this city, and more recently impelled Chief of Police Lloyd to issue a special order to the department to enforce its provisions.

The third section reads as follows:

"Nothing herein contained shall be construed as preventing or making unlawful the prompt delivery in good faith of any of said personal property to or at any such fixed place of business so situated and conducted in such building or store within such territory in any case where such personal property so being delivered is actually, and in good faith, consigned goods, or has actually and in good faith been there before purchased at a place outside of such territory by such lawful occupant of such fixed place of business, actually doing business therein, and said property is in either such case there being delivered to him thereat."

As interpreted by Mr. Chapman, this section prohibits the selling of goods of within that district to any person save the proprietor of a store abutting on the street, and, as he claims, the selling, for instance, of milk, because of the fact that there is no store in the district which deals in that commodity.

The action has been pending for some time and the legality of the ordinance was tested on the grounds that the subject is not clearly indicated in the title of the act; that it was not uniform in operation, and was of a local and special character that it was not a police or sanitary regulation; that it was a restriction of trade and violation of public policy; that it was unreasonable and that it tended to create a monopoly.

H. A. Melvin appeared for the people. He knew however, that the ordinance was defective. The Court sustained Mr. Chapman's contention, declared the ordinance illegal, reversed the finding in the Police Court and dismissed the case.

This action will lead to a further move on the part of the Merchants' Exchange to get an ordinance on this subject, which will stand the test of legal inquiry. The ordinance knocked out to-day was passed during Mr. Chapman's administration as Mayor.

Bungling Work Caused the Victims Agonizing Deaths.

SHRIEKS OF THE DYING.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

HAVANA, March 31.—Never in modern times has there been a more sickening spectacle than that which to-day attended the public execution of five Cubans, condemned to death by the garrote as "murderers, violators and incendiaries."

The troops were drawn up in a hollow square and in the middle were placed a chair and post.

Ruiz, the public executioner, had deputized an assistant to conduct the affair.

The condemned men were brought into the square to meet their fate.

One had confessed guilt and affirmed the innocence of all the others, who also protested they were guiltless.

The first man took his seat in the chair calmly. The iron collar was fixed about his neck, and the cap drawn over his face.

The executioner undertook to apply the screw, but was so excited that his hand slipped repeatedly.

The victim died by slow strangulation, emitting the most distressing cries.

The second execution was accomplished with even more distressing awkwardness, the executioner being almost on the verge of collapse.

Protests of officers and priests forced Ruiz to undertake the third execution, but he did little better than his assistant had done.

NOT THE MEN.

Sheriff Cunningham of Stockton was with Chief Lloyd this morning trying to connect Root and Thompson with the Stockton gold brick job which netted its operators about $20,000, but after seeing them and their pictures declared they are not the men he wants.

A. Premore and Mr. Kahn, two arrivals from Tuscarora, Nev., also looked over the photographs and determined that the men were the ones who came very nearly unloading some of their wares on Mr. Premore. He became interested in the Mexican mine story and was taken to Sacramento where he saw the Indian with the bullion. They persuaded him to advance some money to develop the property and he left for home to get his bank book. While in Tuscarora he incidentally told Mr. Kahn of the speculation he was about to make. Kahn is a merchant and had heard of gold bricks before. He secured possession of his friend's bank book and refused to give it back to him. The operators became frightened by the delay and left the place suddenly.

UNION MEN GET IT.

Decision by the Y. M. I. About the Music for Their Council.

The members of the Y. M. I. have decided to employ union music for their grand council meeting to be held in Haywards, beginning May 18th, although to uphold unionism will cost something over $100 more than it would to have employed a non-union band.

Bids for contracts to furnish music were asked for and several responses made. The lowest being from the Mare Island Band, a non-union organization. The matter was debated by the delegates and the committee of Haywards' citizens and it was finally decided to sustain the union. The contract was awarded to Richardson & Zander's Oakland Concert Band.

SLANDEROUS STATEMENTS.

The Truth of the Philadelphia Conference Is Set Forth.

A LULL AT WASHINGTON.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—A resolution was adopted by the House today, authorizing the expenditure of $20,000 of the unexpended balance of the appropriation for the Cascades, Columbia River, for the construction of protecting walls necessary to opening the canal to navigation.

The House disagreed to the Senate amendments to the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill and agreed to conference.

Bingham (Rep.) of Pennsylvania, McCall (Rep.) of Tennessee), and Dockery (Dm.) of Missouri were appointed conferees.

The consideration of the sundry civil bill was then resumed. During the consideration of items under the head of coast and geodetic survey, Cannon took occasion to sharply criticise the administration for "freezing out" Professor T. C. Mendenhall, predecessor of General Duffield, the present superintendent.

He described Mendenhall as the most competent man whoever presided as superintendent, his scientific attainments being recognized all over the country. He referred to the present superintendent as a "new discovery," but said he did not desire to reflect in any way on his competency or ability.

Adams (Rep.) of Pennsylvania took advantage of the latitude allowed in the debate on the appropriation bill to arouse the ire of the silver Republicans from the West by bringing up the question of current reports about Washington of a conference between several silver Republicans and some Philadelphia manufacturers, which was the subject of a formal meeting of manufacturers of that city last night.

He referred to "misleading reports" in the papers of an alleged compact between free-silver Republicans and manufacturers, by which he said it was even proposed to yield the great doctrine of protection. He said one of the Western States (South Dakota) only a few days ago rebuked her Senator by declaring for protection and sound money.

Last night, he said the Philadelphia Manufacturers Club of Philadelphia responded by the passage of strong resolutions denouncing and repudiating this alleged compact.

He had the resolutions read.

Hartman said he was glad of an opportunity to say on the floor what should have been said several days ago.

Hartman agreed the reports scattered broadcast by the press regarding the so-called Washington conference had been false and misleading. But the silver men were nowise responsible for these false reports. The plain truth was some manufacturers of Philadelphia requested a conference. Their invitation had been accepted. Twenty-eight manufacturers had come over from Philadelphia, and a three-hour consultation was had. The report that that meeting had been prepared by Senators Mantle, Carter, Cannon and Dubois and himself was absolutely correct. There was no suggestion of any agreement. In fact, it was distinctly stated no conclusion had been reached.

"But," said Hartman, indignantly, "for the purpose of breaking down and vilifying Republicans who had the hardihood to stand up for silver, the gold press denounced us. No more willful falsehood and slander was ever circulated in the public press. They coined a lie and attempted to force it down our throats."

MYSTIFIED THEM ALL.

Anna Eva Fay Appears Before a Big House at the Macdonough.

Anna Eva Fay, who has been characterized and justly so, as the fair Mahatma, appeared at the Macdonough Theatre last night before an audience which comprised hundreds of the best people of this city. It was the first time that she had been seen by many of those in attendance, although there were hundreds present who had in previous years marveled at the mystic power of the little woman. Miss Fay is now the most celebrated of all the artists who perform tricks upon the stage which seem to be the work of a supernatural agency. That these tricks are performed in that manner, Miss Fay does not assert, and yet that they are the work of simply human hands seems almost incredible. There was nothing done by Miss Fay last night which did not create wonderment and astonishment among her spectators, and every act was received with applause.

The closing feature was the reading of a number of private questions written on separate pieces of paper by people in various parts of the house. Miss Fay not only gave the names of the writers, but, at the same time, the substance of the questions and answers, in a way that satisfied all those who propounded them.

She will give three more night performance at the Macdonough, and is sure of liberal patronage.

COMING EVENTS.

Next week amusement patrons will enjoy two of the greatest attractions of the season. For Monday and Tuesday evenings Hoyt's latest success, "A Milk White Flag," is announced, and the latter part of the week "Sinbad" will be seen. The sale of seats for "A Milk White Flag" opens next Thursday, and a big rush is expected at the boxoffice.

"Sinbad" is now crowding the Columbia. The reputation of this gorgeous extravaganza is so familiar to the public as to require slight announcement. Its production here will pack the Macdonough each performance.

THE OAKLAND.

The pretty English comedy-drama, "The Golden Polugh," attracted a large audience at the Oakland Theatre last evening. The play deals with various phases of English life, and the more serious portions of the drama are brightened up with clever bits of comedy. The production last night was a finished one, while the new scenery was particularly pleasing.

Norval McGregor made his re-appearance in the leading male part of Sir Charles Gordan. He was received with old-time favor, and interpreted the part with force. Miss Virginia Jackson as Mrs. Oakley, the deserted wife, gave her usual careful rendition of the role, while Frank Bacon, George Hermance, William Burress, May Waring and Jennie Weideman, all sustained the characters alloted to them very ably.

Next week a big production of "Michael Strogoff" will be given.

THE BALDWIN.

James O'Neill and his company opened their season at the Baldwin Theatre last night with "Monte Cristo." The popular play was staged in a very elaborate manner and the company was strong throughout. O'Neill was as dashing as ever in the title role. He carried the burden of the play in a most able manner, and the support was good in all details. "Virginius" on an elaborate scale will be seen this evening.

THE CALIFORNIA.

"Friends," that bright sparkling play with which Edwin Milton Royle made a reputation, was presented at the California Theatre last night. It was given with almost the identical cast that marked its production here on its last visit to the coast. It was much enjoyed by a good house and should get its share of theatrical patronage during the week.

THE COLUMBIA.

"Sinbad" is too good an attraction to be gainsaid even in Lent. It is packing the Columbia Theatre nightly, and its merriment and bright special features meet thorough appreciation.

THE TIVOLI.

"Said Pasha" is continuing its uninterrupted course of success at the Tivoli. It is tuneful, funny and full of action. The Tivoli always has a good show.

THE ORPHEUM.

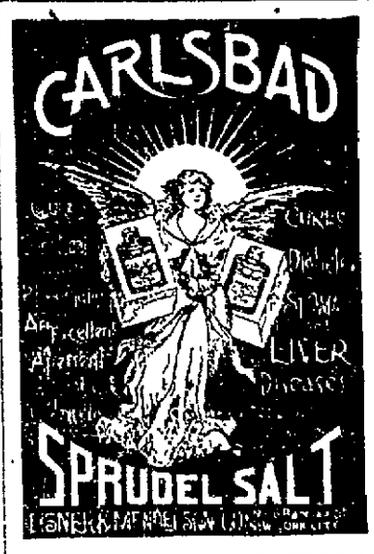

Nothing can affect the popularity of the Orpheum. It runs along with overflow houses night in and night out, no matter whether Lent is here or not. It is easy though to account for this, as the programme is so varied that there is always something to appeal to pleasure seekers. Segommer, the ventriloquist, the three Marvelles, the Masons, and Gertie Carlisle are among this week's attractions.

MOROSCO'S.

THE ALCAZAR.

Leonard Grover Jr. has returned to regular lines at the Alcazar, and this week is producing a double bill. It consists of a comedy, "My Wife's Husband," and a drama, "The Homestead."

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

The genuine Carlsbad Sprudel Salt must have the signature of EISNER & MENDELSON Co., New York, Sole Agents, on bottle.

INTERSTATE COMMERCE.

Alleged Discrimination by Many Leading Western Lines.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

DENVER, March 31.—Suit has been filed in the United States Circuit Court by the InterState Commerce Commission, invoking the aid of the law to enforce its orders against ten Western railroads and compel them to desist from discriminations between long and short hauls.

An order setting January 16th as the time when the schedules of rates should be amended was made, but the roads refuse to comply.

An injunction is asked restraining the companies from proceeding with the existing schedules, and Judge Hallet is asked to impose a penalty upon each company not exceeding $500 a day as long as the law is disregraded.

The Court has ordered the defendant companies to file answers on or before May 4th.

The Southern Pacific, Santa Fe, Colorado Midland, Denver & Rio Grande, Rio Grande Western, Union Pacific, Union Pacific, Denver & Gulf, Atlantic and Pacific, and Pacific, St. Louis & San Francisco and Southern California are defendants.

HE STOPPED THE SHOW.

An Insane Printer Surprises Some Chicago Theater Goers.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

CHICAGO, March 31.—Robert Rothman, a printer, supposed to be insane, interrupted the grand opera of Romeo and Juliet at the Auditorium last night. The curtain had been rung up on the balcony scene but a few minutes and Jean de Reszke had started his lines, "O, night spread out thy pinions above me and——".

"Stop, stop," shouted Rothman, as he climbed up the stairs which lead to the stage from the front and advanced toward de Reszke. "Stop, I say, and touch me not or you'll be sorry for it."

The man removed his coat and vest and cast them on the floor. De Reszke took his advice and stopped in amazement. At the same instant William Perry, of the opera company management, stepped on the stage and walked toward Rothman.

Mr. Perry also stopped, but as he did so he gave a signal and the curtain was rung down.

Rothman was between it and the footlights and Max Dasold and Charles Gillickson, stage hands, were sent out to remove him.

Each seized one of his arms and the man was led into the wings, loudly protesting that his captors were making the mistake of their lives in so handling him.

Rothman was taken by the police to Harrison street station where he talked in an incoherent manner, claiming to be the son of God and to be possessed of divine powers.

IT COMES SUDDENLY.

A Note of Warning to Careful Minded People.

Scarcely a day passes that one does not hear of men and women who were in perfect health being suddenly stricken down by that terrible disease, pneumonia.

At no time of the year is this dangerous complaint so extremely prevalent as during the present season. There are constant changes; one day is as mild as summer, the next is bitterly cold. The very air is filled with disease and the slightest exposure often results in pneumonia. It is a disease that comes suddenly and it is all the more dangerous because it comes unannounced. A tickling in the throat, a tightness in the chest, a difficulty in breathing, a feeling of weakness, all may mean the beginning of pneumonia. It is above all things a disease that requires prompt treatment, for if a reaction is brought about, the danger may soon be over, if not, the end may be near. Any physician who is called in a case of pneumonia prescribes a stimulant instantly; but it is always some reliable stimulant such as pure whiskey—all else is useless.

It is precisely for this reason that so many physicians prescribe that standard and reliable whiskey known as Duffy's pure malt. It has saved the lives of thousands who were on the high road to pneumonia in its worst form and it has both prevented and cured the most dangerous forms of pulmonary complaints. As a great strengthening, vitalizing remedy it has never been equaled. Be sure that you get Duffy's pure malt, no matter how much you may be urged to try something cheaper.

BLIND-EYED BIGOTRY.

That Is the Way J. P. Edoff Sums Up O. G. May's Utterances.

The California State Protective Work Explained by Its President.

J. P. Edoff, President of the California State Protective Association, has made the following answer to the criticism of O. G. May of Berkeley, regarding the work done by the liquor men:

"It has not been my habit to notice the vaporings of obscure assailants who are always rushing into public prints, when they can secure the consent of the editor, to hurl venom at an imaginary foe, and I see no substantial reason why Mr. May should be made an exception to my general policy in this respect.

"The subject matter of his communication is the old threadbare sermon which has been preached and sung by the Prohibitionist for a century, and its teachings are regarded as so impracticable by modern civilization as to scarcely merit consideration.

"In this State the prohibition party has been in active existence and operation for more than a quarter of a century, and yet at the last election their vote was so insignificant as to scarcely entitle it to be dignified by the term scattering. I mention this simply for the purpose of calling attention to the fact that the prohibitionist, as represented by Mr. May, is narrow, contracted, intolerant, bigoted, selfish and opinionated, and hence it is that they make such little headway in their attempt to persuade the body politic into the adoption of their views.

"That they as a whole mean well may be admitted, but to differ with them upon the subject is to invite a cyclone of vituperation and abuse, which is always the ready weapon of a narrow intellect.

"A fair sample of this intolerance and bigotry is conspicuously apparnet in the communication of Mr. May. Without any knowledge or acquaintance with myself, or, as far as I am aware, with any other member of our organization, he proceeds to launch a tirade of billingsgate and falsehood against us.

"His reference to other matters and the interests they represent shows the flippant and reckless use of a dagger in the hands of a fool.

"Now, with regards to his opinions as to the objects of our association I have no desire to make any comment or to enter into any discussion with Mr. May through the press or elsewhere. His gross perversion of the facts is so marked that anything like a fair basis of argument with men of his mentality is utterly impossible, and therefore such a discussion would prove not only unprofitable, but absurd. He is either ignorant of the truth respecting the present status of the liquor traffic in California, or does not possess sufficient moral courage to admit what is common knowledge, and that is that our association has accomplished greater results in the two years of its existence in the line it is following than all of the Prohibitionists since the organization of the State government.

"Neither is his statement true that it was or is our purpose to wrest from the local authorities the right to regulate or suppress the traffic. Upon the contrary, at the last session of the Legislature we attempted the enactment of a local option statute, submitting to a vote of the people of each county the question of license or no license, which cannot now be done by any valid enactment. This measure was defeated by the efforts of people fashioned after the caliber of Mr. May, and for no other or more substantial reason than that the measure proceeded from the liquor dealers themselves.

"We also attempted to increase the license revenue by more than $2,000,000 in the State, with a view of thereby lessening the number of retail saloons, and by so doing very greatly diminishing the opportunities for low or disorderly places, and yet this action upon our part is construed by the man from Berkeley as an attempt to plant a saloon at every man's door. In other words, he seems to consider that to double or treble the tax upon the traffic will have the effect of multiplying instead of diminishing the number of establishments, which is quite in keeping with the logic of his position throughout his whole vicious tirade.

"And finally, he says that our avowed purpose to eschew politics is a mere pretense and a sham. I wish only to add in this connection that the example, as well as the results accomplished by the political efforts of the Prohibitionists, is well calculated to persuade sensible people to enter some other field than the political arena if they desire to be a factor in public affairs."

TUESDAY.....MARCH 31, 1896.

A London critic calls attention to the fact that the Englishman has to depend for dictionaries of his own native speech mainly on the labors of American scholars." Several home-made dictionaries have a certain vogue in England, but they are circumscribed and unsatisfactory, and hence the leading American works of that kind, being more comprehensive and including the established speech of the masses as well as the classes, are widely used and relied upon over there.

Senator Sehrman thinks ex-Governor Campbell is the most available candidate for President that the Democrats could name. But Campbell would not have the backing of his own state The Ohio man is generally lucky, but his luck turns when he only has the backing of a minority. Carlisle is ahead just now. But what kind of a backing would he have from old Kentucky with a Republican Governor and a Legislature that refused to elect a Democratic Senator?

Senator White, from the Committee on Territories, recently made this report on the bill for the admission of Arizona as a State in the Union:

The report says that the Territory contains 113,000 square miles, or a greater area than is contained in the ten states of Rhode Island, Delaware, Connecticut, New Jersey, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Vermont, Maryland, West Virginia and South Carolina combined. Its resources are represented as unlimited, comprising much rich agricultural land, 40,000,000 acres of grazing land and the largest unbroken forest area in the United States, as well as rich deposits of gold, silver, copper, lead, onyx, marble and precious stones. The population is placed at 80,000 and is represented as rapidly increasing.

Bad for Menelik.

The report that King Menelik has ordered the massacre of prisoners and sick persons, who have fallen into his hands, may be true, or it may not. The ruler of Abyssinia has won a degree of respect from the civilized world for his bravery, and his stout defence of his own land. Whatever sympathy he may have gained would disappear as soon as such a report should turn out to be true. The whole civilized world would be horrified. Menelik is in constant communication with the outside world. He knows the drift of public opinion by having read to him almost daily some account of what is going on in the world.

The killing of prisoners and the sick who have fallen into his hands, as a convenient way of getting rid of them, is the diabolism of the brute and the savage. The ruler of Abyssinia is a sort of religious savage. He is lifted above the condition of an ordinary one by traditions, and by a degree of intelligence that generally counts for better things. The great forces of the world are now set against barbarism and all its forms of cruelty. The ruler of Abyssinia would be the outlaw of the world were he to murder his prisoners as they do in Darkest Africa.

Hammond at Capetown.

A few weeks ago there was great concern for the safety of John Hayes Hammond, on whom the Dutch had laid hands at Johannesburg. Hammond was sent to jail to await his trial. His friends in San Francisco were very active in getting him out of his trouble. It was not likely that such a competent mining engineer had conspired against the Dutch. Jameson has gone home to England on a picnic excursion. Hammond did not like his quarters in the Pretoria jail, and in time got an enlargement.

Hammond has since gone to Capetown, having secured that liberty by giving bail in a hundred thousand dollars. Whether he will ever go back to the Transvaal will probably depend upon his chances for acquittal. The fact that he was required to give so heavy a bond is pretty good evidence that his offense is not considered a light one. The other prisoners are held at Pretoria. The British Government has given notice that it will hold President Kruger responsible for their safety. The latter will not be troubled by notices of that kind. Hammond could not go to Capetown for his health without putting up a hundred thousand dollars. As the others could not give the required bail they will have to cultivate their health in Pretoria.

How the Champions of Free Trade Have Fared.

It is a suggestive fact that nearly all the men who have been conspicuous champions of free trade, instead of moving forward gaining in strength and favor with the public, have gone backward in influence. There is Morrison of Illinois, conspicuous once as the author of a horizontal tariff which was his wedge driven for free trade. Morrison's bill was defeated and he was afterward beaten in his race for Congress. The man had nearly dropped out of sight until the other day one or two Eastern journals informed the public that he was alive, and that he would be greatly pleased with any stray votes for a Presidential nomination.

Then there is Mills of Texas, another champion of free trade. Mills has not quite disappeared over the political grade, but he is going over fast enough. He is no longer a power. He was on the top wave for a time and is now somewhere else. Then there is Crisp, who drove the double team of soft money and free trade. The latter has been too much for him. When Crisp was Speaker of the House he had his eye on a Presidential nomination. But his name is not even mentioned now in any such connection Crisp ad Mills are slowly retreating toward the political vanishing point.

Another memorable instance is that of Wilson of West Virginia. The present Administration committed to him the work of making a tariff that should have all the essential elements of free trade. Wilson went to work to achieve the greatest victory of his life. His bill was mutilated until he hardly knew whether the ground was under him or over him. Wilson was defeated for Congress in his own district where he had been a favorite The President took him into his Cabinet But he has made no figure there. He is slowly going over the grade with the other free trade leaders. It is an instructive bit of history. The champions of free trade have fared ill. They have gone into political decline which, since it began, has never been arrested.

What Public Libraries Have Done.

The Boston Herald dwells on the fact that there are but few towns in Massachusetts where there is not a public library of some sort, and that Boston contains the largest and best appointed public library in the United States. The one fact of chief interest is that fifty years ago Horace Mann persuaded the Legislature to place a small public library in every school district in that State. These school district libraries contained from 100 to 150 books. But they were all standard works. That measure made all the rural districts reading communities. The books went into the hands of bright boys and girls. They read them. They became lovers of books.

More library buildings and foundations for libraries have been given by individuals in that State, or who are natives, than have been provided in that way in proportion to population in any other State. Nearly every considerable town has a handsome library edifice. Rich men who read as boys the books in those small libraries, never forgot the town where those comparatively small advantages were enjoyed. It seemed a small thing that the State should furnish a few books for every school district. But it was a great thing for the young people. Today the old commonwealth is probably at the head of all the states in the Union as a reading community. Its public libraries in town and country tell the story.

Now this occurred in Boston, the cradle of liberty. The Herald of that city is responsible for the statement.

"The State House of Representatives has summarily disposed of the woman suffrage amendment to the constitution. It defeated it without giving it the grace of the call of the yeas and nays. There were probably several members favoring the change who participated in this action. They would be willing the change should be made, but, as practical people, they realized the uselessness of attempting to bring it about now. This being the fact, and it being recognized as such by the more moderate of the advocates of woman suffrage, it is a pertinent inquiry. Why trouble the Legislature with the subject now? It wastes the time that is given to it, and it ends in making the movement seem even weaker than it is. Here is clearly a case of mistaken zeal; its result is the most mortifying defeat that the woman suffragists have had for many years. The agitators have had the fun of agitating, but it has been at the expense of the cause in which they have enlisted—a rather heavy price to pay for such amusement."

The work on the Hearst school building in Washington is now under way in connection with the cathedral. Mrs. Phoebe Hearst of San Francisco gave $175,000 for the erection of this building. It will be a cathedral school and the structure will be a very imposing one. The cathedral as planned will be the largest occupied in this country by that denomination.

NOTES AND EXCERPTS.

Despite all the discouraging things that have been said and written about Congressman Cannon and his wheel, he has, with a persistence born of heroic courage, stuck to his machine and answered sympathetic inquiries by his interested friends with the meekness of a martyr. "How are you getting along with your bicycle?" asked a member the other day. "Oh," said Cannon, "I'm making progress." "Is that so?" said his friend appearing interested, as Cannon made ready to define his advancement in the art of cycling. "Yes," resumed the Illinoisan, gravely. "I can spit, now, and pretty soon I expect to be able to raise my hat."

In New York the small shops that were opened two years ago for the sale of aluminum articles have grown into big stores and the trade is increasing every day. It is interesting to learn that novelties are being added all the time to their stock When aluminium can be soldered, and when price drop a few notches, cooks will be handling lighter kitchen utensils, and those people who now carry bags filled with all sorts of flasks and toilet articles will carry lighter loads.

In New York even dogs are pawned. In a place on Twenty-eighth street a lonely pug separated from his fellows gazed wistfully at customers. "How much for that one?" asked a stranger as he pointed the pug. "Can't sell him until Monday night," replied the bird and dog dealer. The man wanted to know why, and he was informed that the pug was in pawn, and if he wasn't redeemed prior to the time mentioned he would be sold. "That pug's been hocked three times and has always been redeemed. How much do I loan on him? A dollar's the limit, sir, as pugs are no longer popular, you know. When a woman puts her pet dog in pawn it is quite safe to conclude that the wolf has entered her apartment."

Of the three colleges for women at Oxford, England, Somerville is the only one that is strictly undenominational. There are about sixty-five students in the college. They are in charge of a principal and seven tutors. The cost of board, tuition and other expenses amounts to about $160 a year for those who occupy the best rooms.

Li Hung Chang is making arrangements to impress the western world with his wealth and power. He will travel with a suite and in a style that will testify to the grandeur of Oriental luxury. Li Hung Chang is an abstemious and simple man in his tastes, but he long ago learned the value of magnificence for impressing the crowd.

Dr. Jameson is not attracting as much attention in England as he was a week ago, but he is still an object of great interest. He spends considerable time refusing proposals of marriage reaching him by mail. Publishers' agents are on his track at all times, eager to compel him to write a book. To cap the climax, he was offered a few days ago a large sum if he would exhibit himself for a week in a high-class museum.

At the Pasteur Institute in Paris 1520 persons were treated last year, of whom but two died, the smallest proportion yet attained. In ten years 17,337 persons have been inoculated, 85 of whom died. Nearly a third of the patients last year came from Paris and its neighborhood.

Lord Rosebery is in great demand in England for after dinner speeches. It is seldom that Rosebery delivers an oration of much seriousness. He is playful, witty, sarcastic, but even in his political speeches the note of earnestness is not often struck. Rosebery, however, can be very effective when he does wax serious.

During the interchange of compliments at Cannes between Mr. Gladstone and President Fauro of France, the latter asked the great Englishman if he found time hanging heavily upon his hands. "No," answered the Grand Old Man: "I follow very closely the affairs of my country. The man who has nothing to do is the most miserable being in existence—the most to be pitied."

In the researches he made while gathering statistics for his book on colonial furniture, the late Dr. Lyon came across a curious legend about the introduction of mahogany into England. It seems that a Dr. Gibbon, who was a London physician early in the seventeenth century, had some mahogany planks imported from the West Indies with the idea of grinding them up for use as a substitute for Peruvian bark, which was just gaining vogue as a medicine. Finding the wood unserviceable as medicine, he had a cabinet-maker construct a box of one of the planks, and the beautiful grain of the wood pleased him so that he had a bureau made of the same material. All London flocked to see it, and the wood came into immediate use among furniture makers.

Senator Proctor, of Vermont, is considered the most solemn looking man in the United States Senate. In this connection it may be remarked that he made his fortune in the manufacture of grave-stones.

M. Faure, President of France, is taking great interest in the welfare of the French soldiers. A few days ago he visited the barracks of some of the regiments in Paris, went to the kitchens, and ate some of the food which is furnished to the soldiers. He summoned an aetive General and told him the food was not good enough The President intends to see that it is better. M. Faure is exceedingly popular in the army.

The German Emperor wishes it distinctly understood that he takes music seriously When recently serenaded by a band of the Uhlan regiment during the dinner he rose from the table and put the musicians right about their tune, which he declared to be too slow. Since that occasion he has announced his intention of writing a pamphlet on "How to Conduct an Orchestra." Even the at present bands of music that play about Berlin are not safe from their Kaiser's critical ear, as he repeatedly sends the imperial servants out to them with requests that they tune their instruments and play in time.

The committee which is to decide upon the monument to the memory of Pasteur, to be erected at Alais, has chosen the model furnished by M. Tony Noel. It is to be finished in July. The pedestal is to be about nine feet high, and the statue about eight. It will be unveiled with appropriate ceremonies in August.

There is considerable excitement at Butte, Montana, over the discovery that work has been begun on an oft-proposed and largely opposed project for driving mining tunnels in all directions under the city in order to take out the rich copper and silver ores known to exist there. It is said that the richest copper and silver ores in the Rocky Mountain country lie under the city. The principal vein discovered, known as the smokehouse lode, runs under the heart of the city from southeast to northwest, and over it are the City Hall, the County Court House, a big hotel, and several of the largest office buildings in the city. The purchasers of surveyed land in Butte have no title to the mineral underneath, the surface title only extending to a depth of thirty feet. When the vein under the city was first discovered a wealthy mining man of Butte located almost the whole city as mining claims and fought his case in the courts to a successful conclusion. Now he has formed a company, and already a shaft is being sunk near the heart of the city, from which tunnels will be driven in every direction. Residents of Butte are greatly concerned about the probable effect of the mining operations on the big buildings situated over the proposed workings. The ore body is said to be larger and richer than that of the famous Anaconda mines.

Benjamin Hathaway, who was known in Michigan as the Cass county poet, died last week at Marcellus and was buried in a coffin made from a tree which he planted many years ago for that purpose. Two weeks ago he ordered the tree—a fine chestnut—cut down, and a portion of it made into a casket, according to his desires.

In New York the other day a dudish-looking Chinaman entered a Broadway car, heavily laden with packages. When seated his arms and lap were monopolized The conductor came and held out hand, and the Chinaman grinned and wiggled his head as if to put it in the outstretched hand. "Fare, John," said the conductor. Then John thrust his head out further and further. "Hurry up fare," said the conductor, impatiently. At that the Chinaman let go the bundles with one hand, and, while they slid down, and rattled over the floor, he put his hand up to the side of his head and took a nickel out of his ear. That was where he had stored it, expecting the conductor to reach in and pry it out. But the conductor wasn't from Frisco.

It is said that the dowager empress of Germany contemplates residing permanently in England. As far as the German emperor is concerned the arrangement is said to be perfectly satisfactory—even more so. But the German chancellor has yet to give his consent, which is unlikely, unless the Empress Frederick consents to give up part of her German allowances. Queen Victoria with her proverbial thriftiness, refuses to consent to such an arrangement; and so the matter remains in statu quo. From England the Empress Frederick receives an allowance of $40,000 a year. But from Germany she receives "all told" a larger allowance than comes into the coffers of Queen Victoria as reigning soverign of England.

The law fixes the unity of value, but cannot fix the value of the unit, is the dictum of Congressman Galusha Grow, who illustrates his point by the story of a woodchopper on the banks of the Mississippi river, near the close of the rebellion. Hailed by a steamboat captain, who asked whether his wood was for sale, he answered: "Yes." The captain inquired: "How much a cord?" "How do you propose to pay?" "In Confederate money." "Then cord for cord."

He has never been in the habit of punishing his children, leaving that disagreeable duty to his wife, but the other day one of his numerous progeny became very unruly and he was obliged to say: "Flora, if you don't keep quiet I shall have to whip you." "Pooh," retorted the little 3-year-old, with a contemptuous toss of her dainty head, "you isn't the mother."

A BRIDGE ACROSS THE BAY.

Oakland and San Francisco to Be Connected by a Number of High Steel Spans.

Instead of a Tedious Ferry Ride the Trip Will Be Made in Ten Minutes.

ROOM FOR ALL TRAINS.

At the meeting in San Francisco today, in the office of Col. Suter of the United States Engineering Department, of those interested in the changing of the estuary bridges, it was announced that a plan is being considered to construct a high bridge from Oakland to San Francisco. It will consist of several 150 foot draws, two 1000 foot spans and ten 500 foot spans. It was announced that the running time from Oakland to San Francisco will then be ten minutes.

(Special to the Tribune.)

SAN FRANCISCO, Mar. 31.—This morning the hearing of testimony concerning the Oakland bridges was continued in the office of the United States Engineer Corps, 513 Kearney street, San Francisco.

The members of the Alameda County Board of Supervisors were not present. Mayor Davie, John R. Glascock, District Attorney Charles Snook, W. G. Curtis, Mr. McMullen, of the San Francisco Bridge Company and other interested persons were on hand.

The first testimony taken was in the form of a petition signed by eighty-six vessel owners and captains plying between Oakland and San Francisco. Their report was as follows.

"We, the undersigned sailing masters and captains doing business on San Francisco bay and the Oakland estuary respectfully recommend that the War Department of the United States have the draw openings widened to at least 150 feet and that one bridge be constructed in place of the two now in position.

"We beg to inform you that the openings of the draws at said bridges are too narrow and very dangerous to navigation, we knowing of many instances where great damage has been done to shipping on account of such draws.

"We have constantly been annoyed by being delayed on account of the bridge tenders not opening the bridges in time because of waiting for railroad trains and street cars to pass over, when in fact such trains are not within sight of the bridges, and also the method of opening said bridges is very slow, thereby causing delay and danger to our shipping.

"We petition to have one bridge in place of the two on account of the fact that between the bridges navigation is very dangerous on account of the width of the channel, and the close proximity of said bridges and the long time it takes to operate them.

"The bridges are controlled by the man stationed in the signal tower several blocks away from them and the bridge tender will some times partly open the draw for us and when we are approaching he will receive a contrary order from the tower man and close the bridge in the face of our fast approaching shipping, thereby causing delay and damage.

"We urgently request that the matter be attended to as soon as possible and thus remove the dangers and obstructions from the Oakland estuary so as to allow us free and unobstructed entrance to the many wharves of said estuary."

This petition is signed by about eighty-five ship owners and captains among whom are E. Pederson, Capt. S. N. Sanderson, J. P. Michelson, Albert Sims, Peter Jessen, P. C. Munemann, Charles Wallin, M. Meyers, H. Behrens, M. M. Jennings, Leopold Frederick, Capt. G. W. Freethy, Capt. P. H. Toni-

DAVIE'S VIEWS.

Mayor Davie presented a typewritten document embodying the same ideas as submitted verbally at the last meeting. He advocates but one bridge, built as near the geographical centers of Alameda and Oakland as possible. Oak street he thinks would be a proper location, as the land is desirable there, though in his opinion a bridge even further east would be advisable. He suggested that the approach be constructed adjoining the property of the California Development Company near Oak street.

In the document the Mayor recounted his personal experiences while a shipping man showed that the two bridges had been a detriment not only to his shipping interest but also to others.

Capt. Johnson stated that he had been plying between the two bridges for years and on three occasions he had tried to get through the bridges but was unable, as the bridge-tenders refused to open them. On these occasions he was obliged to drop anchor thereby causing much delay and once damaging his vessel materially by striking the bridge. He cited the case of several ship owners who had sustained damages amounting variously from $100 to $200.

Captain Peterson next said that he had been caused much inconvenience by the bridges. Recently he had signalled to open the bridge and had received the signal from the tenders to come on. The draw had been opened slightly and he was proceeding, when he was told to go back and the draw was closed. This was because the bridge failed to work properly. In consequence he was obliged to steer his schooner and, in doing so, he not only collided with the "Nora M." and the "Dolphin," but also the bridge. This smashed things up generally and cost him much money.

THE RAILROAD'S OFFER.

A communication was received from the Southern Pacific Company, stating that the Alice-street bridge is owned by the Central Pacific Company and under lease to the Southern Pacific Company. It further stated that the company was willing to rebuild the Alice-street bridge and to consolidate its tracks there changing the base of operations of the narrow-gauge train to Alice street. The railroad, however wanted until December 1, 1897, to complete the structure, and did not think it necessary to construct a 150-foot draw.

With regard to the Webster-street bridge the statement was made that the right-of-way is leased from the South Pacific Coast Company from the Southern Pacific Company. The railroad does not object to changing the method of operation of draws.

A BIG PROJECT.

Lyman Bridges of the San Francisco Terminal Company spoke for it when he stated that a proposition was on foot to construct a series of suspension spans across the bay from Oakland to San Francisco. This would be located in Oakland at Peralta street and would accommodate all trains connected with the system. This it is contended would reduce the running time to San Francisco to ten minutes instead of the way it is at present.

They calculated to have several 150-foot draws and also two 1000-foot spans as well as ten 500-foot spans.

A communication was also presented by Edson Adams as president of the California Development Company, which stated that the company owns over 1000 feet of wharves and has filled in over forty acres of land adjacent to those bridges. It is the request of the company that the obstructions be removed at as early a date as possible and a single structure take their place.

Mr. Glascock requested the privilege of questioning Mr. Curtis.

"What rules are the company working under," he said, "with regard to the rights of way of the trains and vessels?"

Curtis—"The vessels always are to have the right of way when practicable, but the bridge-tenders must use their judgment."

Glascock—"Don't you know it is a fact that vessels are frequently held when the train is over three-quarters of a mile away.

Curtis—"I don't know so, nor do I think such is a fact. If it has happened it has never been brought to the attention of the company."

Mayor Davie then referred to several incidents in the past concerning the operation of the bridges and Mr. Curtis replied:

"There has been a good many things that have not been entirely friendly between the Oakland people and the railroad in the past, but I want it understood that the railroad company is acting entirely in good faith in this matter, statements on the street corners notwithstanding."

Colonel Suter asked if there was any concerted system of signals between the bridges and thought that the worst cause of complaint was when vessels became imprisoned between the two. Mr. Curtis replied that there was no system but he thought one could be easily arranged. He said the railroad was willing, and Attorney Snook stated that the county was also ready in that respect.

District Attorney Snook stated that before the Supervisors could take any action with regard to making permanent alterations they must wait for some action of the Legislature. As it now stands he contended the Board was powerless.

Col. Suter thought one bridge the only solution and Mr. Glascock suggested it be placed at Fallon street.

Mr. McMullen of the San Francisco Bridge Co. stated that he represented 1000 feet of land on the estuary and he thought the idea of waiting for the Legislature was absurd. He contended that the War Department should order the bridges removed.

After considerable discussion the meeting adjourned sine die, without having transacted any business whatever with the exception of taking testimony.

The evidence will now be sent to the Secretary of War with the recommendation from the San Francisco office that but one structure be placed in the stead of two.

THE DIVORCE IS ASKED.

Mrs. Crowley Brings Suit on Two Statutory Charges.

She Asks for the Two Children and $250 a Month Allimony.

This morning a petition for divorce from her husband Dr. D. D. Crowley, the well known physician and surgeon, was filed in the Superior Court by Mrs. Alma E. Crowley.

The annulment of the marriage is sought on the dual grounds of adultery and cruelty. The petitioner asks for the custody of the two minor children and allimony at the rate of $250 a month. She had previously filed a homestead on the family residence 1264 Alice street. This filing took place on the morning of the 25th inst., two minutes after the office of the recorder opened that day. The documents had been prepared on the preceding day.

In support of the charge of adultery Mrs. Crowley alleges that she co-respondent is Mrs. A. G. Ainsworth, wife of a clerk of the Southern Pacific Company, who resides at 272 Twenty-third street in this city. Mrs. Ainsworth is the woman who, it is alleged was found in the doctor's office when Mrs. Crowley suddenly made her appearance there, one evening in the early part of last week.

In support of the charge of cruelty, Mrs. Crowley instances several cases in which she alleges she was subjected to unhusbandly treatment by the doctor.

Mrs. Crowley has declined every overture in the way of mediation on the part of mutual friends, as well as the kindly offices of counsel on both sides who had hoped that a separation or divorce might take place without bringing to the surface charges which, whether true or false, could not but have an unpleasant effect upon both parties. Mrs. Crowley was especially determined that no complaint should be filed in which the charges of infidelity did not appear.

The mention of the name of the alleged co-respondent has intensified the case and if the matter ever comes to trial, it will be signalized by two parties as respondents who will be called on to disprove the charges of Mrs. Crowley.

A. G. Ainsworth, the husband of the other woman in the case is greatly annoyed over the notoriety given to his wife in the premises. He says that the charges of Mrs. Crowley are groundless. His wife had made but a second call upon Dr. Crowley, and, for a long time, had been an invalid. The notoriety which he says she has attained in this case, has occasioned a shock to her nervous system, from the effects of which she is now prostrated. Mr. Ainsworth says he is anxious to have the case advanced and disposed of as rapidly as possible because he is satisfied that the charge incriminating his wife can be disposed of with dispatch.

W. R. Davis and Fred L. Button are counsel for Mrs. Crowley and W. W. Foote and R. M. Fitzgerald are attorneys for Dr. Crowley.

Mrs. Crowley got her tip about Mrs. Ainsworth by means of an anonymous letter.

A SOLEMN FAREWELL.

Simple and impressive services were held today over the remains of Mrs. C. O. G. Miller at the family residence on Jackson street.

A ladies trio composed of Mrs. Beatrice Priest Fine, Miss Jeanette Wilcox and Mrs. Campbell rendered beautifully "Asleep in Jesus," and other selections.

The remains were taken to the cemetery followed by the carriages containing the family, Mr. Albert Miller and family, Mrs. Charles Webb Howard, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Prather, Mr. and Mrs. Edson Adams, Mr. and Mrs. Wheaton, Rev. and Mrs. Robert Coyle and many others.

It Was Done Because the Husband Went to Lodge.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

SAN FRANCISCO, Mar. 31.—The asphyxiated bodies of Mrs. Olga Deuss and her three little children were found this morning by her husband who is a prosperous jeweler.

Deuss said he had been out to lodge last night, returning about daylight today.

Mrs. Deuss, who murdered her three children and killed herself, because her husband went to lodge so often, was 40 years old.

She was undoubtedly jealous, but the neighbors say she had no cause to be, as Deuss never paid attention to other women.

Lately Deuss' business has not been prosperous and this fact worried his wife.

When he went out last night she dressed herself in her wedding gown, and wrote to her husband these words in German:

"As I loved you in life, so I will attend you step by step in death."

Then she turned on every gas jet in the house and gathered her three children about her bed and died.

The platform opens with congratulation to the country upon the near approach of an opportunity for release from Democratic misrule.

"We recognize as most conspicuous among such candidates, New England's noble and illustrious son, Hon. Thomas B. Reed, of Maine, and that pure, able statesman and champion of protection, Hon. William McKinley of Ohio.

"We will give the electorial vote of New Hampshire to any nominee who worthily represents the party, but we prefer one of these because either is in himself a platform."

MANY BIDDERS.

OAKLAND MUST GET IT.

A Delegation of Prominent Citizens Appeals to the Regents.

GOOD ARGUMENTS ADVANCED.

Special to The Tribune.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 31.—The Regents of the State University are in session this afternoon at the Hopkins Gallery of Art, to decide upon the site for the Wilmerding School.

The Regents present are Governor Budd, Lieutenant-Governor Jeter, John C. Lynch, F. K. Black, C. M. Chase, Earnest C. Denicke, John E. Budd, A. F. Hallidie, J. F. Houghton, J. West Martin, G. F. Marye, T. G. Fox, J. B. Reinstein, Arthur Rodgers, W. T. Wallace and J. E. Brown.

Those who are working for San Francisco are Albert Bouvier, Joseph D. Phelan and Professor Merrill of the Lick School.

At the call for order J. West Martin moved to lay all business aside and select the site at once.

The motion carried.

F. Standeford then offered a tract of land at Seventh and Adeline streets.

H. D. Irwin offered a tract at Lorin.

F. H. Dunn made an offer on the part of San Francisco.

Diamond and Vandercook's offer of a tract in Fruitvale was then made.

San Leandro, San Jose, Redwood City and other places made offers.

The matter was sent to the committee, who recommended accepting the five-acre tract, throwing out all together all offers except those of Oakland, Berkeley and San Francisco, as it considered the other cities to far from the State University and the affiliated colleges.

J. West Martin moved that the committee's recommendation be adopted, and discussion commenced.

San Francisco presented a memorial, stating that Oakland was too remote, as the majority of working people lived in San Francisco. They recommended that the Regents and the Trustees of the Lick School confer with a view of consolidating the two schools.

The Governor suggested that there was not room enough on the Lick school property to erect another building and the San Francisco delegation agreed to purchase more land.

The claims of Oakland were then advanced by W. R. Davis and R. M. Fitzgerald.

REGENT MARTIN'S VIEWS.

J. West Martin told a Tribune reporter previous to his departure to San Francisco to attend the meeting of the Regents that he was confident that Oakland would gain the Wilmerding School.

Mr. Martin said: "Of course, I do not know just what these San Francisco gentlemen intend to offer but I am sure they cannot present a more acceptable site than Ayala Park. I am confident that Oakland will have the school. It is only right and proper that it should be here, and I intend to make that fact clear to the board today, if the San Francisco gentlemen offer any sites.

"The Wilmerding School has nothing to do with the Lick School or any other school or college in San Francisco. It is under the supervision and administration of the University officers, and it should be near the University. The money was left in trust to the Board of Regents to see that a school was located near the University, and it should be placed there. It would be unfair and illegal to have it anywhere else.

"If necessary, I shall address the board and prove that what I say is true, but, of course, my remarks will depend upon what Mr. Phelan and the other gentlemen say.

"A number of the Regents will be absent from to-day's meeting. Mr. Albert Miller chairman of the Committee on Sites, and Judge Slack will not attend in all probability. I doubt if the question is settled to-day. I shall move for a postponement of the decision if I find that members of the board, who have the greatest interest of the University at heart, are not present. Some of the public men of San Francisco have become alarmed over the push and energy displayed by Oakland, and want the school in San Francisco, but I shall plainly tell these gentlemen that this school is a University adjunct, and must be placed convenient to the University. I expect it will be exciting meeting, but of this I am sure, the Wilmerding School will be located on this side."

GOLD IN THE RUINS.

$50 FOUND THIS MORNING.

Mrs. Du Bois Had All Her Savings in the House.

A Story of the Days When Oakland Was Very Young.

Among the ashes of the once famous Du Bois house, women have been looking for money. The great fire last night completely ruined one of the oldest land marks in Alameda. Thirty-six years ago Mr. and Mrs. Du Bois came to this coast and opened a saloon, bowling alley and boat house on the street that is now Broadway and the water front. In those days the house was directly on the water's edge and the boats were kept in a part of the house. The Du Bois place, with its grounds was in the very heart of Oakland and was the scene of many merry-makings. At that time it was considered dangerous to go beyond the old plaza where the present Hall of Records stands and Mrs. Du Bois says she can distinctly recall the terror the thought of going beyond that place inspired her. All along the water front were houses and saloons and all Oakland life and gayety was centered there.

The bay steamers and schooners stopped at the Du Bois landing, close to the old-fashioned two story house. Du Bois made money in those days, but money came and went too easily and when he died, fifteen years later, his wife was left penniless. The town had grown and spread until the plaza had become safe to all and the water front was no longer a fashionable avenue.

The landing at Du Bois' place was filled in and a wharf built, obliterating entirely all traces of the former boating landing. The Du Bois house and the old justice court house stood side by side and grew old and dilapidated together. Mrs. Du Bois continued to live in her home and it began to be filled with curios and keepsakes of early days. Sea captains coming from far off ports brought to their old friends presents from strange lands. Magnificent Oriental shawls, silks, quaint lamps and all manner of curios, filled the house. In every nook and corner was some article rich and rare.

When the fire came last night, Mrs. Du Bois was almost frantic in her efforts to save her treasures. She did not cease trying to collect them together until the flames surrounded her. Then she first realized her danger. She rushed to the porch on the second floor, and seizing the sign board swung herself far out into the street. Her keepsakes were nearly all destroyed in the flames together with about $200 in cash. All this morning, Mrs. Du Bois and her friends have been digging in the ruins hoping to recover something. Already over $50 has been recovered, blackened and disfigured by the fire. Mrs. Du Bois grieves over the loss of her old home with its many, many associations, more than anything else and dreads the future with its changes, she says, more than she can tell.

THE SHERIFF MAY ACT.

How the License Violators Are to Be Handled in Future.

This morning County Tax Collector Barber demanded and was given a number of blank county liquor licenses and will hereafter be prepared to furnish them.

He will also receive whatever money applicants may have to pay for such licenses. That, he claims, however, will be the limit of his work in that direction. As to the following up of delinquents he will leave that to devolve upon some other person.

James W. Ballard, who has just been deprived of the work of collecting these saloon license tax fees turned over to Mr. Barber all the books, blanks and other articles belonging to the county which have come into his possession as a consequence of his incumbency with the now defunct position.

Sheriff White has been watching this change of affairs with an observant eye and, speaking on the subject today said:

"The fact that a man becomes delinquent in his liquor license tax makes him a violator of the law. That I suppose will cause more work to devolve upon me. I have not yet decided how I shall prepare for it. I will speak to the Supervisors and ascertain what they want to do in the matter."

PEDDLERS MADE HAPPY.

M. C. Chapman Knocks Out the Restriction Ordinance.

Merchants Much Interested in a Decision Recorded Today.

M. C. Chapman succeeded this morning in knocking out another ordinance in the Superior Court, Judge Frick holding that the instrument was illegal reversing the finding of the Police Court and dismissing the action.

The ordinance in question is No. 1298 and was designed with a view to regulating traffic and sales in the streets of Oakland, and preventing such traffic from endangering the public comfort and safety.

This ordinance has of late been given quite an amount of attention by the merchants of this city, and more recently impelled Chief of Police Lloyd to issue a special order to the department to enforce its provisions.

The third section reads as follows:

"Nothing herein contained shall be construed as preventing or making unlawful the prompt delivery in good faith of any of said personal property to or at any such fixed place of business so situated and conducted in such building or store within such territory in any case where such personal property so being delivered is actually, and in good faith, consigned goods, or has actually and in good faith been there before purchased at a place outside of such territory by such lawful occupant of such fixed place of business, actually doing business therein, and said property is in either such case there being delivered to him thereat."

As interpreted by Mr Chapman this section prohibits the selling of goods of within that district to any person save the proprietor of a store abutting on the street, and, as he claims, the selling, for instance, of milk, because of the fact that there is no store in the district which deals in that commodity.

The action has been pending for some time and the legality of the ordinance was tested on the grounds that the subject is not clearly indicated in the title of the act; that it was not uniform in operation, and was of a local and special character that it was not a police or sanitary regulation; that it was a restriction of trade and violation of public policy; that it was unreasonable and that it tended to create a monopoly.

H. A. Melvin appeared for the people. He knew however, that the ordinance was defective. The Court sustained Mr Chapman's contention, declared the ordinance illegal, reversed the finding in the Police Court and dismissed the case.

This action will lead to a further move on the part of the Merchants' Exchange to get an ordinance on this subject, which will stand the test of legal inquiry. The ordinance knocked out to-day was passed during Mr Chapman's administration as Mayor.

Bungling Work Caused the Victims Agonizing Deaths.

SHRIEKS OF THE DYING.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

HAVANA March 31.—Never in modern times has there been a more sickening spectacle than that which to-day attended the public execution of five Cubans, condemned to death by the garrote as "murderers, violators and incendiaries."

The troops were drawn up in a hollow square and in the middle were placed a chair and post.

Ruiz, the public executioner, had deputized an assistant to conduct the affair.

The condemned men were brought into the square to meet their fate.

One had confessed guilt and affirmed the innocence of all the others, who also protested they were guiltless.

The first man took his seat in the chair calmly. The iron collar was fixed about his neck and the cap drawn over his face.

The victim died by slow strangulation, emitting the most distressing cries.

The second execution was accomplished with even more distressing awkwardness, the executioner being almost on the verge of collapse.

Protests of officers and priests forced Ruiz to undertake the third execution, but he did little better than his assistant had done

NOT THE MEN.

Sheriff Cunningham of Stockton was with Chief Lloyd this morning trying to connect Root and Thompson with the Stockton gold brick job which netted its operators about $20,000 but after seeing them and their pictures declared they are not the men he wants.

A. Premore and Mr Kahn, two arrivals from Tuscarora, Nev., also looked over the photographs and determined that the men were the ones who came very nearly unloading some of their wares on Mr. Premore. He became interested in the Mexican mine story and was taken to Sacramento where he saw the Indian with the bullion. They persuaded him to advance some money to develop the property and he left for home to get his bank book. While in Tuscarora he incidentally told Mr. Kahn of the speculation he was about to make. Kahn is a merchant and had heard of gold bricks before. He secured possession of his friend's bank book and refused to give it back to him. The operators became frightened by the delay and left the place suddenly.

UNION MEN GET IT.

Decision by the Y. M. I. About the Music for Their Council.

The members of the Y. M. I. have decided to employ union music for their grand council meeting to be held in Haywards, beginning May 18th, although to uphold unionism will cost something over $100 more than it would to have employed a non-union band.

Bids for contracts to furnish music were asked for and several responses made. The lowest being from the Mare Island Band, a non-union organization. The matter was debated by the delegates and the committee of Haywards' citizens and it was finally decided to sustain the union. The contract was awarded to Richardson & Zander's Oakland Concert Band.

SLANDEROUS STATEMENTS.

The Truth of the Philadelphia Conference Is Set Forth.

A LULL AT WASHINGTON.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

WASHINGTON March 31.—A resolution was adopted by the House today, authorizing the expenditure of $20,000 of the unexpended balance of the appropriation for the Cascades, Columbia River for the construction of protecting walls necessary to opening the canal to navigation.

The House disagreed to the Senate amendments to the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill and agreed to conference.

Bingham (Rep.) of Pennsylvania, McCall (Rep.) of Tennessee), and Dockery (Dm.) of Missouri were appointed conferees.

The consideration of the sundry civil bill was then resumed. During the consideration of items under the head of coast and geodetic survey, Cannon took occasion to sharply criticise the administration for "freezing out" Professor T. C. Mendenhall predecessor of General Duffield, the present superintendent

He described Mendenhall as the most competent man whoever presided as superintendent, his scientific attainments being recognized all over the country. He referred to the present superintendent as a "new discovery," but said he did not desire to reflect in any way on his competency or ability

Adams (Rep.) of Pennsylvania took advantage of the latitude allowed in the debate on the appropriation bill to arouse the ire of the silver Republicans from the West by bringing up the question of current reports about Washington of a conference between several silver Republicans and some Philadelphia manufacturers, which was the subject of a formal meeting of manufacturers of that city last night.

He referred to "misleading reports" in the papers of an alleged compact between free-silver Republicans and manufacturers, by which he said it was even proposed to yield the great doctrine of protection. He said one of the Western States (South Dakota) only a few days ago rebuked her Senator by declaring for protection and sound money

Last night, he said the Philadelphia Manufacturers Club of Philadelphia responded by the passage of strong resolutions denouncing and repudiating this alleged compact.

He had the resolutions read.

Hartman said he was glad of an opportunity to say on the floor what should have been said several days ago.

Hartman agreed the reports scattered broadcast by the press regarding the so-called Washington conference had been false and misleading. But the silver men were nowise responsible for these false reports. The plain truth was some manufacturers of Philadelphia requested a conference. Their invitation had been accepted. Twenty-eight manufacturers had come over from Philadelphia, and a three-hour consultation was had. The report that that meeting had been prepared by Senators Mantle, Carter, Cannon and Dubois and himself was absolutely correct There was no suggestion of any agreement. In fact, it was distinctly stated no conclusion had been reached.

'But,' said Hartman, indignantly, "for the purpose of breaking down and villifying Republicans who had the hardihood to stand up for silver, the gold press denounced us. No more willful falsehood and slander was ever circulated in the public press They coined a lie and attempted to force it down our throats."

Anna Eva Fay Appears Before a Big House at the Macdonough.

Anna Eva Fay, who has been characterized and justly so, as the fair Mahatma, appeared at the Macdonough Theatre last night before an audience which comprised hundreds of the best people of this city. It was the first time that she had been seen by many of those in attendance, although there were hundreds present who had in previous years marveled at the mystic power of the little woman. Miss Fay is now the most celebrated of all the artists who perform tricks upon the stage which seem to be the work of a supernatural agency That these tricks are performed in that manner, Miss Fay does not assert, and yet that they are the work of simply human hands seems almost incredible There was nothing done by Miss Fay last night which did not create wonderment and astonishment among her spectators, and every act was received with applause.

The closing feature was the reading of a number of private questions written on separate pieces of paper by people in various parts of the house Miss Fay not only gave the names of the writers, but at the same time, the substance of the questions and answers, in a way that satisfied all those who propounded them

She will give three more night performance at the Macdonough, and is sure of liberal patronage.

COMING EVENTS

Next week amusement patrons will enjoy two of the greatest attractions of the season. For Monday and Tuesday evenings Hoyt's latest success, "A Milk White Flag," is announced, and the latter part of the week "Sinbad" will be seen The sale of seats for "A Milk White Flag" opens next Thursday, and a big rush is expected at the boxoffice.

'Sinbad' is now crowding the Columbia. The reputation of this gorgeous extravaganza is so familiar to the public as to require slight announcement Its production here will pack the Macdonough each performance.

THE OAKLAND.

The pretty English comedy-drama, "The Golden Polugh," attracted a large audience at the Oakland Theatre last evening. The play deals with various phases of English life, and the more serious portions of the drama are brightened up with clever bits of comedy The production last night was a finished one, while the new scenery was particularly pleasing.

Norval McGregor made his re-appearance in the leading male part of Sir Charles Gordan. He was received with old-time favor, and interpreted the part with force Miss Virginia Jackson as Mrs Oakley, the deserted wife, gave her usual careful rendition of the role, while Frank Bacon George Hermance, William Burress, May Waring and Jennie Weideman, all sustained the characters alloted to them very ably.

Next week a big production of "Michael Strogoff" will be given.

THE BALDWIN.

James O'Neill and his company opened their season at the Baldwin Theatre last night with 'Monte Cristo." The popular play was staged in a very elaborate manner and the company was strong throughout. O'Neill was as dashing as ever in the title role. He carried the burden of the play in a most able manner, and the support was good in all details "Virginius" on an elaborate scale will be seen this evening.

THE CALIFORNIA.

"Friends," that bright sparkling play with which Edwin Milton Royle made a reputation, was presented at the California Theatre last night It was given with almost the identical cast that marked its production here on its last visit to the coast. It was much enjoyed by a good house and should get its share of theatrical patronage during the week

THE COLUMBIA

"Sinbad" is too good an attraction to be gainsaid even in Lent. It is packing the Columbia Theatre nightly, and its merriment and bright special features meet thorough appreciation.

THE TIVOLI.

"Said Pasha" is continuing its uninterrupted course of success at the Tivoli It is tuneful, funny and full of action The Tivoli always has a good show

THE ORPHEUM.

Nothing can affect the popularity of the Orpheum It runs along with overflow houses night in and night out, no matter whether Lent is here or not It is easy though to account for this, as the programme is so varied that there is always something to appeal to pleasure seekers. Segommer, the ventriloquist, the three Marvelles the Masons, and Gertie Carlisle are among this week's attractions.

MOROSCO S.

THE ALCAZAR.

Leonard Grover Jr. has returned to regular lines at the Alcazar, and this week is producing a double bill. It consists of a comedy, "My Wife's Husband," and a drama, "The Homestead."

An Insane Printer Surprises Some Chicago Theater Goers.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

CHICAGO, March 31.—Robert Rothman, a printer, supposed to be insane, interrupted the grand opera of Romeo and Juliet at the Auditorium last night. The curtain had been rung up on the balcony scene but a few minutes and Jean de Reszke had started his lines. "O, night spread out thy pinions above me and——"

"Stop, stop!" shouted Rothman, as he climbed up the stairs which lead to the stage from the front and advanced toward de Reszke "Stop I say, and touch me not or you'll be sorry for it."

The man removed his coat and vest and cast them on the floor De Reszke took his advice and stopped in amazement. At the same instant William Perry, of the opera company management, stepped on the stage and walked toward Rothman.

Mr. Perry also stopped, but as he did so he gave a signal and the curtain was rung down

Rothman was between it and the footlights and Max Dazold and Charles Gilkeson, stage hands, were sent out to remove him.

Each seized one of his arms and the man was led into the wings, loudly protesting that his captors were making the mistake of their lives in so handling him.

Rothman was taken by the police to Harrison street station where he talked in an incoherent manner, claiming to be the son of God and to be possessed of divine powers.

PRESIDENTIAL CAMPAIGNERS.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

ST. LOUIS, Mar. 31.—The situation in a nutshell is this: Nobody will enter the convention with votes enough by about 100 or 150 to nominate him on the first, second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh, eighth, ninth, or tenth ballot. The nominee therefore will be a second choice man. McKinley leads today in the matter of instructions and will hold this lead. Allison is the strongest second choice and will gain in strength right along. I therefore predict Allison's nomination.

The speaker was Hon. James S. Clarkson of Iowa, member of the Republican National Committee, who is here with other members of the subcommittee looking after convention matters. Referring again to McKinley, Mr. Clarkson said:

"His campaign has been so conducted as to alienate all the second choice states, and for that reason he is today the weakest man in the race, conceding that he can not be nominated on the first ballot. I don't know a single delegation that will go to him when its candidate is dropped. On the other hand, Senator Allison is the second choice of nearly every state or district that has elected its delegates. Mr. Reed will have as much strength in the South as McKinley.

"I have just returned from a trip through the West," continued Mr. Clarkson. "In all the region west of Nebraska the sentiment is yet unformed as to men. The people of the Pacific coast and mountain states are discussing a great issue—that of money and not men. They will send to St. Louis in June 80 or 100 delegates instructed solidly for silver, without reference to the views of any man on this great question. That a vote so massed will have to be reckoned with, and that seriously, nobody with pretensions to political foresight and acumen can doubt.

"It may be that Idaho, Montana, Nevada and Utah will send delegations to the Convention instructed for some pronounced free silver advocate, such as Teller or Cameron. In fact, I have been assured that that is what these states will do."

Secretary J. H. Manley was more reticent. When his attention was called to the latest estimate of McKinley's strength made at Washington by Gen. Grosvenor and published in a morning paper, in which the Ohioan was given 355 votes on the first ballot out of the total of 372 delegates elected up to Saturday night, he studied the figures closely for a long while and then said:

"This only shows that they are still claiming. They can claim all they want. What we want and what we are going to have are votes."

Senator Thomas Carter, chairman of the Republican National Committee, was asked:

"Is it true that you have discerned the premonitory rumbling of a boom for Don Cameron in the Northwest?"

"It's more than a premonitory rumbling. It's roaring. I believe we will get the votes not only of Montana and other Northwest states, but that the votes of the West generally will come to him naturally."

"Then you apprehend some trouble over the silver question at the St. Louis Convention?"

"Now that is an entirely different matter and one about which I will say nothing."

Col William H. Hahn of Ohio professed to be unable to see how the opposition is to head off McKinley.

A meeting of this grand old Republican Club is called for Wednesday evening, April 1, 1896, at the old quarters in Elite Hall, corner Twelfth and Webster streets, Oakland, at 7:30 P. M. sharp. Every old member is expected to be present. The coming campaign will be one of the most important in the history of our country. An early organization means a grand victory. Come without fail and bring with you any citizens of your ward who believe in Republican principles and who will support Republican nominees.

By order of the Committee.

ED. L. JOHNSTON,
Secretary.

The call is making the members of the other clubs in the ward do some hard guessing. The rival organization was started about two weeks ago by J. M. Havens, Clarence Crowell and other prominent Republicans who prefixed to the name of the club "Regular." This is the title of the old ward club and its members do not relish having the honors taken from them. However, there is no hard feeling in the matter, as it is understood that there is plenty of room for two such organizations in the ward.

"The other club has no right to the title 'Regular Fifth Ward Republican Club,'" says Mr. Alexander, chairman of the original club. "The old Fifth Ward Club adjourned to the call of the chair and I have just issued that call as chairman.

"We have our records and our secretary, and the others have nothing to show for their existence except the call that was issued by several Republicans as private individuals. Our club will be reorganized for the campaign on Wednesday night."

Members of the other club feel that it is in the interests of the party to work together harmoniously and there is no probability of a clash.

In speaking of the matter Clarence Crowell says:

"We thought the other club had adjourned sine die, and as they were taking no steps to reorganize, Mr. Havens and about fifteen of the most prominent and staunch Republicans of the Fifth Ward issued the call and formed the new club which now has 120 members. It being the first club organized in the district we believe it can rightly claim the title of "Regular" club.

On Thursday evening at Milton Hall is to be held an adjourned meeting of the Second Ward Republican Club, F. R. Porter, president. Oratory and refreshments are to be features of the occasion. Among the speakers are to be F. A. Campbell, president of the "old" or 1894 club, and P. M. Fisher, president of the "Regular" club. It is intended to interest all the Republicans of the ward in a single club. Last Saturday evening a committee was appointed at a Milton Hall mass meeting, its province being to learn if the "old" club adjourned sine die at its last meeting many months ago. This committee, composed of F. R. Porter of the Executive Committee of the "old" club, Mortimer Smith, secretary of the P. M. Fisher club, William Hart, J. S. Wixon and J. A. Colquhoun, will report at Thursday evening's meeting.

The First Ward Regular Republican Club has procured permanent headquarters at Hansen's Hall, corner Wood and Goss streets, where the next meeting will be held Wednesday evening, April 1st, when business of great importance will be transacted and reports of committees received.

The Republicans of the First Ward have come to the conclusion that they are numerous enough to have two clubs in that ward and, in accordance with that idea, those of them who reside in the eastern part of the ward will hold a meeting tonight in Kohler's Hall, corner of Seventh and Chester streets, to organize a club for that section. All Republicans in that section are requested to attend.

Claus Spreckels is going to Europe next month.

The members of the Political Equality Club have elected the following vice-presidents: Mrs. J. C. Campbell, Mrs. G. W. Tripp, Mrs. E. S Howard and Mrs. H. Vrooman. A treasurer will be chosen next Monday, when the organization will be completed. A number of new members were enrolled at the meeting yesterday. A meeting of the county society followed, at which it was mentioned that the ladies of East Oakland felt slighted that at least one of the parlor meetings announced for the coming week had not been apportioned to their district. They were promised a meeting when Miss Anhtony returns to this city in May.

Preparations are being pushed in San Francisco for the local Republican primary for the election of delegates to the State Convention.

"The County Committee will call the primary this week, and everything promises a quiet election," said Chairman Manwaring last evening. "No one who has not made special efforts to canvass the situation can realize after the recent talk that has been going on how solidly the people are standing together in support of John D. Spreckels and the policy he is carrying out. I have been about a great deal all over the city, and everywhere the people interested in party affairs realize that the coming primary will be one in which their votes will be honestly counted; that it will not be dominated by corrupt bosses, and that the party is on the high road to success in the Nation, State and City. The party is going to pull together, and the campaign will be carried out without scandals and corrupt jobbery on the part of those in control."

The Auditing Committees have been named for the coming local elections at San Leandro.

The San Francisco Post last night published a statement that the railroad was going to support John D. Spreckels. This is what the Call says about it today:

An evening paper published last night a story to the effect that the railroad was going to support John D. Spreckels and his friends and the rumor set the politicians talking and wondering. So far the tracks of Steve Gage have not been discovered in the San Francisco political field, and while in the Second, Third and other Congressional districts the railroad hand and its victories have been plainly evident the relations of the railroad to the politics of the Fourth and Fifth districts have been mysteries about which people have been able to only guess and wonder. There has not yet been a move on the local checkerboard that has been ascribed to the railroad with the exception of the desperate and futile attempts of Kelly and Mahoney to get hold of something. Many have supposed that the railroad was quietly backing these two politicians.

What the railroad proposes to do in San Francisco remains as much of a mystery as ever. That it should decide to have nothing to do with Kelly and Mahoney is not strange, for the railroad's power could not now put vitality into that disreputable combination. John D. Spreckels said last evening that the report was all news to him.

"If the railroad is going to support the Republican organization I don't know it," he said, "but I will be glad to have all Republicans support the ticket, whether they are railroad men or not. I have had no conferences with railroad people and there is no agreement or understanding looking to their support. If the railroad wants to come in and support the Republican party without controlling it I suppose there will be no objection. That is all I know about the story."

James S. Clarkson, the great Republican political leader, in an interview says it is his opinion that the Pacific states should have a representation in the President's Cabinet. Mr. Clarkson's opinion is shared by every man on the coast.

A correspondent says: "The resolution adopted by a Democratic convention in Missouri on Saturday congratulating Cleveland on his ability as a duck shooter and expressing regret that he had not devoted more time to killing teal and less in issuing bonds have just enough of jest and earnest in them to be fully representative of the American humor of the day."

The Convention sub-committee of the Republican National Committee met in St. Louis yesterday. J. S. Clarkson of Iowa, Joseph H. Manley of Maine, Colonel William Hahn of Ohio, ex-Governor Joseph W. Fifer of Illinois, Senator Thomas Carter of Montana, General Powell Clayton of Arkansas, John M. Ewing of Wisconsin, proxy for Senator Payne, and Colonel R. C. Kerens of Missouri were present.

Each delegate will have three tickets, including his own, and the people from each State and Territory desiring admission to the convention will have to apply to the delegates to the convention from their respective states for tickets. The tickets for members of the Grand Army of the Republic will be given to the National Council of Administration and distributed by their directions. All tickets to the convention will be issued on Monday, June 15th, by the sergeant-at-arms at the convention building.

The Republican State Convention of New Hampshire meets today. The feeling at present is that the convention will instruct its St. Louis delegation for Reed. It is predicted by a few, however, that the delegation will not be instructed.

The Democratic State Central Committee yesterday decided to call the State and Congressional Conventions of Colorado for the selection of National delegates to meet in Denver April 15th. Senator Tillman of South Carolina is expected to be here at that time.

Dennis T. Flynn, who is serving his second term as delegate from Oklahoma to the House of Representatives, was renominated by acclamation by the Republican Territorial Convention held in Kingfisher yesterday.

Cyrus Leland, Jr., will be candidate for chairman of the Republican National Committee, and it is claimed by his friends in Kansas that he has consented to stand for the position at the request of William McKinley, who wishes him to manage the campaign in case of his nomination for the Presidency. Leland has been a member of the National Committee from Kansas for twelve years and the State Convention instructed the delegation to St. Louis Convention to elect him for another term. He was chairman of the Republican State Central Committee and redeemed the State two years ago from Populist rule.

Ex-Governor of Ohio Campbell would like the compliment of the solid vote of Ohio's delegation in the National Democratic Convention for President. Yesterday he said: "I am not a candidate for President this year, for I do not believe that any Democrat can be elected in November. It is unjust, but nevertheless true, that the people blame the Democratic party for the hard times and that will beat us. However, it would be pleasant, and a great honor besides, to receive the complimentary vote of the Ohio delegation, and if the 'boys' want to give it to me I shall not object."

The dances given by this lodge are one of the features of the social season, and are thoroughly enjoyable. A fortunate selection has been made in the committees:

AN APPEAL FOR AID.

Thousands in the Throes of Tobacco Torture.

Only Prompt, Decisive Action Can Save Them—Some Already Saved Prove That There Is a Way.

Is everybody out of bondage?

Would that we could answer, "Yes! Everybody's free."

But in fact, at the end of this enlightened century, there are hundreds of thousands, yes, millions of men in the clutches of a tyrant worse than any in history, unable to fight their way to liberty, impotent to break their fetters.

When once the tobacco habit gets its grip on a man, it destroys his nerve and will power, and robs him of his only means of defense. His life is sapped out of him, his manhood destroyed, his brain deadened, until he becomes a sallow, skinny, listless wreck of a man, his existence a living death, and himself an object of disgust instead of love and affection to those who are dear to him.

Every day the hold grows stronger and demands more victims. Many are in the last stages of tobacco poisoning, others are only beginning to get into the net.

All need help, at once, without delay. Is there no hope?

There is. Only one—No-To-Bac—the wonderful guaranteed medicine. Even after years of slavery, No-To-Bac cures without fail. Nobody's case could be worse than the following:

TOBACCO HAD SHATTERED HIS NERVES.

GARRETTSVILLE, O.

Gentlemen: I am happy to say that No-To-Bac has completely cured me of the tobacco habit. I had both smoked and chewed for thirty years; had tried several times to stop. My health had been terribly poor and my nervous system shattered to pieces generally. I cannot say too much in favor of your remedy: it will cure any one who wants to get cured of the tobacc habit and will give the treatment an honest and thorough trial. You are at liberty to publish my statement if you so desire.

Truly yours, J. W. NASH.

Tobacco-user, shake off your shackles! No-To-Bac makes it so easy. Begin today. Your own druggist sells it under absolute guarantee to cure. Try it! If in a week or two you do not like gaining weight, feeling new, manly vigor, and making your loved ones happy learn the tobacco habit over again. Get our booklet, "Don't Tobacco Spit and Smoke Your Life Away," written guarantee of cure and free sample for the asking. Address The Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago and New York.

WAS A BIG BONFIRE.

The Pioneer Planing Mills and the Adjoining Structures Burned.

A STIFF WIND BLOWING.

MANY LANDMARKS DESTROYED.

The Losses in the Thousands and the Insurance Light.

A fire broke out shortly before 7 o'clock last evening in the engine room of the old Pioneer planing mill at Broadway and First streets and before the flames could be checked the mill building and all of the little rookeries south of it were burned to the ground. Next to the last burned shanty is Taylor's lumber yard and only by vigorous work were the firemen able to save this from destruction.

The alarm came in from box 2 and the department quickly responded. A second alarm was sent in a few minutes later and soon every engine in the city had a stream playing on the fire. But the odds were against the department. The north wind was high and the buildings little more than tinder boxes, so that the firemen could do nothing beyond saving the adjacent property. Several times the buildings across Broadway and First street threatened to break into flames, but a stream promptly turned on them saved a spreading of the conflagration.

The first building to go was the old mill. It was one of the first structures in Oakland, having been erected in 1852 by George Barnes and later was conducted by ex-Mayor Blethen and Terry. T. L. Hierlihy of Alameda was their successor. He could not make the business pay and turned it over to Judson McCully, its last proprietor. McCully had sub-let a portion of the building to the Oakland Sash & Door Co., of which E. C. Bridgeman is president. The building was owned by the Kramm estate.

In the line came the Twin Brothers mush establishment, the American Boiler Works, a restaurant kept by Mrs. E. Dubolee, the Cottage saloon and restaurant, H. Cupper's saloon and a news and tobacco stand kept by Henry Brantes, all of which were left a smouldering pile.

The total loss by the fire is about $30,000, with insurance very low. The mill company was the heaviest losers, their property being probably worth $25,000. Taylor & Co.'s lumber was damaged to the extent of about $1,000, fully insured. The Sash and Door factory lost about $1,000, among other things being a valuable team of horses.

The frame shanties were worth perhaps $3,000 and were owned mostly by the Adams estate.

All of the buildings were landmarks. In one of them met the first city council which ever convened in Oakland, and at one of their meetings a matter of business was transacted that has the city now in litigation. It was the deeding to Horace Carpentier of the water front.

Though there were fully 10,000 people at the fire the crowd was very orderly and the police had little trouble in keeping them behind the fire ropes.

Accidents to firemen were very few. F. J. Sheehan of truck No. 3 was struck by a stream of water and thrown from a lumber pile sustaining a sprained hand and other slight injuries.

Walter Williams, a spectator, got tangled up in some barbed wire and was slightly cut about the feet.

An unknown woman fainted from excitement and was escorted to her home by Officer Phillips, while the rest of the unfortunates had their wounds dressed at the Receiving Hospital.

The crew of the steamer Newark saved the boat from a possible scorching by running it out into the stream.

PRAISE FOR THE FIREMEN.

In connection with the fire the following letter was handed to the Tribune this morning by an admirer of the department:

"I wish to bestow great credit on the Oakland Fire Department and especially on their young chief for the work accomplished by them last night.

"When one considers what a windy night it was and taking everything in consideration, he cannot help but give the boys credit for getting the flames under their control in so short a time.

"I have served my time as a fireman in New York, San Francisco and Alameda. Respectfully yours,

CHARLES STURM,

A Berry Train.

A special train is to be put on between Watsonille and Oakland during the berry season. It will leave Santa Cruz daily about 4 P. M., reaching Watsonville about 5 or 5:30 P. M., San Jose about 9 or 10 P. M., and then over the coast division to San Francisco, arriving about 1 A. M. The freight will then be brought over here on ferryboats.

JURGENS MAKES REPLY.

She Has Been a Bad Tenant and He Helped Her All He Could.

Charles Jurgens objects strongly to a publication in a morning paper that he has adopted hard-handed methods regarding Mrs. Matilda J. Jones of 2151 San Pablo avenue. He has attached her store and that is the point at issue. In connection with the matter he makes the following statement:

"She has always been behind in the payment of her rent, and Mr. Jurgens was lenient with her and delayed the payment as long as he could.

"In May, 1895, she was behind six months, and he took her note for $120, the rent due, and allowed her to remain. She is now behind over four months, making ten months in all, and it became necessary for him to do something or settle the matter in some way.

"He called on her repeatedly and tried to get a settlement but could not. He offered to give her a store around the corner not a hundred feet from where she now is for one-half her rent, but she refused to go, and she refused to give her a store and living-room at Temescal for $6 per month, and took her out and showed her the place, but she refused to go, and tshe refused to move out, or settle, or do anything. On top of all this she deeded her property consisting of several pieces of land to a third person, so he, to protect himself, called upon S. B. McKee, the attorney, and commenced a suit for $171, the amount due him.

"Mr. Jurgens says he has done everything in his power to help this woman. He has been patient, lenient and kind, and was only forced to take this measure by his inability to settle the matter in any other way."

A Mysterious Stranger.

A New Year's morning in the little mountain hamlet of A——. The town church was filled with worshipers. The rector had just ascended the pulpit to deliver his sermon and to remind his parishoners of the importance of the day, when suddenly his sharp eye made the discovery that a stranger was seated among his audience, a man, whom—he was sure of that—he had never seen there before.

Whether from design or accident, the stranger had seated himself on the bench reserved for the town officers and men of rank, and was curiously gazed at by his neighbors. Nobody had taken a seat close beside him as though fearing to molest so distinguished appearing a man, in spite of the fact that the little edifice was crowded.

A strange face among his parishoners was a very rare thing for the good rector, who had baptized and confirmed the majority of them, and while not in the habit of judging people by their looks he could not help noticing from his vantage ground on the pulpit that the man was very becomingly and richly attired.

However, the rector did not allow the stranger's presence to interfere with his duties. He delivard his sermon, admonishing his hearers not to be forgetful of the teachings of Christ, the lesson of his coming and sufferings, and the joys and miseries which are our portion in each succeeding year.

By the time he had reached his house the rector had almost forgotten the existence of the stranger. But the man had also been noticed by his wife who did not fail to mention the circumstance to him. They exchanged a few casual remarks about the probable cause that had brought the stranger to their out-of-the-way little mountain town on New Year's day of all days. Surely it was not the architectural value of their little church, for it possessed none; therefore the rector's wife formed the pleasing conclusion that he had somehow heard of the oratorical talent of her husband, and had come to hear him preach the New Year's sermon. He may have been, so she argued (the wish is ever the father of the thought), sent by the synod to satisfy himself from personal observation of the rector's abilities, and so forth, all of which her husband modestly refuted.

Pretty soon New Year's callers began to put in their appearance, and once more the rector discarded all thoughts of the fascinating stranger. Later the sexton arrived, having some commissions to execute and business matters to talk over.

This done, he remained at the door, twisting his hat in his fingers, making sundry unsuccessful attempts to say something. He cleared his throat, and finally summed up sufficient courage to ask "Pastor, have you noticed that we had an 'incognito' living and in the flesh in our church to-day?"

"Certainly, I have," responded the rector. "I dare say you mean a stranger, clad in a silver-gray coat?"

"Yes, yes—something truly noble."

"What, the coat or the stranger?"

"Both."

"Do you mean to insinuate that the stranger is traveling under an assumed name?"

"That is just it! An assumed name that nobody knows."

"You mean a name that you do not know?"

"Well, I dare say. But our count is apt to know it."

"'Timid?' you fool; 'intimate,' not timid.' But I hardly think so. He was not in the count's pew."

"What of it, rector? There is a secret connected with his appearance here, I tell you. They did not come to church together, it is true. First came Mr. Incognito, and three minutes later the count. When he beheld the stranger he looked somewhat surprised and taken aback, as though he meant to say 'Keep it dark.' He then smiled very pleasantly and passed by to his pew. Mr. Incognito smiles also, no doubt meaning, 'All right, count; we understand each other.' After the service the count smiled again when passing the stranger, who, in return, made a polite obeisance, looking knowingly at the pulpit and vestry, as if to say, 'Our judgment agrees, count.' * * * Well, you are aware that the count thinks a great deal of your reverence."

"Not so fast, you sly fox. Tell me first how you have discovered that our count knows more of this mysterious stranger. A mutual exchange of greetings alone may be purely accidental, you know."

"It was no difficult matter to ferret that out, rector. The mysterious stranger remained behind after the congregation had dispersed and asked me to show him the few things worth seeing. He had nothing to say and merely glanced at everything in a superficial manner, with the exception of the covers of our pulpit and baptismal font, which he inspected very closely. Finally I summoned up courage to tell him that, while there was not much to be seen in the church, the count's castle contained many gems of art; whereupon he answered that he had had a consequence with the count an hour ago."

"'Conference,' you idiot; not 'consequence.'"

"Well, then, 'conference.' He gave me a bountiful douceur and asked the way to the station."

The sexton left. Hardly had he disappeared when the station master was announced. The rector was surprised that the busy officer should have found time to pay him a New Year's call, but he received him affably.

After an exchange of the usual commonplaces the railroad man remarked in an offhand manner: "Are you aware rector, that a princely personage has honored our humble place with a short visit this morning, returning to the capital after a hasty consultation with the count and a visit to the church?"

"The prince," answered the station master, "arrived on the morning train and proceeded on foot to the castle. There he and the count had been in consultation. Later, he had been to church, returning to the city on the 11:50 o'clock train. I heard these details from one of the count's servants, who took the same train for a visit to his sister. This servant, be it understood, has the aristocratic habit of traveling second-class for short distances, which, I must confess, was an impertinence, considering the august presence of the prince. But what could I do? Pacing up and down near the ticket office, the prince could not help hearing what was going on. He stepped up to the window and asked me to exchange his second-class ticket for one of the first-class, offering the money for the difference. This I was not in a condition to do, as the train in question does not carry first-class compartments. The prince was greatly annoyed, and, though I am innocent, I know he will make me suffer for his inconvenience. All I could do was to order the conductor to place his highness in a reserved compartment by himself."

At the dinner table he communicated the observations of the latter and of the sexton to his astonished wife. The more both compared notes the more grew the importance of the mysterious stranger, and his wife insisted that the prince had come to convey momentous news to the count from the court, where the latter was greatly liked. Even the usually calm and collected rector finally agreed that this unexpected journey on a New Year's morning must have been of consequence. He brought to mind again the contents of his sermon, but his conscience was clear, and he could detect no sentence, nor word, that might be construed against the court or the reigning house. One thing only troubled him. Had the prince in the silver-gray coat been a messenger of peace or war for their little borough?

When his official duties of the day had been discharged the rector, accompanied by his wife, paid the usual New Year's call at the castle to offer the compliments of the season.

Though they tried hard to appear unconcerned, the count and his countess were preoccupied. In spite of all efforts, dedicated by their innate delicacy of feeling, both would now and then show an unusual absent mindedness, nor were they always able to hide their suppressed excitement. The count would look through the window toward the road leading to the station, as though anxiously expecting something, and the countess would now and then stop in the middle of a sentence or lose the thread of her conversation and then try hard to collect herself. Hosts and callers felt the awkward situation. It was as though the spirit of the mysterious stranger was present with them clad in his ominous silver-gray great coat, putting to flight their usual conviviality.

At length the rector's wife could stand this unnatural state of affairs no longer. As unconcernedly as possible, she asked, "Is it true, countess, that you have had a visitor from the capital early this morning?"

The countess exchanged a questioning look with her husband before she replied: "No, not I, at least the visit was paid to the count; but then——I don't——."

The count smiled his stereotyped smile. "A prince, my dear rector, if you please, a prince and one who serves an all-powerful autocratic mistress!"

"In fact," resumed the count, "his serene highness has done you more honor than myself, rector, for he spent an entire hour listening to your sermon, while to me he gave but fifteen minutes."

"Then I suppose I owe it to you, count, that the prince visited our little church during his short stay?"

"If you like, yes, rector. He ascertained accidentally from one of my servants that I would go to church, and, I dare say, he also meant to set a good example. But, what is of more importance, your prince brought me good news, and I would gladly satisfy your curiosity."

"Not at all, not at all, gracious sir; do not misinterpret my query."

"It is not that, rector. We would not keep you waiting, were we not ourselves still on the anxious seat, as it were."

Just then a servant appeared, presenting a telegram to his master, who opened and read it, handing it to the countess.

"At last!" she exclaimed, after glancing at its contents. "But it is strange that this gentleman—the prince, I beg his pardon—should have heard of it before your father knew anything about it."

The rector and his wife were preparing to leave. They had no indelicate desire to impose their presence upon the noble couple, perceiving that there was a secret. Undoubtedly the stranger, having in the meantime reached the capital, had sent that message.

"No, indeed," remonstrated the count, "you stay right here. There is no more necessity for secrecy if ever there was. My father's telegram merely confirms the glad tidings which I had received early this morning unofficially. I have been made a court chamberlain."

"Permit us to offer our heartiest congratulations," quickly exclaimed the rector. "The new year begins auspiciously for you, count."

"I am highly honored," responded the latter, "and greatly pleased."

"No doubt your new dignity has worries and troubles of its own that will keep you from home a great deal?"

"I dare say, and the first among them is the important question where to get the required uniform for my immediate appearance at court, whither I have been ordered for an audience."

"I understand perfectly that such official dignities are not without their inconvenient formalities that one has to put up with; but the prince——"

"Has called on me just on account of this very chamberlain's uniform. He must have left home in the middle of the night to be in time."

"Did he really come for the sole purpose of instructing you in the new ceremonies to be observed by you? How very considerate of him."

"He came solely on account of my new uniforms I tell you. His aim was not to be outdone by anybody else Yes, very kind of him."

"Was he a messenger from court?"

"No, not exactly that, my dear rector. He came on his own responsibility."

"But, count, if I may make so bold to ask, who in the name of all that is mysterious was this prince of yours?"

"I will not keep you in suspense," replied the host. "The mysterious stranger has left his card behind. Here it is."

The pastor took the elegant piece of pasteboard and read aloud: "Fridolin, Tailor to the Court of ——."—From the German.

Mrs. Rustel of Alameda has become insane over the Brown-Overman scandal. She imagines that her dearest friend had become implicated in the scandal and had been disgraced. The fool-killer missed his aim in Oakland last Wednesday night and a man named Casey survives in consequence. The fool-killer is a saloon keeper named Cotti and Casey thought he'd have fun with him. He put on false whiskers, took a big revolver in each hand and slipping into the saloon, demanded Cotti's money, while half a dozen of Casey's friends were present to see the fun. Cotti yelled "I will!" and bent down behind the counter as if to get his cash, but got a revolver instead and fired. The bullet whizzed so close to Casey's ear that it knocked him down and he, too, yelled: "Don't shoot any more, Cotti," and he pulled off the false beard, "Don't shoot for the Lord's sake. I was only joking. I'm Casey." Cotti put away his gun and, with the aid of Casey's friends, helped the joker to bed, where he is suffering from nervous prostration. The joke was quite as good as if it had been carried out as planned, but Casey's friends failed to laugh at it. They are of the class of fools who want their jokes to go as scheduled, but other people enjoy it almost as well at if the aim of the fool-killer had been true.—Stockton Independent.

HOW HE BEATS PULLMAN.

Train No. 1 on the Northern Pacific railroad was approaching the Bad lands from the east, the rear door of one of the standard Pullman cars was opened by a man who seemed to be in a hurry. He approached a passenger, who was gazing out of the window, according to a story in the New York Press.

"I'm a New York drummer," said the man to the fat passenger, "and I want to sit down here with you for a few minutes."

"Will it cost me anything?" inquired the passenger.

"Not a cent."

"All right; sit down then."

"Have you a sleeping car ticket?" he demanded of the man who said he was a drummer.

"I am the guest of my friend here," the drummer answered quickly.

The conductor passed on, after looking at the man in an incredulous way for fully half a minute.

"What's your scheme?" asked the fat passenger.

"I'll tell you all about it," began the drummer, confidentially. "You see I sell goods for a New York house and travel across the country several times in the course of the year. If I ride in a Pullman car it costs me about $4 a day. I am a financier in a humble way, and so I go to bed at night and pay the regular fare of $2. In the day I slip into a Pullman car and become the guest of some good fellow like yourself. By this method of financiering I make $2 every day, for I charge up the whole $4 to the house. At the end of the year I have made $480."

"Do I get any of this $2," asked the fat man, to pay for being a guest. My company is worth something. By the way do you see that steep bank on the side of the hill where it looks like marble cake? Well, that is the dividing line between central and mountain time. Here is where you turn your watch back just one hour. Since I am your guest I will extend the courtesies of my diversified knowledge."—Chic-Record.

GOOD ADVICE SOMETIMES.

But in This Particular Case It Turned Out Disastrously.

"I'd like to speak to you a minute," he said, as he met a patrolman at the corner of Michigan avenue and Wayne street, the other evening, says the Detroit Free Press.

"All right. What is it?"

"About six months ago I met you down by the City Hall one afternoon."

"Well?"

"Yes."

"When you found I was going to be married you laid your hand on my shoulder in a fatherly way, and said: 'Young man, pause and reflect.' Do you remember?"

"Yes, I think I do."

"Well, your words struck home. I paused and reflected. I did not get a license."

"No."

"You didn't, eh! Well, I am glad if advice of mine prevented you from taking a step which you might ever thereafter regret. Did you want any more advice?"

"Well, yes. The girl sued me for breach of promise and got a verdict of $2,000, and cleaned me out of my last cent and all I can earn for the next five years to come. Maybe you want to lay your fatherly hand on my shoulder and give me some more wisdom."

"Young man," said the officer as he slid his fingers along up his coat sleeve until they rested on his collar, "you move on."

A Note of Warning to Careful Minded People.

Scarcely a day passes that one does not hear of men and women who were in perfect health being suddenly stricken down by that terrible disease, pneumonia.

At no time of the year is this dangerous complaint so extremely prevalent as during the present season. There are constant changes; one day is as mild as summer, the next is bitterly cold. The very air is filled with disease and the slightest exposure often results in pneumonia. It is a disease that comes suddenly and it is all the more dangerous because it comes unannounced. A tickling in the throat, a tightness in the chest, a difficulty in breathing, a feeling of weakness, all may mean the beginning of pneumonia. It is above all things a disease that requires prompt treatment, for if a reaction is brought about, the danger may soon be over, if not, the end may be near. Any physician who is called in a case of pneumonia prescribes a stimulant instantly; but it is always some reliable stimulant such as pure whiskey—all else is useless.

It is precisely for this reason that so many physicians prescribe that standard and reliable whiskey known as Duffy's pure malt. It has saved the lives of thousands who were on the high road to pneumonia in its worst form and it has both prevented and cured the most dangerous forms of pulmonary complaints. As a great strengthening, vitalizing remedy it has never been equaled. Be sure that you get Duffy's pure malt, no matter how much you may be urged to try something cheaper.

BLIND - EYED BIGOTRY.

That Is the Way J. P. Edoff Sums Up O. G. May's Utterances.

The California State Protective Work Explained by Its President.

J. P. Edoff, President of the California State Protective Association, has made the following answer to the criticism of O. G. May of Berkeley, regarding the work done by the liquor men:

"It has not been my habit to notice the vaporings of obscure assailants who are always rushing into public prints, when they can secure the consent of the editor, to hurl venom at an imaginary foe, and I see no substantial reason why Mr. May should be made an exception to my general policy in this respect.

"The subject matter of his communication is the old threadbare sermon which has been preached and sung by the Prohibitionist for a century, and its teachings are regarded as so impracticable by modern civilization as to scarcely merit consideration.

"In this State the prohibition party has been in active existence and operation for more than a quarter of a century, and yet at the last election their vote was so insignificant as to scarcely entitle it to be dignified by the term scattering. I mention this simply for the purpose of calling attention to the fact that the prohibitionist, as represented by Mr. May, is narrow, contracted, intolerant, bigoted, selfish and opinionated, and hence it is that they make such little headway in their attempt to persuade the body politic into the adoption of their views.

"That they as a whole mean well may be admitted, but to differ with them upon the subject is to invite a cyclone of vituperation and abuse, which is always the ready weapon of a narrow intellect.

"A fair sample of this intolerance and bigotry is conspicuously apparent in the communication of Mr. May. Without any knowledge or acquaintance with myself, or, as far as I am aware, with any other member of our organization, he proceeds to launch a tirade of billingsgate and falsehood against us.

"His reference to other matters and the interests they represent shows the flippant and reckless use of a dagger in the hands of a fool.

"Now, with regards to his opinions as to the objects of our association I have no desire to make any comment or to enter into any discussion with Mr. May through the press or elsewhere. His gross perversion of the facts is so marked that anything like a fair basis of argument with men of his mentality is utterly impossible, and therefore such a discussion would prove not only unprofitable, but absurd. He is either ignorant of the truth respecting the present status of the liquor traffic in California, or does not possess sufficient moral courage to admit what is common knowledge, and that is that our association has accomplished greater results in the two years of its existence in the line it is following than all of the Prohibitionists since the organization of the State government.

"Neither is his statement true that it was or is our purpose to wrest from the local authorities the right to regulate or suppress the traffic. Upon the contrary, at the last session of the Legislature we attempted the enactment of a local option statute, submitting to a vote of the people of each county the question of license or no license, which cannot now be done by any valid enactment. This measure was defeated by the efforts of people fashioned after the caliber of Mr. May, and for no other or more substantial reason than that the measure proceeded from the liquor dealers themselves.

"We also attempted to increase the license revenue by more than $2,000,000 in the State, with a view of thereby lessening the number of retail saloons, and by so doing very greatly diminishing the opportunities for low or disorderly places, and yet this action upon our part is construed by the man from Berkeley as an attempt to plant a saloon at every man's door. In other words, he seems to consider that to double or treble the tax upon the traffic will have the effect of multiplying instead of diminishing the number of establishments, which is quite in keeping with the logic of his position throughout his whole vicious tirade.

"And finally, he says that our avowed purpose to eschew politics is a mere pretense and a sham. I wish only to add in this connection that the example, as well as the results accomplished by the political efforts of the Prohibitionists, is well calculated to persuade sensible people to enter some other field than the political arena if they desire to be a factor in public affairs."

TUESDAY..... MARCH 31, 1896.

A London critic calls attention to the fact that the Englishman has to depend for dictionaries of his own native speech mainly on the labors of American scholars." Several home-made dictionaries have a certain vogue in England but they are circumscribed and unsatisfactory, and hence the leading American works of that kind, being more comprehensive and including the established speech of the masses as well as the classes, are widely used and relied upon over there.

Senator Sehrman thinks ex-Governor Campbell is the most available candidate for President that the Democrats could name. But Campbell would not have the backing of his own state. The Ohio man is generally lucky, but his luck turns when he only has the backing of a minority. Carlisle is ahead just now. But what kind of a backing would he have from old Kentucky with a Republican Governor and a Legislature that refused to elect a Democratic Senator?

Senator White, from the Committee on Territories, recently made this report on the bill for the admission of Arizona as a State in the Union:

The report says that the Territory contains 113,000 square miles, or a greater area than is contained in the ten states of Rhode Island, Delaware, Connecticut, New Jersey, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Vermont, Maryland, West Virginia and South Carolina combined. Its resources are represented as unlimited, comprising much rich agricultural land, 40,000,000 acres of grazing land and the largest unbroken forest area in the United States, as well as rich deposits of gold, silver, copper, lead, onyx, marble and precious stones. The population is placed at 80,000 and is represented as rapidly increasing.

Bad for Menelik.

The report that King Menelik has ordered the massacre of prisoners and sick persons, who have fallen into his hands, may be true, or it may not. The ruler of Abyssinia has won a degree of respect from the civilized world for his bravery, and his stout defence of his own land. Whatever sympathy he may have gained would disappear as soon as such a report should turn out to be true. The whole civilized world would be horrified. Menelik is in constant communication with the outside world. He knows the drift of public opinion by having read to him almost daily some account of what is going on in the world.

The killing of prisoners and the sick who have fallen into his hands, as a convenient way of getting rid of them, is the diabolism of the brute and the savage. The ruler of Abyssinia is a sort of religious savage. He is lifted above the condition of an ordinary one by traditions, and by a degree of intelligence that generally counts for better things. The great forces of the world are now set against barbarism and all its forms of cruelty. The ruler of Abyssinia would be the outlaw of the world were he to murder his prisoners as they do in Darkest Africa.

Hammond at Capetown.

A few weeks ago there was great concern for the safety of John Hayes Hammond, on whom the Dutch had laid hands at Johannesburg. Hammond was sent to jail to await his trial. His friends in San Francisco were very active in getting him out of his trouble. It was not likely that such a competent mining engineer had conspired against the Dutch. Jameson has gone home to England on a picnic excursion. Hammond did not like his quarters in the Pretoria jail, and in time got an enlargement.

Hammond has since gone to Capetown, having secured that liberty by giving bail in a hundred thousand dollars. Whether he will ever go back to the Transvaal will probably depend upon his chances for acquittal. The fact that he was required to give so heavy a bond is pretty good evidence that his offense is not considered a light one. The other prisoners are held at Pretoria. The British Government has given notice that it will hold President Kruger responsible for their safety. The latter will not be troubled by notices of that kind. Hammond could not go to Capetown for his health without putting up a hundred thousand dollars. As the others could not give the required bail they will have to cultivate their health in Pretoria.

How the Champions of Free Trade Have Fared.

It is a suggestive fact that nearly all the men who have been conspicuous champions of free trade, instead of moving forward gaining in strength and favor with the public, have gone backward in influence. There is Morrison of Illinois, conspicuous once as the author of a horizontal tariff which was his wedge driven for free trade. Morrison's bill was defeated and he was afterward beaten in his race for Congress. The man had nearly dropped out of sight until the other day one or two Eastern journals informed the public that he was alive, and that he would be greatly pleased with any stray votes for a Presidential nomination.

Then there is Mills of Texas, another champion of free trade. Mills has not quite disappeared over the political grade, but he is going over fast enough. He is no longer a power. He was on the top wave for a time and is now somewhere else. Then there is Crisp, who drove the double team of soft money and free trade. The latter has been too much for him. When Crisp was Speaker of the House he had his eye on a Presidential nomination. But his name is not even mentioned now in any such connection. Crisp and Mills are slowly retreating toward the political vanishing point.

Another memorable instance is that of Wilson of West Virginia. The present Administration committed to him the work of making a tariff that should have all the essential elements of free trade. Wilson went to work to achieve the greatest victory of his life. His bill was mutilated until he hardly knew whether the ground was under him or over him. Wilson was defeated for Congress in his own district where he had been a favorite. The President took him into his Cabinet. But he has made no figure there. He is slowly going over the grade with the other free trade failers. It is an instructive bit of history. The champions of free trade have fared ill. They have gone into political decline which, since it began, has never been arrested.

What Public Libraries Have Done.

The Boston Herald dwells on the fact that there are but few towns in Massachusetts where there is not a public library of some sort, and that Boston contains the largest and best appointed public library in the United States. The one fact of chief interest is that fifty years ago Horace Mann persuaded the Legislature to place a small public library in every school district in that State. These school district libraries contained from 100 to 150 books. But they were all standard works. That measure made all the rural districts reading communities. The books went into the hands of bright boys and girls. They read them. They became lovers of books.

More library buildings and foundations for libraries have been given by individuals in that State, or who are natives, than have been provided in that way in proportion to population in any other State. Nearly every considerable town has a handsome library edifice. Rich men who read as boys the books in those small libraries, never forgot the town where those comparatively small advantages were enjoyed. It seemed a small thing that the State should furnish a few books for every school district. But it was a great thing for the young people. Today the old commonwealth is probably at the head of all the states in the Union as a reading community. Its public libraries in town and country tell the story.

Now this occurred in Boston, the cradle of liberty. The Herald of that city is responsible for the statement.

"The State House of Representatives has summarily disposed of the woman suffrage amendment to the constitution. It defeated it without giving it the grace of the call of the yeas and nays. There were probably several members favoring the change who participated in this action. They would be willing the change should be made, but, as practical people, they realized the uselessness of attempting to bring it about now. This being the fact, and it being recognized as such by the more moderate of the advocates of woman suffrage, it is a pertinent inquiry. Why trouble the Legislature with the subject now? It wastes the time that is given to it, and it ends in making the movement seem even weaker than it is. Here is clearly a case of mistaken zeal; its result is the most mortifying defeat that the woman suffragists have had for many years. The agitators have had the fun of agitating, but it has been at the expense of the cause in which they have enlisted—a rather heavy price to pay for such amusement."

The work on the Hearst school building in Washington is now under way in connection with the cathedral. Mrs. Phoebe Hearst of San Francisco gave $175,000 for the erection of this building. It will be a cathedral school and the structure will be a very imposing one. The cathedral as planned will be the largest occupied in this country by that denomination.

NOTES AND EXCERPTS.

Despite all the discouraging things that have been said and written about Congressman Cannon and his wheel, he has, with a persistence born of heroic courage, stuck to his machine and answered sympathetic inquiries by his interested friends with the meekness of a martyr. "How are you getting along with your bicycle?" asked a member the other day. "Oh," said Cannon, "I'm making progress." "Is that so?" said his friend appearing interested, as Cannon made ready to define his advancement in the art of cycling. "Yes," resumed the Illinoisan, gravely. "I can spit, now, and pretty soon I expect to be able to raise my hat."

In New York the small shops that were opened two years ago for the sale of aluminum articles have grown into big stores and the trade is increasing every day. It is interesting to learn that novelties are being added all the time to their stock. When aluminium can be soldered, and when prices drop a few notches, cooks will be handling lighter kitchen utensils, and those people who now carry bags filled with all sorts of flasks and toilet articles will carry lighter loads.

In New York even dogs are pawned. In a place on Twenty-eighth street a lonely pug separated from his fellows gazed wistfully at customers. "How much for that one?" asked a stranger as he pointed the pug. "Can't sell him until Monday night," replied the bird and dog dealer. The man wanted to know why, and he was informed that the pug was in pawn, and if he wasn't redeemed prior to the time mentioned he would be sold. "That pug's beer hocked three times and has always been redeemed. How much do I loan on him? A dollar a the limb, sir, as pugs are no longer popular, you know. When a woman puts her pet dog in pawn it is quite safe to conclude that the wolf has entered her apartment."

Of the three colleges for women at Oxford, England, Somerville is the only one that is strictly undenominational. There are about sixty-five students in the college. They are in charge of a principal and seven tutors. The cost of board, tuition and other expenses amounts to about $460 a year for those who occupy the best rooms.

Li Hung Chang is making arrangements to impress the western world with his wealth and power. He will travel with a suite and in a style that will testify to the grandeur of Oriental luxury. Li Hung Chang is an abstemious and simple man in his tastes, but he long ago learned the value of magnificence for impressing the crowd.

Dr. Jameson is not attracting as much attention in England as he was a week ago, but he is still an object of great interest. He spends considerable time refusing proposals of marriage reaching him by mail. Publishers' agents are on his track at all times, eager to compel him to write a book. To cap the climax, he was offered a few days ago a large sum if he would exhibit himself for a week in a high-class museum.

At the Pasteur Institute in Paris 1520 persons were treated last year, of whom but two died, the smallest proportion yet attained. In ten years 17,337 persons have been inoculated, 85 of whom died. Nearly a third of the patients last year came from Paris and its neighborhood.

Lord Rosebery is in great demand in England for after dinner speeches. It is seldom that Rosebery delivers an oration of much seriousness. He is playful, witty, sarcastic, but even in his political speeches the note of earnestness is not often struck. Rosebery, however, can be very effective when he does wax serious.

During the interchange of compliments at Cannes between Mr. Gladstone and President Faure of France, the latter asked the great Englishman if he found time hanging heavily upon his hands. "No," answered the Grand Old Man: "I follow very closely the affairs of my country. The man who has nothing to do is the most miserable being in existence—the most to be pitied."

In the researches he made while gathering statistics for his book on colonial furniture, the late Dr. Lyon came across a curious legend about the introduction of mahogany into England. It seems that a Dr. Gibbon, who was a London physician early in the seventeenth century, had some mahogany planks imported from the West Indies with the idea of grinding them up for use as a substitute for Peruvian bark, which was just gaining vogue as a medicine. Finding the wood unserviceable as medicine, he had a cabinet-maker construct a box of one of the planks, and the beautiful grain of the wood pleased him so that he had a bureau made of the same material. All London flocked to see it, and the wood came into immediate use among furniture makers.

Senator Proctor, of Vermont, is considered the most solemn looking man in the United States Senate. In this connection it may be remarked that he made his fortune in the manufacture of gravestones.

M. Faure, President of France, is taking great interest in the welfare of the French soldiers. A few days ago he visited the barracks of some of the regiments in Paris, went to the kitchens, and ate some of the food which is furnished to the soldiers. He summoned an active General and told him the food was not good enough. The President intends to see that it is better. M. Faure is exceedingly popular in the army.

The German Emperor wishes it distinctly understood that he takes music seriously. When recently serenaded by a band of the Uhlan regiment during the dinner he rose from the table and put the musicians right about their time, which he declared to be too slow. Since that occasion he has announced his intention of writing a pamphlet on "How to Conduct an Orchestra." Even the al fresco bands of music that play about Berlin are not safe from their Kaiser's critical ear, as he repeatedly sends the imperial servants out to them with requests that they tune their instruments and play in time.

When Count Herbert Bismarck telegraphed to his father, Prince Bismarck, that his latest baby was a girl, the Prince telegraphed back "Have patience! Marie was only a girl," the Prince's first born, and then came two sons.

The committee which is to decide upon the monument to the memory of Pasteur, to be erected at Alais, has chosen the model furnished by M. Tony Noel. It is to be finished in July. The pedestal is to be about nine feet high and the statue about eight. It will be unveiled with appropriate ceremonies in August.

There is considerable excitement at Butte, Montana, over the discovery that work has been begun on an oft-proposed and largely opposed project for driving mining tunnels in all directions under the city in order to take out the rich copper and silver ores known to exist there. It is said that the richest copper and silver ores in the Rocky Mountain country lie under the city. The principal vein discovered, known as the smokehouse lode, runs under the heart of the city from southeast to northwest, and over it are the City Hall, the County Court House, a big hotel, and several of the largest office buildings in the city. The purchasers of surveyed land in Butte have an title to the mineral underneath, the surface title only extending to a depth of thirty feet. When the vein under the city was first discovered a wealthy mining man of Butte located almost the whole city as mining claims and fought his case in the courts to a successful conclusion. Now he has formed a company, and already a shaft is being sunk near the heart of the city, from which tunnels will be driven in every direction. Residents of Butte are greatly concerned about the probable effect of the mining operations on the big buildings situated over the proposed workings. The ore body is said to be larger and richer than that of the famous Anaconda mines.

Benjamin Hathaway, who was known in Michigan as the Cass county poet, died last week at Marcellus and was buried in a coffin made from a tree which he planted many years ago for that purpose. Two weeks ago he ordered the tree—a fine chestnut—cut down, and a portion of it made into a casket, according to his desires.

In New York the other day a dudish-looking Chinaman entered a Broadway car, heavily laden with packages. When seated his arms and lap were monopolized. The conductor came and held out hand, and the Chinaman grinned and wiggled his head as if to put it in the outstretched hand. "Fare, John," said the conductor. Then John thrust his head out further and further. "Hurry up fare," said the conductor, impatiently. At that the Chinaman let go the bundles with one hand, and, while they slid down, and rattled over the floor, he put his hand up to the side of his head and took a nickel out of his ear. That was where he had stored it, expecting the conductor to reach in and pry it out. But the conductor wasn't from Frisco.

At the Transvaal gold fields whisky brings $15.70 a bottle, champagne $12.50, and beer $1 a bottle.

In St. Petersburg every bicyclist is obliged to have affixed to the bark of the machine a metal plate, on which the registered number is displayed in figures large enough to be eligible from a considerable distance.

It is said that the dowager empress of Germany contemplates residing permanently in England. As far as the German emperor is concerned the arrangement is said to be perfectly satisfactory—even more so. But the German chancellor has yet to give his consent, which is unlikely, unless the Empress Frederick consents to give up part of her German allowances. Queen Victoria with her proverbial thriftiness, refuses to consent to such an arrangement; and so the matter remains in statu quo. From England the Empress Frederick receives an allowance of $40,000 a year. But from Germany she receives "all told" a larger allowance than comes into the coffers of Queen Victoria as reigning soverign of England.

The law fixes the unity of value, but cannot fix the value of the unit, is the dictum of Congressman Galusha Grow, who illustrates his point by the story of a woodchopper on the banks of the Mississippi river, near the close of the rebellion. Hailed by a steamboat captain, who asked whether his wood was for sale, he answered: "Yes." The captain inquired: "How much a cord?" "How do you propose to pay?" "In Confederate money." "Then cord for cord."

He has never been in the habit of punishing his children, leaving that disagreeable duty to his wife, but the other day one of his numerous progeny became very unruly and he was obliged to say: "Flora, if you don't keep quiet I shall have to whip you." "Pooh," retorted the little 3-year-old, with a contemptuous toss of her dainty head, "you isn't the mother."

Many years ago Barney Barnato rented a little house in one of the frontier towns of South Africa. Barney spent considerable in improving the house, but he quarreled with his landlord and decided to move. By inserting the following advertisement in the local paper the prospective millionaire in some measure got even with his landlord: "Wanted by a gentleman who agreed to leave the dwelling occupied by him in the condition in which he found it, 100,000 lively black beetles." Then followed Barney's name and address.

ROAD MATTERS COME UP.

The Ballard License Affair Is Finally Disposed of by Resolution.

After the Tribune went to press yesterday the Board of Supervisors unanimously passed the resolution rescinding their action in appointing J. W. Ballard license collector. It took some time to properly frame the resolution and when it was read Supervisor Church moved its adoption, saying.

Supervisor Pelouze wanted to know if the county could allow the Tax Collector a commission on collections, but Deputy District Attorney Church informed him it could not be done.

Acting on the suggestion of Attorney Church a motion prevailed to draft a suitable ordinance governing the Tax Collector and providing for his collection of the money due. The matter was referred to the District Attorney to prepare the ordinance.

The Dumbarton Land and Improvement company wanted a certificate from the Board stating that the company had shown to the Board's satisfaction that the necessary amount of money required by law had been expended in the reclamation of its land. The Supervisors not wanting to act blindly, laid the matter over for one week so that they could personally inspect the premises.

The residents about Decoto petitioned for the formation of a new road district to be known as the Decoto Road District. The petition was signed by J. C. Whipple et al, and after brief consideration was granted.

Supervisor Church then stated that as there was now a new district there should also be a new road master. After obtaining permission from Supervisor Bailey, who has charge of that district, Mr. Church proposed the name of Edwin Whipple for the position. He was unanimously elected, after Mr. Bailey had expressed it as his wish that the appointment be made.

The representation for a new publication, descriptive of Alameda county, asked the Supervisors for their photographs in order to publish cuts of the officials. His request will be complied with.

The Board then adjourned until 10 o'clock next Monday.

THE GOSPEL OF HATE.

Hate England? Hate our kith and kin
That speak our common mother-tongue,
The speech that Hampden thundered in,
The tones that Burns and Milton sung?

Hate England? Hate our ancient home,
Whose every acre knows a story,
From Calthness crags to Cornwall's foam,
Of Keltic pluck and Saxon glory?

Hate England? Hate land of Vane
Of Wesley, Howard, Mill, and Bain,
Of Dickens, Scott, and Tennyson?

But who is this that preaches Hate?—
I think we know the accents well—
The fallen archangel of our state,
The scoffing civic infidel,

Who built a great renown of spite
Who called the Christian statesman fool,
Who based his law of Might on Might,
And cast away the Golden Rule.

So, while the bells of Christendom
Tell earthly homes and empyrean,
That Christ, the Prince of Peace, is come,
The lowly, loving Galilean.

Bad tidings of great woe to tell,
And utters wild discordant note,
The Gospel of the reign of Hell.

While thoughtless followers, mid the murk
Of promised war, revise the strain,
Peace e'en to the unspeakable Turk,
Good will to all but Englishmen.

Hate bullying? Aye hate greed? Amen;
In Briton or American.—
But hate all England? Shame! No, never!

Hate lust for land, and hate no less
The greed that seeks its gain in gore;
Stand fast, as England's taught us, yes,

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

THE LATHERS WILL STRIKE

Local Painters Decide That It Would Be Foolish to Walk-Out.

The Oakland Lathers will go on a strike to-morrow in order to obtain a uniform price of $3 per 1000 for lathing. The Lathers' Union is very well organized and numbers nearly all the lathers in the city. Charles Van Hatten secretary and Louis Hemphill the president, have issued the orders for the strike. There is a disposition among the plasterers to grant the required wages as being just and fair.

A. C. McTavish, one of the prominent plasterers of this city, said to a Tribune reporter today, "The lathers will go on one of their regular strikes tomorrow, but it will not amount to much. The plasterers will give them the wages demanded and work will go on just the same as ever."

The Lathers Union men do not hold together and after demanding and receiving a certain standard price for work, men who are out of employment will obtain jobs by offering to do work at reduced prices. The plasterers say that in a short time the $3 wage fixed by the coming strike will be reduced by the strikers themselves to $1 and 75 cents.

The painters of Oakland have decided not to go on a strike, being too loosely organized and work not being plentiful.

District Attorney Snook is getting ready for the opening of the trial for murder of Ghirardelli one of the men who is suspected of having killed Fellee Varni, near San Leandro, several months ago. He has been aided by H. V. Herbert in the matter of getting evidence, and it is known that a great deal of new and important matter has been obtained.

On Saturday last Mr. Snook, Chief Deputy Church, H. V. Herbert and Chief Jailor Al White visited the scene of the murder and took photographs of all the important places where the witnesses saw Varni both before and after the shooting. Measurements were taken also, and for these maps will be made by the County Surveyor. The defendants will be given individual trials. The first trial will be that of Ghirardelli, which will begin April 7th.

MEMBERS POUR IN.

RECEPTIONS TO BE GIVEN.

Athletes Are Jubilant Over the Excursion to the East.

BERKELEY, March 31.—The Fraternity girls are beginning to arouse themselves from their lethargy and enroll new members. It is a great honor to be invited to join any one of the three women fraternities at the University and the members are very select. The Sorosis Club has decided upon three new members and has recently initiated Miss McClymonds, Miss Bell and Miss Henriel into the mysteries and delights of a secret society.

The Sorosis Club will formally entertain its friends and present the new members at a swell reception which will be given in Shattuck Hall on the 17th.

The Sorosis Club of the University is indirectly connected with the famous New York Sorosis.

The Kappa Alpha Theta girls will give a party next Thursday evening at their frat house, which will be a very charming affair. Invitations extended by this hospitable fraternity are always very welcome as the members number some of the nicest girls in the U. C.

INTER-CLASS REGATTA.

Boating is receiving a large amount of attention from the University students. The new boat house will be furnished with two new pleasure boats by May 1st. On the second Saturday in April an inter-class regatta will be held in Sessions basin. The '96 and '97 crews are both strong and the race will be a very close and exciting one. The '99 crew is fairly good. '98 has no crew as yet. The Boating Association is trying to arouse more interest in rowing among the classes of '98 and '99 and to gain new members. The Association has been at considerable expense in rebuilding the boat house, purchasing boats, etc., and it is desirous of enrolling new members to assist in paying off expenses.

THE EASTERN JAUNT.

At the meeting of the Associated Students in the gymnasium yesterday afternoon, by a unanimous vote it was decided to send the track athletes to the East this summer, Manager Friend assured the students that the financial side of the undertaking could be managed if the student body would lend their assistance at entertainments, benefits, etc. Colonel Edwards, "the father of athletics," gave the boys a little talk about the work and strength of the team. The following men were presented with the "Big C" as emblem of records broken and contests entered in defending the U. C.:

Football—Selfridge, Plunkett, Douglas, Wilson, Walthall, Reinhardt, R. Hutchinson, Kennedy, Ransome, Hupp, E. Sherman, Hilborn, Carr, R. Sherman, S. Easton, Foltz, Hunt, Henry, Watchorst, O. Taylor, Wittenmeyer, "Brick" Morse, Greisburg, Radelfinger, Ludlow, Bender, Hopper, A. Pierce.

Tennis—W. Magee, McChesney, Gage, Crawford, Fine.

The young women of the Associated Student body did not attend the meeting yesterday afternoon and it is rumored that the proposed trip does not win their approval this year. They were contented to have the team gain honors last year "just to show the Eastern colleges what they could do," but they object to the outlay this year again, averring that it establishes the precedent of sending a team East every year. A great many of them will refuse to pay the assessments.

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills, which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge, that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, laxatives or other remedies are then not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

HOW TO MAKE SALAD.

From the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

In no part of his dinner does a chef show his skill more clearly than in his salads, and in nothing is the change, in dining ideas more marked than in our appreciation of his chef d'oeuvres. The story is told of a French marquis who, during troublous times in France, made his escape to London and earned there a handsome income as a salad dresser. He actually had a cab fitted up with cases of condiments, and drove from my Lord This to my Lord that, daily, arriving just in time to make the salad. The habit of a salad for every dinner is of French birth, and in its native land people prefer salad to meat, if a choice must be made, but we have not realized fully that it is a dish for every season and available for every housekeeper. No better accompaniment for cold meat, be it beef or mutton or fowl, can be found than a good salad, with a good dressing, and it may be asserted that no winter vegetable grows that may not be used for this purpose. There are, however, one or two points which it might be well to explain to the amateur cook.

To begin with, except in the case of the Russian or Italian salad (practically variantes of the same original idea), the number of vegetables in one salad should be limited. Now, this is a rule that cannot be too strongly enforced in our kitchens, where mistress and maid alike appear unable to realize that a dish called by a certain name and prepared with certain ingredients, must taste of those ingredients, and not have what should be the preponderating flavor spoilt by a mixture of many. This error is, however, specially noticeable in salads, where, for instance, in what is often called a French salad, i. e., one composed of lettuce and a very little finely minced herb flavoring, we find lettuce, indeed, but smothered by the stronger aroma of radishes, chives, mustard and cress, etc. Moreover, there is a right as well as a wrong of preparing the dressing of oil, vinegar, salt and pepper. Here is a method pursued by a well-known French chef, and recommended by him: Beat up a good dust of freshly ground black pepper and salt, to taste, in two tablespoonfuls of vinegar (either plain or perfumed with any flavor, such as celery, tarragon, eschalot, etc., you please), and when these have been well amalgamated, stir into the mixture four tablespoonfools of salad oil, beating it all well together. Now lay in the material for the salad, lettuce, etc., and with a fork and spoon lift and toss it well together, working it till each piece is thoroughly impregnated with the dressing; then with the salad servers lift the vegetable into the salad dish. You will find at the bottom of the first bowl—especially if the salad is of lettuce—a quantity of watery liquid, which must be thrown away. If mixed at first in the salad bowl, this liquid would have been at the bottom, and would have given the washy, sodden taste so often noticed in carelessly made salads. For winter use, if economy has to be studied, our salads must depend, with the exception of celery and tomatoes, on cooked vegetables, and of these all kinds may be utilized, whether fresh or canned. Amongst the latter may be mentioned asparagus, artichoke bottoms, string beans, Indian corn and the ever useful macedoine. Remember, when using canned goods, always to drain them in the dressing; also have ready the finely minced herbs known in France as the fourniture, consisting of chives, parsley or chervil, tarragon, etc., to sprinkle on just at the last as a finish. Salad should be served at soon after it is mixed as possible.

PRESIDENTIAL CAMPAIGNERS.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

ST. LOUIS, Mar. 31.—The situation in a nutshell is this: Nobody will enter the convention with votes enough by about 100 or 150 to nominate him on the first, second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh, eighth ninth, or tenth ballot. The nominee therefore will be a second choice man. McKinley leads today in the matter of instructions and will hold this lead. Allison is the strongest second choice and will gain in strength right along. I therefore predict Allison's nomination.

The speaker was Hon. James S. Clarkson of Iowa, member of the Republican National Committee, who is here with other members of the subcommittee looking after convention matters. Referring again to McKinley, Mr Clarkson said:

"His campaign has been so conducted as to alienate all the second choice states, and for that reason he is today the weakest man in the race, conceding that he can not be nominated on the first ballot. I don't know a single delegation that will go to him when its candidate is dropped. On the other hand, Senator Allison is the second choice of nearly every state or district that has elected its delegates. Mr. Reed will have as much strength in the South as McKinley.

"I have just returned from a trip through the West," continued Mr Clarkson. "In all the region west of Nebraska the sentiment is yet unformed as to men. The people of the Pacific coast and mountain states are discussing a great issue—that of money and not men. They will send to St. Louis in June 80 or 100 delegates instructed solidly for silver, without reference to the views of any man on this great question. That a vote so massed will have to be reckoned with, and that seriously, nobody with pretensions to political foresight and acumen can doubt.

"It may be that Idaho, Montana, Nevada and Utah will send delegations to the Convention instructed for some pronounced free silver advocate, such as Teller or Cameron. In fact, I have been assured that that is what these states will do."

Secretary J. H. Manley was more reticent. When his attention was called to the latest estimate of McKinley's strength made at Washington by Gen. Grosvenor and published in a morning paper, in which the Ohioan was given 355 votes on the first ballot out of the total of 372 delegates elected up to Saturday night, he studied the figures closely for a long while and then said:

"This only shows that they are still claiming. They can claim all they want. What we want and what we are going to have are votes."

Senator Thomas Carter, chairman of the Republican National Committee, was asked:

"Is it true that you have discerned the premonitory rumbling of a boom for Don Cameron in the Northwest?"

"It's more than a premonitory rumbling. It's roaring. I believe we will get the votes not only of Montana and other Northwest states, but that the votes of the West generally will come to him naturally."

"Then you apprehend some trouble over the silver question at the St. Louis Convention?"

"Now that is an entirely different matter and one about which I will say nothing."

Col. William H. Hahn of Ohio professed to be unable to see how the opposition is to head off McKinley.

A meeting of this grand old Republican Club is called for Wednesday evening, April 1, 1896, at the old quarters in Elite Hall, corner Twelfth and Webster streets, Oakland, at 7 30 P. M. sharp. Every old member is expected to be present. The coming campaign will be one of the most important in the history of our country. An early organization means a grand victory. Come without fail and bring with you any citizens of your ward who believe in Republican principles and who will support Republican nominees.

By order of the Committee.

ED. L. JOHNSTON,
Secretary.

The call is making the members of the other clubs in the ward do some hard guessing. The rival organization was started about two weeks ago by J. M. Havens, Clarence Crowell and other prominent Republicans who prefixed to the name of the club "Regular." This is the title of the old ward club and its members do not relish having the honors taken from them. However, there is no hard feeling in the matter, as it is understood that there is plenty of room for two such organizations in the ward.

"The other club has no right to the title 'Regular Fifth Ward Republican Club,'" says Mr. Alexander, chairman of the original club. "The old Fifth Ward Club adjourned to the call of the chair and I have just issued that call as chairman.

"We have our records and our secretary, and the others have nothing to show for their existence except the call that was issued by several Republicans as private individuals. Our club will be reorganized for the campaign on Wednesday night."

Members of the other club feel that it is in the interests of the party to work together harmoniously and there is no probability of a clash.

In speaking of the matter Clarence Crowell says:

"We thought the other club had adjourned sine die, and as they were taking no steps to reorganize, Mr. Havens and about fifteen of the most prominent and staunch Republicans of the Fifth Ward issued the call and formed the new club which now has 120 members. It being the first club organized in the district we believe it can rightly claim the title of "Regular" club.

On Thursday evening at Milton Hall is to be held an adjourned meeting of the Second Ward Republican Club, F. R. Porter, president. Oratory and refreshments are to be features of the occasion. Among the speakers are to be F. A. Campbell, president of the "old" or 1894 club, and P. M. Fisher president of the "Regular" club. It is intended to interest all the Republicans of the ward in a single club. Last Saturday evening a committee was appointed at a Milton Hall mass meeting, its province being to learn if the "old" club adjourned sine die at its last meeting many months ago. This committee, composed of F. R. Porter of the Executive Committee of the "old" club, Mortimer Smith, secretary of the P. M. Fisher club, William Hart, J. S. Wilson and J. A. Colquehoun, will report at Thursday evening's meeting.

The First Ward Regular Republican Club has procured permanent headquarters at Harsen's Hall, corner Wood and Goss streets, where the next meeting will be held Wednesday evening, April 1st, when business of great importance will be transacted and reports of committees received.

The Republicans of the First Ward have come to the conclusion that they are numerous enough to have two clubs in that ward and, in accordance with that idea, those of them who reside in the eastern part of the ward will hold a meeting tonight in Kohler's Hall, corner of Seventh and Chester streets, to organize a club for that section. All Republicans in that section are requested to attend.

Claus Spreckels is going to Europe next month.

The members of the Political Equality Club have elected the following vice-presidents: Mrs. J. C. Campbell, Mrs G. W. Tripp, Mrs E. S. Howard and Mrs H. Vrooman. A treasurer will be chosen next Monday, when the organization will be completed. A number of new members were enrolled at the meeting yesterday. A meeting of the county society followed, at which it was mentioned that the ladies of East Oakland felt slighted that at least one of the parlor meetings announced for the coming week had not been apportioned to their district. They were promised a meeting when Miss Ashtony returns to this city in May.

Preparations are being pushed in San Francisco for the local Republican primary for the election of delegates to the State Convention.

"The County Committee will call the primary this week, and everything promises a quiet election," said Chairman Manwaring last evening. "No one who has not made special efforts to canvass the situation can realize after the recent talk that has been going on how solidly the people are standing together in support of John D. Spreckels and the policy he is carrying out. I have been about a great deal all over the city, and everywhere the people interested in party affairs realize that the coming primary will be one in which their votes will be honestly counted; that it will not be dominated by corrupt bosses, and that the party is on the high road to success in the Nation, State and City. The party is going to pull together, and the campaign will be carried out without scandals and corrupt jobbery on the part of those in control."

The Auditing Committees have been named for the coming local elections at San Leandro.

The San Francisco Post last night published a statement that the railroad was going to support John D. Spreckels. This is what the Call says about it today:

An evening paper published last night a story to the effect that the railroad was going to support John D. Spreckels and his friends and the rumor set the politicians talking and wondering. So far the tracks of Steve Gage have not been discovered in the San Francisco political field, and while in the Second, Third and other Congressional districts the railroad hand and its victories have been plainly evident the relations of the railroad to the politics of the Fourth and Fifth districts have been mysteries about which people have been able to only guess and wonder. There has not yet been a move on the local checkerboard that has been ascribed to the railroad with the exception of the desperate and futile attempts of Kelly and Mahoney to get hold of something. Many have supposed that the railroad was quietly backing these two politicians.

What the railroad proposes to do in San Francisco remains as much of a mystery as ever. That it should decide to have nothing to do with Kelly and Mahoney is not strange, for the railroad's power could not now put vitality into that disreputable combination. John D. Spreckels said last evening that the report was all news to him.

"If the railroad is going to support the Republican organization I don't know it," he said, "but I will be glad to have all Republicans support the ticket, whether they are railroad men or not. I have had no conferences with railroad people and there is no agreement or understanding looking to their support. If the railroad wants to come in and support the Republican party without controlling it I suppose there will be no objection. That is all I know about the story."

James S. Clarkson, the great Republican political leader, in an interview says it is his opinion that the Pacific states should have a representation in the President's Cabinet. Mr. Clarkson's opinion is shared by every man on the coast.

A correspondent says: "The resolution adopted by a Democratic convention in Missouri on Saturday congratulating Cleveland on his ability as a duck shooter and expressing regret that he had not devoted more time to killing teal and less in issuing bonds have just enough of jest and earnest in them to be fully representative of the American humor of the day."

The Convention sub-committee of the Republican National Committee met in St. Louis yesterday. J. S. Clarkson of Iowa, Joseph H. Manley of Maine, Colonel William Hahn of Ohio, ex-Governor Joseph W. Fifer of Illinois, Senator Thomas Carter of Montana, General Powell Clayton of Arkansas, John M. Ewing of Wisconsin, proxy for Senator Payne, and Colonel R. C. Kerens of Missouri were present.

Each delegate will have three tickets, including his own, and the people from each State and Territory desiring admission to the convention will have to apply to the delegates to the convention from their respective states for tickets. The tickets for members of the Grand Army of the Republic will be given to the National Council of Administration and distributed by their directions. All tickets to the convention will be issued on Monday, June 15th, by the sergeants-at-arms at the convention building.

The Republican State Convention of New Hampshire meets today. The feeling at present is that the convention will instruct its St. Louis delegation for Reed. It is predicted by a few, however, that the delegation will not be instructed.

The Democratic State Central Committee yesterday decided to call the State and Congressional Conventions of Colorado for the selection of National delegates to meet in Denver April 15th. Senator Tillman of South Carolina is expected to be here at that time.

Dennis T. Flynn, who is serving his second term as delegate from Oklahoma to the House of Representatives, was renominated by acclamation by the Republican Territorial Convention held in Kingfisher yesterday.

Cyrus Leland, Jr. will be candidate for chairman of the Republican National Committee, and it is claimed by his friends in Kansas that he has consented to stand for the position at the request of William McKinley, who wishes him to manage the campaign in case of his nomination for the Presidency. Leland has been a member of the National Committee from Kansas for twelve years and the State Convention instructed the delegation to St. Louis Convention to elect him for another term. He was chairman of the Republican State Central Committee and redeemed the State two years ago from Populist rule.

Ex-Governor of Ohio Campbell would like the compliment of the solid vote of Ohio's delegation in the National Democratic Convention for President. Yesterday he said: "I am not a candidate for President this year, for I do not believe that any Democrat can be elected in November. It is unjust, but nevertheless true, that the people blame the Democratic party for the hard times and that will beat us. However, it would be pleasant, and a great honor besides, to receive the complimentary vote of the Ohio delegation, and if the 'boys' want to give it to me I shall not object."

AN APPEAL FOR AID.

Thousands in the Throes of Tobacco Torture.

Only Prompt, Decisive Action Can Save Them—Some Already Saved Prove That There Is a Way.

Would that we could answer, "Yes! Everybody's free."

But in fact at the end of this enlightened century, there are hundreds of thousands, yes millions of men in the clutches of a tyrant worse than any in history, unable to fight their way to liberty, impotent to break their fetters.

When once the tobacco habit gets its grip on a man, it destroys his nerve and will power, and robs him of his only means of defense. His life is sapped out of him, his manhood destroyed, his brain deadened until he becomes a sallow, skinny, listless wreck of a man, his existence a living death, and himself an object of disgust instead of love and affection to those who are dear to him.

Every day the hold grows stronger and demands more victims. Many are in the last stages of tobacco poisoning, others are only beginning to get into the net.

All need help, at once, without delay.

Is there no hope?

There is. Only one—No-To-Bac—the wonderful guaranteed medicine. Even after years of slavery, No-To-Bac cures without fail. Nobody's case could be worse than the following:

TOBACCO HAD SHATTERED HIS NERVES.

The Pioneer Planing Mills and the Adjoining Structures Burned.

A STIFF WIND BLOWING.

MANY LANDMARKS DESTROYED.

The Losses In the Thousands and the Insurance Light.

A fire broke out shortly before 7 o'clock last evening in the engine room of the old Pioneer planing mill at Broadway and First streets and before the flames could be checked the mill building and all of the little rookeries south of it were burned to the ground. Next to the last burned shanty is Taylor's lumber yard and only by vigorous work were the firemen able to save this from destruction.

The alarm came in from box 2 and the department quickly responded. A second alarm was sent in a few minutes later and soon every engine in the city had a stream playing on the fire. But the odds were against the department. The north wind was high and the buildings little more than tinder boxes, so that the firemen could do nothing beyond saving the adjacent property. Several times the buildings across Broadway and First street threatened to break into flames, but a stream promptly turned on them saved a spreading of the conflagration.

The first building to go was the old mill. It was one of the first structures in Oakland, having been erected in 1852 by George Barnes and later was conducted by ex-Mayor Blethen and Terry. T. L. Hierlihy of Alameda was their successor. He could not make the business pay and turned it over to Judson McCully, its last proprietor. McCully had sub-let a portion of the building to the Oakland Sash & Door Co., of which E. C. Bridgeman is president. The building was owned by the Kramm estate.

In the line came the Twin Brothers mush establishment, the American Boiler Works, a restaurant kept by Mrs. E. Dubolce, the Cottage saloon and restaurant, H. Cupper's saloon and a news and tobacco stand kept by Henry Brantes, all of which were left a smouldering pile.

The total loss by the fire is about $80,000, with insurance very low. The mill company was the heaviest losers, their property being probably worth $25,000. Taylor & Co.'s lumber was damaged to the extent of about $1,000, fully insured. The Sash and Door factory lost about $1,000, among other things being a valuable team of horses.

The frame shanties were worth perhaps $3,000 and were owned mostly by the Adams estate.

All of the buildings were landmarks. In one of them met the first city council which ever convened in Oakland, and at one of their meetings a matter of business was transacted that has the city now in litigation. It was the deeding to Horace Carpentier of the water front.

Though there were fully 10,000 people at the fire the crowd was very orderly and the police had little trouble in keeping them behind the fire ropes.

Accidents to firemen were very few. F. J. Sheehan of truck No. 3 was struck by a stream of water and thrown from a lumber pile sustaining a sprained hand and other slight injuries.

Walter Williams, a spectator, got tangled up in some barbed wire and was slightly cut about the feet.

An unknown woman fainted from excitement and was escorted to her home by Officer Phillips, while the rest of the unfortunates had their wounds dressed at the Receiving Hospital.

The crew of the steamer Newark saved the boat from a possible scorching by running it out into the stream.

PRAISE FOR THE FIREMEN.

In connection with the fire the following letter was handed to the Tribune this morning by an admirer of the department:

"I wish to bestow great credit on the Oakland Fire Department and especially on their young chief for the work accomplished by them last night.

"When one considers what a windy night it was and taking everything in consideration, he cannot help but give the boys credit for getting the flames under their control in so short a time.

"I have served my time as a fireman in New York, San Francisco and Alameda. Respectfully yours,

CHARLES STURM.

A Berry Train.

A special train is to be put on between Watsonville and Oakland during the berry season. It will leave Santa Cruz daily about 4 P. M., reaching Watsonville about 5 or 5.30 P. M., San Jose about 9 or 10 P. M., and then over the coast division to San Francisco, arriving about 1 A. M. The freight will then be brought over here on ferryboats.

JURGENS MAKES REPLY.

She Has Been a Bad Tenant and He Helped Her All He Could.

Charles Jurgens objects strongly to a publication in a morning paper that he has adopted hard-handed methods regarding Mrs. Matilda J. Jones of 215 San Pablo avenue. He has attached her store and that is the point at issue. In connection with the matter he makes the following statement:

"She has always been behind in the payment of her rent, and Mr. Jurgens was lenient with her and delayed the payment as long as he could.

"In May, 1895, she was behind six months, and he took her note for $120, the rent due, and allowed her to remain. She is now behind over four months, making ten months in all, and it became necessary for him to do something to settle the matter in some way.

"He called on her repeatedly and tried to get a settlement but could not. He offered to give her a store around the corner not a hundred feet from where she now is for one-half her rent, but she refused to go, and she refused to give her a store and living-room at Pomeroy for $6 per month, and took her out and showed her the place, but she refused to go, and she refused to move out, or settle, or do anything. On top of all this she deeded her property consisting of several pieces of land to a third person, so he, to protect himself, called upon S. B. McKee, the attorney, and commenced a suit for $171, the amount due him.

"Mr. Jurgens says he has done everything in his power to help this woman. He has been patient, lenient and kind, and was only forced to take this measure by his inability to settle the matter in any other way."

A Mysterious Stranger.

A New Year's morning in the little mountain hamlet of A——. The town church was filled with worshipers. The rector had just ascended the pulpit to deliver his sermon and to remind his parishioners of the importance of the day, when suddenly his sharp eye made the discovery that a stranger was seated among his audience, a man, whom—he was sure of that—he had never seen there before.

Whether from design or accident, the stranger had seated himself on the bench reserved for the town officers and men of rank, and was curiously gazed at by his neighbors. Nobody had taken a seat close beside him as though fearing to molest so distinguished appearing a man, in spite of the fact that the little edifice was crowded.

A strange face among his parishioners was a very rare thing for the good rector, who had baptized and confirmed the majority of them, and while not in the habit of judging people by their looks he could not help noticing from his vantage ground on the pulpit that the man was very becomingly and richly attired.

However, the rector did not allow the stranger's presence to interfere with his duties. He delivered his sermon, admonishing his hearers not to be forgetful of the teachings of Christ, the lesson of his coming and sufferings, and the joys and miseries which are our portion in each succeeding year.

By the time he had reached his house the rector had almost forgotten the existence of the stranger. But the man had also been noticed by his wife who did not fail to mention the circumstance to him. They exchanged a few casual remarks about the probable cause that had brought the stranger to their out-of-the-way little mountain town on New Year's day of all days. Surely it was not the architectural value of their little church, for it possessed none; therefore the rector's wife formed the pleasing conclusion that he had somehow heard of the oratorical talent of her husband, and had come to hear him preach the New Year's sermon. He may have been, so she argued (the wish is ever the father of the thought), sent by the synod to satisfy himself from personal observation of the rector's abilities, and so forth all of which her husband modestly refuted.

Pretty soon New Year's callers began to put in their appearance, and once more the rector discarded all thoughts of the fascinating stranger. Later the sexton arrived, having some commissions to execute and business matters to talk over.

This done, he remained at the door, twisting his hat in his fingers, making sundry unsuccessful attempts to say something. He cleared his throat and finally summoned up sufficient courage to ask "Pastor have you noticed that we had an 'incognito' living and in the flesh in our church to-day?"

"Certainly, I have," responded the rector. "I dare say you mean a stranger, clad in a silver-gray coat?"

"Yes, yes—something truly noble."

"Both."

"Do you mean to insinuate that the stranger is traveling under an assumed name?"

"That is just it! An assumed name that nobody knows."

"You mean a name that you do not know?"

"Well, I dare say. But our count is apt to know it."

"'Timid?' you fool; 'intimate,' not timid. But I hardly think so. He was not in the count's pew."

"What of it, rector? There is a secret connected with his appearance here I tell you. They did not come to church together, it is true. First came Mr. Incognito, and three minutes later the count. When he beheld the stranger he looked somewhat surprised and taken aback as though he meant to say 'Keep it dark!' He then smiled very pleasantly and passed by to his pew. Mr. Incognito smiles also, no doubt meaning, 'All right, count, we understand each other.' After the service the count smiled again when passing the stranger, who, in return made a polite obeisance, looking knowingly at the pulpit and vestry, as if to say, 'Our judgment agrees, count.' * * * Well you are aware that the count thinks a great deal of your reverence."

"Not so fast, you sly fox. Tell me first how you have discovered that our count knows more of this mysterious stranger. A mutual exchange of greetings alone may be purely accidental, you know."

"It was no difficult matter to ferret that out, rector. The mysterious stranger remained behind after the congregation had dispersed and asked me to show him the few things worth seeing. He had nothing to say and merely glanced at everything in a superficial manner, with the exception of the covers of our pulpit and baptismal font, which he inspected very closely. Finally I summoned up courage to tell him that, while there was not much to be seen in the church, the count's castle contained many gems of art; whereupon he answered that he had had a consequence with the count an hour ago."

"'Conference,' you idiot; not 'consequence.'"

"Well, then, 'conference.' He gave me a bountiful douceur and asked the way to the station."

The sexton left. Hardly had he disappeared when the station master was announced. The rector was surprised that the busy officer should have found time to pay him a New Year's call, but he received him affably.

After an exchange of the usual commonplaces the railroad man remarked in an offhand manner, "Are you aware rector, that a princely personage has honored our humble place with a short visit this morning, returning to the capital after a hasty consultation with the count and a visit to the church?"

"The prince," answered the station master, "arrived on the morning train and proceeded on foot to the castle. There he and the count had been in consultation. Later, he had been to church, returning to the city on the 11:30 o'clock train. I heard these details from one of the count's servants, who took the same train for a visit to his sister. This servant, be it understood, has the aristocratic habit of traveling second-class for short distances, which, I must confess, was an impertinence, considering the august presence of the prince. But what could I do? Pacing up and down near the ticket office, the prince could not help hearing what was going on. He stepped up to the window and asked me to exchange his second-class ticket for one of the first-class, offering the money for the difference. This I was not in a condition to do, as the train in question does not carry first-class compartments. The prince was greatly annoyed, and, though I am innocent, I know he will make me suffer for his inconvenience. All I could do was to order the conductor to place his highness in a reserved compartment by himself."

The rector allayed the apprehensions of the frightened station master. At the dinner table he communicated the observations of the latter and of the sexton to his astonished wife. The more both compared notes the more grew the importance of the mysterious stranger, and his wife insisted that the prince had come to convey momentous news to the count from the court where the latter was greatly liked. Even the usually calm and collected rector finally agreed that this unexpected journey on a New Year's morning must have been of consequence. He brought to mind again the contents of his sermon, but his conscience was clear, and he could detect no sentence, nor word, that might be construed against the court or the reigning house. One thing only troubled him. Had the prince in the silver-gray coat been a messenger of peace or war for their little borough?

When his official duties of the day had been discharged the rector, accompanied by his wife, paid the usual New Year's call at the castle to offer the compliments of the season.

Though they tried hard to appear unconcerned, the count and his countess were preoccupied. In spite of all efforts, dedicated by their innate delicacy of feeling, both would now and then show an unusual absent mindedness, nor were they always able to hide their suppressed excitement. The count would look through the window toward the road leading to the station as though anxiously expecting something, and the countess would now and then stop in the middle of a sentence or lose the thread of her conversation and then try hard to collect herself. Hosts and eaters felt the awkward situation. It was as though the spirit of the mysterious stranger was present with them clad in his ominous silver-gray great coat putting to flight their usual conviviality.

At length the rector's wife could stand this unnatural state of affairs no longer. As unconcernedly as possible, she asked, "Is it true, countess, that you have had a visitor from the capital early this morning?"

The countess exchanged a questioning look with her husband before she replied: "No, not I, at least the visit was paid to the count; but then——I don't——"

The count smiled his stereotyped smile. "A prince, my dear rector, if you please, a prince and one who serves an all-powerful autocratic mistress!"

"In fact," resumed the count, "his serene highness has done you more honor than myself rector for he spent an entire hour listening to your sermon, while to me he gave but fifteen minutes."

"Then I suppose I owe it to you, count, that the prince visited our little church during his short stay?"

"If you like, yes, rector. He ascertained accidentally from one of my servants that I would go to church, and, I dare say, he also meant to set a good example. But what is of more importance, your prince brought me good news and I would gladly satisfy your curiosity."

"Not at all, not at all, gracious sir; do not misinterpret my query."

"It is not that, rector. We would not keep you waiting, were we not ourselves still on the anxious seat, as it were."

Just then a servant appeared, presenting a telegram to his master, who opened and read it, handing it to the countess.

"At last!" she exclaimed, after glancing at its contents. "But it is strange that this gentleman—the prince, I beg his pardon—should have heard of it before your father knew anything about it."

The rector and his wife were preparing to leave. They had no indelicate desire to impose their presence upon the noble couple, perceiving that there was a secret. Undoubtedly the stranger, having in the meantime reached the capital, had sent that message.

"No, indeed," remonstrated the count, "you stay right here. There is no more necessity for secrecy if ever there was. My father's telegram merely confirms the glad tidings which I had received early this morning unofficially. I have been made a court chamberlain."

"Permit us to offer our heartiest congratulations," quickly exclaimed the rector. "The new year begins auspiciously for you, count."

"No doubt your new dignity has worries and troubles of its own that will keep you from home a great deal?"

"I dare say, and the first among them is the important question where to get the required uniform for my immediate appearance at court, whither I have been ordered for an audience."

"I understand perfectly that such official dignities are not without their inconvenient formalities that one has to put up with; but the prince——"

"Has called on me just on account of this very chamberlain's uniform. He must have left home in the middle of the night to be in time."

"Did he really come for the sole purpose of instructing you in the new ceremonies to be observed by you? How very considerate of him."

"He came solely on account of my new uniforms I tell you. His aim was not to be outdone by anybody else. Yes very kind of him."

"Was he a messenger from court?"

"No, not exactly that, my dear rector. He came on his own responsibility."

"But, count, if I may make so bold to ask, who in the name of all that is mysterious was this prince of yours?"

"I will not keep you in suspense," replied the host. "The mysterious stranger has left his card behind. Here it is."

The pastor took the elegant piece of pasteboard and read aloud, "Fridolin, Tailor to the Court of ——"—From the German.

Mrs. Kustel of Alameda has become insane over the Brown-Overman scandal. She imagines that her dearest friend had become implicated in the scandal and had been disgraced. The fool-killer missed his aim in Oakland last Wednesday night and a man named Casey survives in consequence. The fool-killer is a saloon keeper named Cotti and Casey thought he'd have fun with him. He put on false whiskers, took a big revolver in each hand and slipping into the saloon, demanded Cotti's money, while half a dozen of Casey's friends were present to see the fun. Cotti yelled "I will!" and bent down behind the counter as if to get his cash, but got a revolver instead and fired. The bullet whizzed so close to Casey's ear that it knocked him down and he, too, yelled: "Don't shoot any more, Cotti," and he pulled off the false beard. "Don't shoot for the Lord's sake. I was only joking. I'm Casey." Cotti put away his gun and, with the aid of Casey's friends, helped the joker to bed, where he is suffering from nervous prostration. The joke was quite as good as if it had been carried out as planned, but Casey's friends failed to laugh at it. They are of the class of fools who want their jokes to go as scheduled, but other people enjoy it almost as well at if the aim of the fool-killer had been true.—Stockton Independent.

HOW HE BEATS PULLMAN.

Train No. 1 on the Northern Pacific railroad was approaching the Bad lands from the east, the rear door of one of the standard Pullman cars was opened by a man who seemed to be in a hurry. He approached a passenger, who was gazing out of the window, according to a story in the New York Press.

"I'm a New York drummer," said the man to the fat passenger, "and I want to sit down here with you for a few minutes."

"Will it cost me anything?" inquired the passenger.

"Not a cent."

"All right, sit down then."

"Have you a sleeping car ticket?" he demanded of the man who said he was a drummer.

"I am the guest of my friend here," the drummer answered quickly.

The conductor passed on, after looking at the man in an incredulous way for fully half a minute.

"What's your scheme?" asked the fat passenger.

"I'll tell you all about it," began the drummer, confidentially. "You see I sell goods for a New York house and travel across the country several times in the course of the year. If I ride in a Pullman car it costs me about $4 a day. I am a financier in a humble way, and so I go to bed at night and pay the regular fare of $2. In the day I slip into a Pullman car and become the guest of some good fellow like yourself. By this method of financiering I make $2 every day, for I charge up the whole $1 to the house. At the end of the year I have made $100."

"Do I get any of this $2," asked the fat man, to pay for being a guest. My company is worth something. By the way do you see that strip bank on the side of the hill where it looks like marble cake? Well, that is the dividing line between central and mountain time. Here is where you turn your watch back just one hour. Since I am your guest I will extend the courtesies of my diversified knowledge."—Chicago Record.

GOOD ADVICE SOMETIMES.

But in This Particular Case It Turned Out Disastrously.

"I'd like to speak to you a minute," he said as he met a patrolman at the corner of Michigan avenue and Wayne street, the other evening, says the Detroit Free Press.

"All right. What is it?"

"About six months ago I met you down by the City Hall one afternoon."

"Well?"

"Yes."

"When you found I was going to be married you laid your hand on my shoulder in a fatherly way, and said: 'Young man, pause and reflect.' Do you remember?"

"Yes, I think I do."

"Well your words struck home. I paused and reflected. I did not get a license."

"No."

"You didn't eh! Well, I am glad if advice of mine prevented you from taking a step which you might ever thereafter regret. Did you want any more advice?"

"Well, yes. The girl sued me for breach of promise and got a verdict of $2,000, and cleaned me out of my last cent and all I can earn for the next five years to come. Maybe you want to lay your fatherly hand on my shoulder and give me some more wisdom."

"Young man," said the officer as he slid his fingers along up his coat sleeve until they rested on his collar, "you move on."

and the like, will be the delight of California for the next two or three months.

Santa Barbara Flower Festival, the fame of which is world-wide, and the glory of which, like that of Solomon, is not half told, opens April 15th. Queen Flora will reign 3 days an arbitrary and absolute despot.

La Fiesta de Los Angeles, now fixed in the chronology of California fiestas, and not less illustrious than older prototypes, commences April 22nd, and the riot of fun will spread over 4 days.

The Carnival of Roses, to take place in San Jose, May 6th to 9th, inclusive, though a more recent candidate for favors of the fun-loving world, yet because of the limitless possibilities of the Garden City for anything that is made of roses, is quite as full of promise.

and they wouldn't if they could. You don't want to kick, because you want the flour so much that you'll have no other. We lower prices, but we never lower quality. We keep quality—like our reputation—up, because quality is our reputation. Nowhere else can you find High Quality as cheap, either in flour, canned goods, farm, dairy or garden products, sugars, teas, coffees, spices or fine groceries. Our stock is a combination of mountain qualities and valley prices.

In our new department we are prepared to supply the trade with Herring, Russian Crab and Chicken Salads, Sliced Boiled Ham and Tongue, Veal Roulade, Roast Beef and other cold meats prepared by us and served fresh daily.

BREAKFAST—SUPPER.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided for our breakfast and supper a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame.—Civil Service Gazette.

Many years ago Barney Barnato rented a little house in one of the frontier towns of South Africa. Barney spent considerable in improving the house, but he quarreled with his landlord and decided to move. By inserting the following advertisement in the local paper the prospective millionaire in some measure got even with his landlord: "Wanted by a gentleman who agreed to leave the dwelling occupied by him in the condition in which he found it, 100,000 lively black beetles." Then followed Barney's name and address.

ROAD MATTERS COME UP.

The Ballard License Affair Is Finally Disposed of by Resolution.

After the Tribune went to press yesterday the Board of Supervisors unanimously passed the resolution rescinding their action in appointing J. W. Ballard license collector. It took some time to properly frame the resolution and when it was read Supervisor Church moved its adoption, saying:

"It is rather an unpleasant duty, but I suppose according to law, it must be done."

Supervisor Pelouze wanted to know if the county could allow the Tax Collector a commission on collections but Deputy District Attorney Church informed him it could not be done.

Acting on the suggestion of Attorney Church a motion prevailed to draft a suitable ordinance governing the Tax Collector and providing for his collection of the money due. The matter was referred to the District Attorney to prepare the ordinance.

The Dumbarton Land and Improvement company wanted a certificate from the Board stating that the company had shown to the Board's satisfaction that the necessary amount of money required by law had been expended in the reclamation of its land. The Supervisors not wanting to act blindly, laid the matter over for one week so that they could personally inspect the premises.

The residents about Decoto petitioned for the formation of a new road district to be known as the Decoto Road District. The petition was signed by J. C. Whipple et al, and after brief consideration was granted.

Supervisor Church then stated that as there was now a new district there should also be a new road master. After obtaining permission from Supervisor Bailey, who has charge of that district, Mr. Church proposed the name of Edwin Whipple for the position. He was unanimously elected, after Mr. Bailey had expressed it as his wish that the appointment be made.

The representation for a new publication, descriptive of Alameda county, asked the Supervisors for their photographs in order to publish cuts of the officials. His request will be complied with.

The Board then adjourned until 10 o'clock next Monday.

THE GOSPEL OF HATE.

Hate England? Hate our kith and kin
That speak our common mother-tongue,
The speech that Hampden thundered in,
The tones that Burns and Milton sung?

Hate England? Hate our ancient home,
Whose every acre knows a story,
From Calthness crags to Cornwall's foam,
Of Keltic pluck and Saxon glory?

Hate England? Hate land of Vane
Of Cromwell, Chatham, Wellington,
Of Wesley, Howard, Mill and Bain
Of Dickens, Scott, and Tennyson?

But who is this that preaches Hate?—
I think we know the accents well—
The fallen archangel of our state,
The scoffing civic infidel.

Who built a great renown of spite
Who called the Christian statesman fool,
And cast away the Golden Rule.

So while the bells of Christendom
Tell earthly homes and empires near,
That Christ, the Prince of Peace, is come,
The lowly, loving Galilean,

A new Messiah clears his throat,
Bad tidings of great woe to tell,
And utters wild discordant note,
The Gospel of the reign of Hell.

While thoughtless followers, mid the murk
Of promised war revise the strain
Peace e'en to the unspeakable Turk,
Good will to all but Englishmen.

Hate bullying? Aye hate greed? Amen;
In Briton or American,—
But hate all England? Shame! No, never!

Hate lust for land, and hate no less
The greed that seeks its gain in gore;
Stand fast, as England's taught us, yes,

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

THE LATHERS WILL STRIKE

The Oakland Lathers will go on a strike to-morrow in order to obtain a uniform price of $3 per 100 for lathing. The Lathers Union is very well organized and numbers nearly all the lathers in the city. Charles Van Haltren secretary and Lloyd Hemphill the president have issued the order for the strike. There is a disposition among the plasterers to grant the request as being just and fair.

A. C. McFarlen one of the prominent plasterers of this city, said to a Tribune reporter today: "The lathers will go on one of their regular strikes tomorrow, but it will not amount to much. The plasterers will give them the wages demanded and work will go on just the same as ever."

The Lathers Union men do not hold together and after dilly dallying and receiving a certain standard price for work men who are out of employment will obtain jobs by offering to do work at reduced prices. The plasterers say that in a short time the $3 wage fixed by the existing strike will be reduced by the strikers themselves to $1 and 75 cents.

The painters of Oakland have decided not to go on a strike being too loosely organized and work not being plentiful.

District Attorney Snook is getting ready for the opening of the trial for murder of Chirardelli one of the men who is suspected of having killed Fe-Bee Varni, near San Leandro, several months ago. He has been aided by H. V. Herbert in the matter of getting evidence, and it is known that a great deal of new and important matter has been obtained.

On Saturday last Mr. Snook Chief Deputy Church H. V. Herbert and Chief Sallee Al White visited the scene of the murder and took photographs of all the important places where the witnesses saw Varni both before and after the shooting. Measurements were taken also, and for these maps will be made by the County Surveyor. The defendants will be given individual trials. The first trial will be that of Chirardelli, which will begin April 7th.

If pure milk only was sold in London it is estimated that from 20,000 to 30,000 more cows would be wanted to keep up the supply.

Athletes Are Jubilant Over the Excursion to the East.

BERKELEY, March 31.—The Fraternity girls are beginning to arouse themselves from their lethargy and enroll new members. It is a great honor to be invited to join any one of the three women fraternities at the University and the members are very select. The Sorosis Club has decided upon three new members and has recently initiated Miss McClymonds, Miss Bell and Miss Henriet into the mysteries and delights of a secret society.

The Sorosis Club will formally entertain its friends and present the new members at a swell reception which will be given in Shattuck Hall on the 17th.

The Kappa Alpha Theta girls will give a party next Thursday evening at their frat house, which will be a very charming affair. Invitations extended by this hospitable fraternity are always very welcome as the members number some of the nicest girls in the U. C.

INTER-CLASS REGATTA.

Boating is receiving a large amount of attention from the University students. The new boat house will be furnished with two new pleasure boats by May 1st. On the second Saturday in April an inter-class regatta will be held in Sessions basin. The '96 and '97 crews are both strong and the race will be a very close and exciting one. The '99 crew is fairly good, '98 has no crew as yet. The Boating Association is trying to arouse more interest in rowing among the classes of '98 and 99 and to gain new members. The Association has been at considerable expense in rebuilding the boat house, purchasing boats, etc., and it is desirous of enrolling new members to assist in paying off expenses.

THE EASTERN JAUNT.

At the meeting of the Associated Students in the gymnasium yesterday afternoon, by a unanimous vote it was decided to send the track athletes to the East this summer. Manager Friend assured the students that the financial side of the undertaking could be managed if the student body would lend their assistance at entertainments, benefits, etc. Colonel Edwards, "the father of athletics" gave the boys a little talk about the work and strength of the team. The following men were presented with the "Big C" as emblem of records broken and contests entered in defending the U. C.:

Football—Sellridge, Plunkett, Douglas, Wilson, Wallfall, Reinhardt, R. Hutchinson, Kennedy, Ransome, Hupp, E. Sherman, Hilborn, Carr, R. Sherman, S. Easton, Foltz, Hunt, Henry, Watchorst, O. Taylor, Wittenmeyer, "Brick" Morse, Greisburg, Radelfinger, Ludlow, Bender, Hopper A. Pierce.

Tennis—W. Magee, McChesney, Gage, Crawford, Fine.

The young women of the Associated Student body did not attend the meeting yesterday afternoon and it is rumored that the proposed trip does not win their approval this year. They were contented to have the team gain honors last year "just to show the Eastern colleges what they could do," but they object to the outlay this year again, averring that it establishes the precedent of sending a team East every year. A great many of them will refuse to pay the assessments.

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills, which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge, that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, laxatives or other remedies are then not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

HOW TO MAKE SALAD.

In no part of his dinner does a chef show his skill more clearly than in his salads, and in nothing is the change, in dining ideas more marked than in our appreciation of his chef d'oeuvres. The story is told of a French marquis who during troublous times in France, made his escape to London and earned there a handsome income as a salad dresser. He actually had a cab fitted up with cases of condiments, and drove from my Lord This to my Lord that, daily, arriving just in time to make the salad. The habit of a salad for every dinner is of French birth, and in its native land people prefer salad to meat, if a choice must be made; but we have not realized fully that it is a dish for every season and revelation for every housekeeper. No better accompaniment for cold meat, be it beef or mutton or fowl, can be found than a good salad, with a good dressing, and it may be asserted that no winter vegetable grows that may not be used for this purpose. There are, however, one or two points which it might be well to explain to the amateur cook.

To begin with, except in the case of the Russian or Italian salad (practically variantes of the same original idea), the number of vegetables in one salad should be limited. Now, this is a rule that cannot be too strongly enforced in our kitchens, where mistress and maid alike appear unable to realize that a dish called by a certain name and prepared with certain ingredients, must taste of those ingredients, and not have what should be the preponderating flavor spoilt by a mixture of many. This error is, however specially noticeable in salads, where, for instance, in what is often called a French salad, i. e., one composed of lettuce and a very little finely minced herb flavoring, we find lettuce, indeed but smothered by the stronger aroma of radishes, chives mustard and cress, etc. Moreover, there is a right as well as a wrong of preparing the dressing of oil, vinegar, salt and pepper. Here is a method pursued by a well-known French chef, and recommended by him: Beat up a good dust of freshly ground black pepper and salt, to taste, in two tablespoonfuls of vinegar (either plain or perfumed with any flavor, such as celery, tarragon, eschalot, etc., you please), and when these have been well amalgamated, stir into the mixture four tablespoonfuls of salad oil, beating it all well together. Now lay in the material for the salad, lettuce, etc., and with a fork and spoon lift and toss it well together, working it till each piece is thoroughly impregnated with the dressing; then with the salad servers lift the vegetable into the salad dish. You will find at the bottom of the first bowl—especially if the salad is of lettuce—a quantity of watery liquid, which must be thrown away. If mixed at first in the salad bowl this liquid would have been at the bottom, and would have given the washy, sodden taste so often noticed in carelessly made salads. For winter use, if economy has to be studied our salads must depend, with the exception of celery and tomatoes, on cooked vegetables, and of these all kinds may be utilized, whether fresh or canned. Amongst the latter may be mentioned asparagus, artichoke bottoms, string beans, Indian corn and the ever useful macedoine. Remember, when using canned goods, always to drain them in the dressing; also have ready the finely minced herbs known in France as the fourniture, consisting of chives, parsley or chervil, tarragon, etc., to sprinkle on just at the last as a finish. Salad should be served as soon after it is mixed as possible.

The Chock Estate.

Special letters of administration have been issued in the Federal Court to Mrs. Sarah Bradley Chock upon the estate of her husband, Dr. M. A. Chock, who died some time ago in Siam. The will was made at Bangkok, and the estate consists of a claim against the Government of Siam, which is stated as of unknown value.
